several law enforcement agency members, doctors and health service workers also died of the disease in line of duty.
“At the same time, we sadly learnt that even in this crisis, fear has spread among minority community people as there were attacks on their lives and livelihoods. Both religious and ethnic minority communities were attacked, there were attempts of land-grabbing, their religious practices and places of worship were attacked,” the signatories said.
Women and children were not spared either, they added.
Referring to media reports and social organisations, they said at least 30 incidents of violence against minority community people took place in April and May.
On May 15, houses of 10 Hindu families were vandalised and a so-called Hindu youth was arrested on allegation of demeaning religion in Bhola’s Monpura. Two days later, miscreants torched the homestead of Baul Ronesh Thakur, in Sunamganj’s Dera.
“Besides, there is allegation that at this time of coronavirus, controversial provisions of the Digital Security Act have been misused to suppress and harass journalists, social workers, and citizens active in social networks where they exercise freedom of speech guaranteed by the constitution.”
The noted citizens said they believe stern action against the perpetrators should be taken right now.

and eventually help reduce the illegal activities,” he told The Daily Star recently.
Md Zillur Rahman, deputy director of Department of Fisheries in Sylhet, said, “We must be strict in this matter but due to a manpower crisis, we are unable to look after the vast waterbodies of the region properly. But we have asked our upazila administration to conduct drives at local bazaars to stop selling of fish fry.”
Prof Mrityunjay Kunda, however, mentioned, “Enforcing law is important but the situation cannot be controlled by the administration alone. Awareness among fishermen and locals is a must in this regard.”

Bazlul Karim Chowdhury passes away

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Tangail

Bazlul Karim Chowdhury, a retired bureaucrat, passed away yesterday, said a condolence message by M Shahidul Islam, deputy commissioner of Tangail.
Bazlul Karim had served as deputy commissioner of Tangail from 2009 to 2012.
The 61-year-old was admitted to Mugda General Hospital on May 22 with Covid-19 infection. He was later shifted to Intensive Care Unit (ICU) on May 23.
Bazlul’s wife Nazmoon Naher Lipy, who is also infected with coronavirus, is undergoing treatment at the same hospital, the message read.
Born in Rajbari district, Bazlul had served as chairman of Rajdhani Unnayan Kartripakkha (Rajuk) and the commissioner of Dhaka division.
He was admin cadre official of 1985 batch of Bangladesh Civil Services (BCS), added the message.

On the first day after the shutdown, the streets of Dhaka approached normalcy, at least in terms of traffic jam. Though public transportation resumes from today, private vehicles, rickshaws, auto-rickshaws and goods-carrying vehicles filled up many of the city’s roads to the brims. This photo was taken near the Bangla Motor intersection on Kazi Nazrul Islam Avenue.

Zamir Uddin told this correspondent. They razed the hills to turn the trail into a road to get access to the rubber plantation.
He continued, “The razed amount is no less than 24,796 square feet. They did not take any approval for it. We served them a notice. Necessary steps will be taken after a hearing.”
Contacted, Md Mokchedur Rahman, general manager of BFIDC (Chattogram), said they did not know that they needed permission from DoE.
“It was an old road. We were just reconstructing for easy access to the proposed 100-acre rubber plantation,” he said. As the forest department leased out the land, they thought they did not need any permission from DoE, he added.
“It was a misunderstanding. We will apply for permission as soon as possible,” he said. Asked if there was any other alternatives to cutting hills, he said they do not have any other option.

and public relations) at Pathao, said commuting services with their app are suspended for the past two months, but they have observed that ridesharing has already resumed through offline, solicited trips.
“As such, ridesharing users are denied access to safe, secure rides with appropriate health measures in place, and are having to turn to more unsafe options like offline trips or to other forms of public transportation where social distancing cannot be properly maintained,” she told The Daily Star.
“Therefore, in the greater interest of health, safety, and convenience of commuters, we urge BRTA to allow resumption of Pathao’s ridesharing services on June 1, in line with its instructions for other forms of public transportation,” she said.
Over the past two months, Uber has been urging riders and drivers to stay at home. Now, as cities all over the world start to open, they are committed to providing safe and convenient transport, an Uber spokesperson said. “As we resume services in all the countries we operate in, we have instituted safety measures such as distributing PPE to drivers, building multiple layers of accountability in our app, including technology-led checks on mask use, safety checklists, limiting the number of passengers per vehicle and restricting geographies and times of operation as per relevant government guidelines,” Uber said.
“We have recently spearheaded the formation of a Transport Safety Alliance (TSA) to generate safety awareness amongst consumers, and to equip drivers with health and safety supplies. We hope authorities will allow Uber’s ridesharing services that are safe and can effectively help our communities on the path to recovery” it added.

1,200 returnees

Most of them had gone to India for treatment purpose, sources at the airport said.
Foreign Minister AK Abdul Momen in early April said different Middle Eastern countries, especially the UAE, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Kuwait, Qatar, Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq, are likely to send back around 29,000 Bangladeshi workers, in the next couple of weeks.
Many of these Bangladeshis were in prisons or detention camps, and were granted general amnesty due to the coronavirus pandemic, foreign ministry sources said.
Several thousand Bangladeshi workers also returned from different Middle Eastern countries in the last two weeks, said a source at Dhaka airport, without giving any details.
Bangladesh had requested different countries not to send back Bangladeshi workers during the pandemic. But they didn’t pay heed to the request, Momen had earlier told The Daily Star.
Dr Munera said all Bangladeshi workers and others who returned to the country were sent into home quarantine as they showed health certificates saying they did not have Covid-19.
However, public health experts have raised questions about the certificates.
A government-appointed expert committee recently warned the government that the country may have to grapple with a second wave of coronavirus infections if the government fails to ensure strict institutional quarantine for the 29,000 returnee Bangladeshi workers.
Prof Muzaherul Huq, former adviser (Southeast Asia Region) of the World Health Organization, said, “We had a bitter experience in the recent past by allowing migrant Bangladeshi workers to go into home quarantine.”
“In socio-economic conditions like ours, most people don’t have facilities at their homes to ensure that the guidelines are being followed,” he said, adding that home quarantine is not practical and feasible for many of our people, especially for low-income people.
