Ulka Games: A solution for dull hours

How often do you get on a bus for commute and find yourself bored? It's something many of us face in our daily life in this modern world, and it's utterly depressing. Mobile games are an efficient way to battle this nuisance, but there are games that require your undivided attention and some will take hours for one single match. The way around this particular problem is to pick casual or board games that allow you to have a quick game, wherever you are.

Ulka Games is one of the native developers that are focusing on three genres of mobile games — board games, card games, and hyper casual games. Game development has been neglected in our country for a long time and as a result, the industry has not progressed as much as it could have, considering the number of smartphone users in our country. Still, despite the awareness gap and other issues, Ulka Games is thriving and producing quality games for smartphones along with web games.

Remember your childhood memories of playing Ludo with your siblings or your parents?

Those days might be memories but ADDA still allows you to play the beloved game on your smartphone.

There's another popular board game in our country that's almost forgotten these days. We are talking about 16 beads (sholo guti). There were days when people used to play this game by drawing a board on the ground, along with other popular games like Tic Tac Toe.

Well, you can play both of those games on your smart device thanks to Ulka Games. Both games are available in their compilation game "ADDA." This offers a wide selection of card games, board games and casual games — all in one app and all of them are available offline so you don't have to worry about your data package.

You might be thinking of lag at this point. Well, you need not worry for ADDA is very optimised and well coded, allowing for a slick user experience. You won't be stuck at the loading screen for minutes waiting to play a game.

With the pandemic still very much present, we advise you to stay inside as much as possible. But it gets dull and mobile games can be a way of escape at times like this. Whether you like casual games such as Bubble Pop or more thought-provoking ones like chess, Ulka Games has got your back.

Whether you have a high-end device or a casual one, you can play one of Ulka Games' games without any issues. Their team of highly-motivated developers focus on optimisation as they want to ensure that everyone can run their games on their device and enjoy them.

Exciting games like Carom and Bubble Pop will get you hooked for sure. Along with a wide selection of card games, you can also turn to action based casual games like Huntsman, where you level up with every successful mission. Park Hero on the other hand keeps you engaged with their little cars and coins.

If ADDA isn't your type of game, you can always switch to one of their Club games like Card Club or Board Club, both of which are respectively packed with card games and board games. The age-old snake and ladder or the puzzles of chess, whichever one fits your mood, you can find them.

Ulka Games aims to reach a wider variety of audience and at the same time, they are hoping that more people will be invested in game development because of all the possibilities the industry offers.

Gatherings of four around a Ludo board might not be so common these days, but such games remain popular all the same. Times have changed, people now gather around a smartphone. Whether you like to play solo or with a friend, check out Ulka Games. They have something for everyone.
