Banned netting of shark continues unabated in Bay

PARTHA CHAKRABORTY, Bagerhat

A section of fishermen continue illegal netting of sharks in the Bay of Bengal as the fish is sold for good prices in different areas of the country.

Due to this, the number of sharks in the Bay of Bengal sees a gradual decrease, said a fish wholesaler at KB Ghat, a large fish landing station in Bagerhat.

Several fishermen coming to sell fish there said they go for fishing in the sea amid life risk but most of the money received from selling the catches, including those of hilsa, has to be given to the trawler owners as rent and repayment of advance money.

"We also get kamots (sharks), shaplapata and golpata fishes for which we don't have to give any money to the trawler owner. And so, we catch these to get a good return," said a Shamsu, a fisherman.

Once sharks were plenty in the Bay of Bengal but it is less available now, said Iturp, another fisherman.

A large shark weighing three to five maunds can be sold for Tk 30,000 to 50,000 while a small sized shark, locally called churi kamot, brings up to Tk 150 each, said fishermen.

Fish wholesalers at KB Ghat, Pathorghata, Parahaat as well as fish drying centres at Dublar Char and Putimari Char in the Sundarbans buy these sharks to sell for high prices in different areas of the country. Shark fins often find way to posh hotels, stakeholders said, adding that the item is also exported to different countries.

"We buy churi kamot from KB Bazar. After drying, we send it to Chattogram. The item is also available in Barishal, Patharghata, Barguna, and Cox's Bazar," a leader of Bagerhat Coastal Fisheries Association said, seeking anonymity.

Prof Dr Md Nazmul Hasan of the Department of Fisheries and Marine Resource Technology of Khulna University said there is no statistics on the number of sharks in the coastal waters of Bangladesh.

"Assessment of the stock and further research on sharks in the Bay of Bengal is needed to protect this species," he said.

Wildlife (Protection and Security) Act, 2012, prohibits catching of many species including dolphins and sharks in the Bay, said Mahmudul Hasan, divisional forest officer of the Sundarbans (East) Forest Division.

"In December, awareness campaigns will be conducted in different areas including Dublar Char, Meher Alir Char and Majher Kella to prevent catching of sharks and dolphins in the Sundarbans and the Bay. Besides, raids will be conducted if there is information of drying shark anywhere," he said.

The OC said Zakir and Jewel in their confessional statements made with a Barishal court on Sunday admitted to have killed Mariam, her nephew Yousuf, 18, and her son-in-law Mohammad Alam, 55, a retired primary school teacher from Pirojpur's Swarupkathi upazila.

The killers also stole some gold jewellery from Mariam's house, he added.

According to their statements, mason Zakir developed physical relations with Mishkat while he was staying in Sailiabakpur village for nearly a year to construct a house for Mishkat's husband.

Mishkat and Zakir decided to kill Mariam and Yousuf as Mariam found out about their affair from Yousuf. Jewel was hired to help Zakir in the killings.

Around 1:00am on December 7, after Mishkat opened the door, Zakir and Jewel entered the house and first strangled Yousuf to death. They then killed Alam, who was accidentally staying at the house that night, as he witnessed Yousuf's murder. The last one they killed was Mariam.

Mishkat sent Tk 4,000 to Zakir from her cell phone for Jewel's payment and the money was collected from a bKash agent in Barishal launch terminal area around 4:30am that day.

Mohammad Abdur Rakib, additional superintendent of police (ASP) in Barishal, said they made the arrests tracking the financial transactions made from the cell phones of the arrestees.

Police seized the cell phone that was used to withdraw the money as well as the stolen gold jewellery from Zakir and Jewel's possession.

Both Zakir and Jewel were sent to Barishal Jail and Mishkat was produced to the court with a remand prayer for five days.

Mishkat admitted to the affair, but she denied her involvement in the killings, ASP Rakib added.

Mariam's younger son Sultan Mahmud filed a murder case with Banaripara Police Station on the day the bodies were found.
