MASS VACCINATION

Poor response poses a stiff challenge

Drives begin today with aim to immunise everyone eligible for Covid shots

MOHAMMAD AL-MASUM and MOUDUD AHMED SUJAN

The coronavirus vaccine is being rolled out across the country today amid lukewarm interest from the people in getting the shots.

The vaccine doses arrived in the country on time, the vials were sent across the country as planned before, and the vaccinators and volunteers have been trained.

The two-day piloting was done with success on January 28: Not one of the 567 volunteers who took the first shot of the two-dose Oxford-AstraZeneca vaccine has complained of any major side effect.

But the response from people eligible for inoculation in the first phase has been underwhelming.

The government's plan is to inoculate everyone aged over 55 and those of certain professions.

As of yesterday afternoon, a little less than 3.5 lakh people registered online for the vaccine. But the government's plan at the beginning was to inoculate 60 lakh people in the first month of the campaign. The authorities then lowered their expectations and set the target at 35 lakh people.

Healthcare officials and experts said absence of a mass awareness campaign, difficulties in online registration, misinformation, and scepticism about the vaccines' effectiveness were the key reasons behind people's indifference.

The health minister along with some top officials are likely to get the jabs at the Sheikh Raseel Gastroenterology Institute and Hospital in the capital today, as they hope to dispel any fear that people might have of the vaccine.

Chief Justice Syed Mahmud Hossain and Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan will get inoculated at the Shuhrawardy Medical College Hospital while State Minister for Public Administration Farhad Hossain, State Minister for Disaster Management and Relief Dr Enamur Rahman, and Cabinet Secretary Khandker Anwarul Islam at the Sheikh Hasina National Institute of Burn and Plastic Surgery.

People will be inoculated at every district and upazila from today, according to health officials.

MYTH: The Covid-19 vaccine can affect women's fertility.
FACT: It will not.

MYTH: If someone already had Covid-19, he or she doesn't need a vaccine.
FACT: People who have already been infected with coronavirus may still benefit from getting vaccinated.

MYTH: Getting the Covid-19 vaccine means a person can stop wearing a mask and taking coronavirus precautions.

Put them before people's court

HC verdict observes about corrupt public officials, judges

ASHUTOSH SARKAR

The High Court has observed in a verdict that it is about time corrupt military and civil officials and staffers, and judges were put before the court of people in order to establish the rule of law.

"Some unscrupulous government officials and employees are looting the hard-earned money of hardworking farmers and labourers. It's high time corrupt military and civil public officials and staffers, and judges and justices were put before the court of people. Only then it will be possible to establish the rule of law," the HC bench of Justice Md Ashraf Kamal and Justice Razik-Al-Jalil said in the full text verdict.

The 123 pages of the verdict's full text were released recently.

The HC bench delivered the shorter verdict on February 4, 2020, on a writ petition filed over the ownership of a vested property in Savar.

Savar Thana Osahay Poribar Punorbason Bohumukhi Samobay Samity Ltd filed the petition challenging a lower court verdict that ordered the release of a land of vested property measuring 15.74 acres at Gandharia Mouza in Savar in the possession of Sree Madhob Chandra Saha Poddar and his now-dead brother Sree Ruhi Chandra Saha Poddar from North Kalshi in Dhaka's Mirpur area.

In the full text, the HC said the hard-earned money of Bangladesh's farmers, labourers, garment workers, and all working people and foreign-currency earning people... are the source of food for the salaried officials, staff members, judges, justices, and military and civil forces.

"All needs of our families, including education, are arranged from the hard-earned money of farmers and workers. They give their hard-earned money to us

AKHAURA-SYLHET RAIL LINE

Derailments all too frequent

179km stretch saw 9 accidents in 2 years; no major track upgrade done in century

DWOHA CHOWDHURY, Sylhet

After a freight train carrying diesel derailed at Gutigaon village of Sylhet's Fenchuganj around Friday midnight, the fuel spilled from the tank wagons. Hearing the news, several locals rushed to the spot with whatever they had and started collecting the diesel.

Luckily, a fire disaster did not occur.

This was not the first time such an incident happened at the Akhaura-Sylhet section under Bangladesh Railway's Eastern Zone. Four other fuel-laden trains derailed at the section in the past five months alone, causing substantial damage to the trains, their wagons and the tracks.

The accidents also upset the train schedule, causing suffering to people. After the latest derailment, it took the authorities 27 hours to restore the rail link on that particular route.

THE DERAILMENTS

According to Bangladesh Railway's annual report, 91 train accidents, including 78 derailments, took place in the country in the fiscal 2018-19. The damage caused in the accidents was estimated to be Tk 5,696 crore.

The data on the current year is not available.

As per media reports, nine major train derailments took place in the

7 rights bodies urge UN over Al Jazeera report

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Seven human rights groups have urged the United Nations to use its meetings with senior Bangladeshi military officials next week to seek explanations regarding an Al Jazeera report that alleged controversial purchase of a highly invasive spyware from Israel.

The Bangladesh government earlier termed it "nothing more than a misleading series of innuendos and insinuations in what is apparently a politically motivated 'smear campaign'".

According to a post in the New York-based Human Rights Watch website today, they also wanted the UN to discuss the alleged human rights violation record at home.

COUP IN MYANMAR

Military imposes internet blackout

Thousands take to the streets

AGENCIES

Myanmar saw its largest anti-coup protests yet yesterday with young demonstrators spilling on to the streets to denounce the country's new military regime, despite a nationwide internet blackout aimed at stifling a growing chorus of popular dissent.

Soon before nearly all lines of communication in and out of the country went dark, an Australian advisor to ousted civilian leader Aung San Suu Kyi told media he had been detained.

The shutdown did not stop thousands of demonstrators from gathering across Myanmar's largest city yesterday, beginning on a road near Yangon University where many flashed the three-finger salute that has come to symbolise resistance to the army takeover.

"Down with the military dictatorship!" crowds yelled, many donning red headbands -- the colour associated with Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy party.

A large riot police contingent blocked nearby roads, with two water cannon trucks parked at the scene.

At least two other groups of demonstrators marched south to downtown Yangon's Sule Pagoda, carrying posters of Suu Kyi and president Win Myint to call for their release.

The protests ended by dusk, and demonstrators have vowed to return to the streets today.

Further north in Mandalay, as many as 2,000 people were also protesting, AFP reporters on the ground said.

All were out to condemn dawn raids that brought a sudden halt to the country's 10-year experiment with MORE ON PAGE 12
