

Biden mulling top staff

Other roles could also be disclosed this week though Biden could still be weeks away from finalizing his slate of cabinet appointees.

None of the potential appointees could be reached for comment. A spokesman for Biden's transition team declined to comment.

Biden, a Democrat, is also set to receive a briefing on national security threats from his own advisers. Trump, a Republican who has not conceded the Nov 3 election, has blocked him from receiving classified intelligence briefings usually provided to the successor in a transition.

General Services Administrator Emily Murphy has not recognized Biden as the "apparent winner." A spokeswoman for Murphy said the administrator was following precedent and would "make an ascertainment when the winner is clear." Critics say Murphy is holding off under pressure from the White House, a claim rejected by administration officials.

The Republican Trump has remained angry and defiant on social media even as some prominent Republicans have asserted that Biden should be considered the president-elect.

Trump's national security adviser, Robert O'Brien, said on Monday he would ensure a professional transition in the likely event that Biden is deemed the winner.

"If the Biden-Harris ticket is determined to be the winner, and obviously things look like that now, we'll have a very professional transition from the National Security Council," O'Brien told the Global Security Forum.

At a news conference on Monday, Biden again called upon Trump to cooperate with the transfer of power, saying that the resurgent Covid-19 pandemic meant lives were in the balance.

"More people may die if we don't coordinate," he said.

Though a definitive winner from the election did not emerge until four days later, Biden's victory has become clearer as more votes have been counted.

Biden won the legally meaningless but symbolically important national popular vote by at least 5.6 million votes, or 3.6 percentage points, with some ballots still being counted.

Crisis-hit Peru names centrist lawmaker as third president in a week

REUTERS, Lima

Peru's Congress on Monday chose legislator Francisco Sagasti as the Andean country's caretaker president, in an attempt to defuse a sharp political crisis after angry protests and the departure of two presidents in the past week.

Sagasti, 76, from the centrist Morado Party, won enough votes to head Congress, which means he will constitutionally assume the presidency of Peru ahead of national elections called for April.

Sagasti will be Peru's third president in a week, after interim leader Manuel Merino resigned on Sunday, five days after being sworn in following the ousting of centrist Martin Vizcarra.

The removal of Vizcarra, who was popular with many Peruvians but angered lawmakers with his push for anti-corruption measures and attempts to curb parliamentary immunity, sparked days of protests that led to the deaths of two men.

"Today is not a day of celebration," Sagasti said, striking a somber tone in his first words after taking office in Congress. "We cannot go back, bring them back to life, but we can take action from Congress, from the Executive, so that this does not happen again."

Sagasti, a former World Bank official and engineer, faces a formidable challenge to bring stability to the world's No. 2 copper producer, which was already hard hit by COVID-19 and heading for its worst economic contraction in a century.

Shortly after the vote, Sagasti stepped outside the Congress building, raising his hand to the cheers of onlookers. Crowds in Lima's central plaza also greeted his election with jubilee.

Though the vote appeared to defuse tensions, underlying anger at police and elected lawmakers continues to simmer.

Protesters took to the streets to demonstrate peacefully in cities throughout Peru as night fell, though in smaller numbers than last week.

Some rallied to congratulate Sagasti while others shouted and waved signs calling for a new constitution, or justice for those killed, injured or still missing.

Television images showed the families of the two young men killed in the rallies last week gathering for their burial.

"I ask for justice for my children," said Moraiba Sandoval, grandmother of one of those who died. She asked that the investigation into their deaths continue and the culprits be brought to justice.

Several human rights organizations in Peru have filed a complaint against Merino and a number of his former ministers for "qualified homicide, serious injuries and abuse of authority," according to a joint statement.

Sagasti, who received 97 votes in favor with 26 against, is set to complete the current government's mandate that ends in July 2021 and will include the holding of general elections on April 11.

Autonomy gone, efficiency too division; one water resources engineer; one water resources expert; one representative each from an NGO, Institute of Chartered Accountants and beneficiary organisations; director general of Water Resources Planning Organisation; and the BWDB director general.

According to the act, the council's chairman fixes the time and the venue and a meeting has to be held every two months. At least six members are required for a quorum.

Due to the non-functionality of the governing council, BWDB had to turn to the ministry concerned for major decisions and gradually became fully dependent on it.

Referring to remain unnamed, the BWDB official said that in the first 28 years since independence, BWDB's performance as an autonomous body had ebbed and flowed.

Yet, he added, it has done some great jobs such as constructing the Teesta Barrage, and implementing the Coastal Embankment and Dhaka Integrated Flood Protection projects.

But things changed once it was made a statutory body, he said, adding that the BWDB has now become a less lucrative body due to job insecurity and the absence of technically qualified people in leading roles.

'BOARD' TO 'DIRECTORATE'

There have been recent attempts to address the problem of a non-functional governing council and other issues that impede better management of the organisation working to ensure the country's food and water security and minimise flood damage.

An 11-member committee was formed in April 2018 to amend the BWDB Act 2000. The committee, in its fourth meeting on February 20, 2019, decided to transform the board into a directorate, and three sub-committees were formed in this regard.

In one of the meetings held on the formation of the directorate, 13 loopholes of the act and existing problems were identified.

One of these was that the governing council failing to comply with the act's mandate of meetings every two months is hampering BWDB activities.

Execution of important work like the annual budget, procurement, and additional work order or property handover requires approval from the governing council.

While the BWDB Act contained a provision over the formation of the governing council, no clear-cut directives were given over the formation of the BWDB itself.

Also, as a statutory body, BWDB's officials and engineers are not entitled to the rank their peers in equivalent positions in government agencies and departments receive.

This has created disparity in pay and rank and contributed to job insecurity, which the committee identified as another loophole.

BWDB Director General Engr AM Aminul Haque, however, said all these limitations will be solved with the formation of a directorate.

"That is why a move has been taken from both the water resources ministry and BWDB to transform the statutory board into a complete government organisation," he told The Daily Star recently.

"The communication between the ministry and us will be smoother. Our work will gain pace," he said.

"Officials are now working on the Bangladesh Water Resources Directorate Act 2019," the DG added, without elaborating.

Pointing to the manpower shortage, he said many skilled officers quit BWDB jobs -- finding it non-lucrative as it is only a statutory organisation.

"But after the formation of the directorate, officials will get BCS rank. The problem will be solved then," he said.

Deputy Minister for Water Resources AKM Enamul Hoque Shameem, too, opined that transforming BWDB into a directorate will bring more dynamism.

"We need to take quick action. Under the ministry, the directorate will be able to function quickly," he said on November 10, adding it will also solve the issue of job dissatisfaction among officials.

But experts debated whether the formation of a directorate will make BWDB efficient in implementing the multi-billion dollar Delta Plan 2100 for example.

The government formulated the Delta Plan in 2018 to ensure water and food security, economic growth, and environmental sustainability, and reduce vulnerability to natural disasters and building resilience to climate change and other delta challenges.

Dr Abdul Matin, professor at the department of water resources engineering of Buet, said the job of BWDB is technical -- therefore, a technically qualified person should be in the leading role.

"A technical person used to lead it when it was autonomous and the country saw some tremendous work at that time."

The board will completely be under a bureaucratic grip after its transformation into a directorate, Dr Matin added.

23-NATION RESOLUTION IN UN

Twenty-three countries table a resolution for the consideration of the UN General Assembly favouring the admission of Bangladesh into the world body. The resolution reaffirms the principle of universality of membership of the United Nations and considers that the People's Republic of Bangladesh is eligible for membership in the United Nations. It also seeks to express the desire that Bangladesh will be admitted to the membership of the United Nations at an early date.

SUBIMAL CALLS ON

BANGABANDHU

High Commissioner Doraiswami emphasised that along with being the Father of Nation of Bangladesh Bangabandhu is also a hero to the Indian people.

It is only natural that Indians also wish to celebrate Mujib Borsho with the same affection and respect as they did when he visited India in January 1972, en route to Bangladesh upon the country's liberation.

Prime Minister of India, Narendra Modi, had paid tributeto Bangabandhu during the commencement of Mujib Borsho on March 17, 2020.

Calling Bangabandhu a courageous leader, Modi had emphasised that Bangabandhu's life was an inspiration to all, he said.

Four people -- Abdul Amin, Sahabuddin, Mizanur Rahman and Mahmudur Rahman, residents of different villages in Teknaf upazila -- were killed in separate gunfights.

Last September, relatives of the four dead people filed cases against Pradeep and some others with the same court.

The court took the cases into cognisance and asked Teknaf Police Station to submit reports on whether there were any investigations in this regard.

In response, the concerned police officials submitted the reports.

On Monday, the court came up with the latest directive, which ordered the investigation of the cases.

The plaintiffs' lawyer Abu Musa Mohammad said they are satisfied with the court order and hoped that the victims' families will get justice.

Threatening

The letter was sent by Bangladesh Islamic Sochetan Dal on November 4.

The Daily Star obtained copies of the threatening letter and the GD yesterday. The letter also said the group is ready to "sacrifice their lives for Allah".

In the GD, the headmaster also named three villagers -- Abdur Razzak, Abdul Wadud and Ruhul Amin -- who had gone to the school on November 6 and also demanded a halt to the rehearsals.

Azim Uddin, officer-in-charge of Ghoraghat Police Station, said a GD was lodged over the issue on November 12 and police interrogated all three persons mentioned in the GD.

The OC said there was a land dispute between the three and the headmaster .

The headmaster, on the other hand, alleged that the issue had become more complicated due to the inaction of the police.

Razzak, one of those mentioned in the GD, said he had no knowledge of the letter.

sick. The girl's parents also disclosed the matter to some locals and relatives. Then, some furious locals and relatives vandalised the madrasa on October 5 evening.

The victim's father then filed a case with Mirpur police station the same night against the teacher.

The teacher fled the scene soon after the mob attack, but police arrested him around 9:30pm on October 5.

A judicial magistrate in Kushtia sent Quader to jail after police produced him before the court on October 6.

Evidence of rape was found following a medical test of the victim at Kushtia general hospital on October

The accused also confessed to raping her before the court, they added.

Police submitted the charge sheet on October 13. The court accepted it on November 12.

There were a total of 13 witnesses, all of them were students of the madrasa.

The judge at the court of women and children repression prevention Munshi Moshir Rahman handed down the verdict in presence of the convict.

Lawyers and locals hailed the speedy verdict. Members from the victim's family also expressed satisfaction at it.

Kejriwal said he had written to federal authorities for permission to impose the curbs.

Since the middle of May, the capital has gradually opened markets and public transport shut during the early phase of the pandemic.

Delhi, which recorded its highest infections and deaths last week, reported on Monday a fall in new infections to 3,797, but federal authorities have warned it to be ready for as many as 15,000 cases a day.

As a popular time of year for weddings nears, Kejriwal's government has also asked federal officials for a further cut in the number of guests at such celebrations, to 50 from 200.

The Delhi government's online tracker showed just 116 beds available, from a total of 1,327 in intensive care units equipped with a ventilator. Federal officials have promised to make hundreds more available soon.
