UNB, Cumilla

Relax organ transplant laws

Speaking as chief guest at the inaugural session, Prof Matiur Rahman, founder of Bangladesh Renal Association, said the Transplantation of Human Organs (amendment) Act 2018 has some strict provisions, which make organ transplant more complex in the country.

According to the act, only "close relatives" can donate organs.

"I think those provisions need to be amended. If it can be done, we will be able to save many lives..." said the noted nephrologist. He also urged the government to prepare a list of patients who are undergoing dialysis and provide them the opportunity to have kidney transplant in priority basis.

Prof Quazi Deen Mohammad, president of Bangladesh College of Physicians and Surgeons, said kidney dialysis used to be complex and expensive, but the situation has changed due to modern technologies. "However, it is still expensive. On the other hand, the option of kidney transplant is much better, we cannot provide this treatment due to shortage of donation, which need to be solved as soon as possible," he added.

He called upon all to be encouraged in posthumous organ donations.

Prof Brig Gen (ret'd) Mamun Mostafi, chairman of the conference organising committee; Prof Vivekanand Jha, president of International Society of Nephrology; and Syed Modasser Ali, former health adviser to the prime minister, also spoke at the inaugural session.

Four distinguished doctors were also awarded with "Gonosasthaya Kendra Gold Medal" for their outstanding contributions to medical services.

They are: Syed Anwarul Hafiz, professor emeritus of Gonosasthaya Samaj Vittik Medical College; Prof Mohammad Nurul Amin, an ear, nose and throat specialist; Prof Rabiul Husain, an eye specialist, and Prof Rafiqul Alam, a nephrologist.

A saviour of the city

People used to gather in the area to look at it, often with awe. Legend has it, many also put garlands on the cannon as a sign of reverence.

Around 1917, under the initiative of Dhaka Museum (now Bangladesh National Museum), it was shifted and placed on a platform at Sadarghat river bank. After Partition, it was moved to Gulistan. As the place became too crowded, it was taken to its present site in the 1980s, mentioned eminent historian Prof Muntassir Mamoon.

While visiting the spot this week, this correspondent found Bibi Mariam right next to the main gate of Osmani Udyan. There is, however, no insignia or information regarding its history or importance in saving this city, where it remains neglected.

According to Dhaka South City Corporation, Osmani Udyan is under renovation as part of its project to spruce up parks and playgrounds of the city.

Contacted, Saiful Islam Joy, executive engineer of DSCC (zone-1), said along with the park, they are also planning to preserve the cannon.

"We will keep it in the park and maintain it properly so that people can know about its history," he told The Daily Star yesterday.

'Boycott Myanmar'

Justice and believe Myanmar will eventually have to grant them citizenship, which has been denied since 1982, and all other basic rights, including freedom of movement, health and education. The Rohingyas across the globe are campaigning to mobilise support from the international community.

Nay San Lwin, campaign coordinator of Free Rohingya Coalition, said they are mobilising some 100 Rohingyas in The Hague from all across the globe, mostly from Europe.

"We will hold protest rally against Myanmar's genocide. The ICJ case can change things for us. There's a lot of enthusiasm among the Rohingyas all over the world," he told The Daily Star from Germany where he lives.

"If the Court orders Myanmar to take provisional measures to stop genocide, it will mean a lot for the Rohingyas," Lwin said on Tuesday.

To keep the global pressure on, Lwin said, Free Rohingya Coalition is going to launch an online campaign called "Boycott Myanmar" on December 9. On this day in 1948, UN General Assembly adopted the genocide convention.

There are a number of western and Asian countries making big investments in Myanmar, he said, adding that they are urging all to cut ties with Myanmar.

Anyone from any part of the world can sign the online petition and send those to the countries and companies calling for boycotting Myanmar, he said.

"We urge all to join our campaign," Lwin added.

Protesting violence against women and children, Samajtantrik Mahila Forum formed a human chain in front of Jatiya Press Club yesterday. They also urged the government to ensure safety of female migrant workers. PHOTO: STAR

Contacted, Abu Sufian, who contested as BNP candidate in Chattogram-8 constituency in the 11th parliamentary polls, said if the party decides to take part in the by-polls, he would seek nomination.

"Although my experience in the previous polls was bitter, I am ready to contest in the by-polls if the party nominates me," he said.

Sufian, however, said there was "no atmosphere for holding fair polls", adding, "Despite this, we will participate in the polls as part of our movement to free our chairperson Begum Khaleda Zia from jail and to restore democracy in the country."

Meanwhile, Selina Khan told The Daily Star that she was interested to vie for the by-polls.

"The honourable Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, through a representative, asked me whether I am interested to vie for the by-polls. I said I am interested, as I want to complete the unfinished work of my husband."

"I would seek nomination from AL," she said. This correspondent could not reach Moslem, Salam and Nurul as they did not answer calls despite repeated attempts.
