An elaborate con indeed

PBI arrests five fraudsters who sold businessman 'valuable coins'

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Their target was businessmen and industrialists. They sold old coins, takkar (a type of chameleon) and border pillars as valuable items.

They claimed that such old coins are used for research at US space agency Nasa which buys coins from different countries at inflated prices and sells them for millions of dollars.

In their trick, they themselves become the sellers, the buyers and the middlemen. And many would fall into this trap. When they strike a deal with a rich man, the victim, out of greed, gives them a big chunk of money to make a big profit.

Such a fraudulent gang sold a coin for Tk 1.5 crore to Dr Abdullah Bari, 70, chairman of Ananda Group, saying he could sell it to Nasa for Tk 1,200 crore.

The Police Bureau of Investigation (PBI) arrested five members of the gang from Jashore, Jhenidah and Dhaka on Tuesday.

PBI chief Banaj Kumar Majumder came up with the information at a press briefing at its headquarters in Dhanmondi yesterday.

The arrestees are: Salam, 50, Akhteruzzaman, 61, Moniruzzaman Kamrul alias Jaman, 38, Abu Taher Joba, 35, and Shafiqul Islam Swapan, 49.

Banaj Kumar said the chairman of Ananda Group met Joba, a member of the fraudulent gang, a year ago.

Joba introduced Akhteruzzaman to Bari saying Akhteruzzaman travelled the world and that he runs his

A 'model for irregularities'

Says EC Mahbub Talukder about CCC polls

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Frustrated with the disorder during the Chattogram City Corporation (CCC) election, Election Commissioner Mahbub Talukder dubbed the polls as a "model for irregularities".

While speaking to reporters at his EC office yesterday, he also said that the low turnout of voters in the election was an early sign of "the people's lack of trust in the election, which is an ominous sign for democracy".

On Wednesday, Awami League mayoral candidate Rezaul Karim Chowdhury has won by a landslide in the CCC election marred by violence, low-voter turnout and the capturing of scores of polling centres by ruling party men.

"Chattogram City Corporation election is a model for irregularities [during polls]. If the model is followed in all future elections, we would be not able to uphold our self-esteem as a democratic nation before the world," Mahbub said, adding that four people were killed before and during the election.

"Violence, seizing polling stations, vandalising police vehicles and EVMs have stigmatised the election."

Friendly talks with Myanmar still on

Says PM

UNB, Dhaka

Bangladesh continues its discussions with Myanmar with a friendly attitude, without engaging in any conflict, for the repatriation of Rohingyas and regional security and development, said Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina yesterday.

"Responding to the call of endangered humanity, we've given shelter to around 10 lakh Rohingyas despite [our] limitations, including internal resource constraints. And we didn't engage in conflict with anyone for the sake of regional security and development, apart from creating scopes, so that the forcibly displaced Myanmar citizens can return to their homeland," she said.

The prime minister made the statement while addressing the graduation ceremony of the Defence Services Command and Staff College (DSCSC) 2020-21 Course at Sheikh Hasina Complex in Dhaka's Mirpur Cantonment.

She joined the programme virtually from her official residence the Gono Bhaban.

Talking about coronavirus, she said this virus brought the entire world to a standstill, dealing a blow to every sector, including socioeconomic development.

"In this condition, we're continuing our efforts for maintaining all the development activities, including the economy, besides ensuring health

AFP, Singapore

Singapore has moved a step closer to a driverless public transport network with the launch of a new trial of self-driving buses.

Orderly and high-tech, the Asian city-state has become a testbed for self-driving vehicles and has developed home-grown technology while inviting foreign companies to trial their own.

In a three-month trial launched this week, passengers can book a bus ride through an app that takes them around Singapore's Science Park, a high-tech business hub, during off-peak hours.

'Too early to ease' curbs in Europe

Warns WHO, says Covid vaccine makers working to plug supply gap

AGENCIES

The World Health Organization's European branch yesterday said it is too early to ease virus restrictions in Europe despite a drop in new cases in most countries.

Hans Kluge, the WHO's regional director for Europe, said 30 of the WHO European region's 53 countries had "seen a significant decrease in 14-day cumulative incidence."

"Yet, transmission rates across Europe are still very high, impacting health systems and straining services, making it too early to ease up," Kluge told an online press conference.

The regional director also noted that since only three percent of people in the region had already had a confirmed infection, areas that had been "hit badly once can be hit again."

Kluge described the current situation as a "pandemic paradox", noting that while the rollout of vaccines offered "remarkable hope... newly emerging variants of concern are presenting greater uncertainty and risk."

In the WHO's European Region, which includes Russia and several Central Asian countries, 35 states have started vaccinations, according to the WHO.

As for the new variant first discovered in the UK, it has been confirmed in 33 countries and the variant first identified in South Africa has been reported in 16.

Kluge also said vaccine manufacturers were working non-stop to plug shortfalls in supplies to countries struggling to contain the pandemic and urged them not to jostle for deliveries.

"Solidarity does not necessarily mean that each country in the world starts (vaccinating) at exactly the same moment ... The good understanding is that no one is safe
