NEW EC GUIDELINE

Controversial posts stay, pay rises too

MOHIUDDIN ALAMGIR

The Election Commission has drafted a guideline for imparting training to polls-related officials, keeping in it controversial positions like "special speakers" and "course advisers" amid allegations of financial corruption through such posts.

In the draft guideline, it has also suggested raising allowances for those positions.

Chief Election Commissioner KM Nurul Huda, election commissioners and top officials of the EC secretariat attended training programmes as "special speakers" ahead of the 2018 national election and the fifth upazila polls in 2019.

Election commissioners and the EC secretary also attended the training programmes as "course advisers" and the director general of Electoral Training Institute (ETI) as "course director", according to EC officials.

The EC has been facing criticism from many eminent citizens and left-leaning political parties over alleged financial and other irregularities.

Forty-two noted citizens of the country have written twice to President Abdul Hamid, demanding formation of Supreme Judicial Council to probe allegations of "serious financial corruption and gross election-related misconduct" against the EC.

They said members of the EC under Huda's leadership indulged in misconduct and irregularities, including

Six more killed in other road crashes

STAR REPORT

At least 10 people were killed and 14 others injured in a head-on collision between a bus and a truck in Jhenaidah, while six others died in separate road accidents in three other districts yesterday.

The death toll in Jhenaidah may rise, said Sheikh Mamunur Rashid, station officer at Fire Service and Civil Defence office in Kaliganj upazila last evening.

Of the dead, seven were men, two women and one girl child, said police.

So far, the identities of only five victims were found. They are Reshma Khatun, 25, from Chuadanga Sadar upazila, the bus driver Uzzal Hossain, 48 and another bus passenger Mostafizur Rahman, Younus Ali, 27, from Jhenidah Sadar upazila, and Waliul Ali, 26, from Alamdanga upazila in Chuadanga.

After the collision, the bus turned turtle on the road, leaving nine people dead on the spot. Around 15 injured were rushed to different local hospitals.

One of them succumbed to injuries at a local clinic, raising the death toll to ten. Of the other injured persons, the conditions of four to five people were very critical, the police officer added.

An eyewitness Shamsul Islam said, "I was working on a nearby cropland when I suddenly heard a bang and saw that a speeding truck rammed a passenger bus."

"Some other locals and I rushed to spot and found the passengers were screaming out. We then started recovering bodies and rescuing the injured," he told The Daily Star.

Vehicular movement on the road was halted for around an hour and Tasneem and Zulkarnain were featured in a recent Al Jazeera report, titled "All the Prime Minister's Men". The report caused a stir in the country and received a major backlash from the government.

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT

Senate votes to proceed with trial

Republicans signal likely acquittal as Democrats set to detail case against ex-president

REUTERS, Washington

A divided US Senate voted largely along party lines on Tuesday to move ahead with Donald Trump's impeachment trial on a charge of inciting the deadly assault on the Capitol, but Republican senators made clear how difficult it will be to win a conviction.

The Senate voted 56-44 to proceed to the first-ever trial of a former president, rejecting his defense lawyers' argument that Trump was beyond the reach of the Senate after having left the White House on January 20.

Democrats hope to disqualify Trump from ever again holding public office, but Tuesday's outcome suggested they face long odds. Only six Republican senators joined Democrats to vote in favor of allowing the trial to take place, far short of the 17 needed to secure a conviction.

Convicting Trump would require a two-thirds majority in the 50-50 Senate.

Democratic lawmakers were set to detail their case against him yesterday. Under impeachment rules, each side is allowed up to 16 hours over two days to present their case. Senators will also be given a total of four hours for questioning.

Tuesday's vote capped a dramatic day in the Senate chamber. Democratic lawmakers serving as prosecutors opened the trial with a graphic video interspersing images of the January 6 Capitol violence with clips of Trump's incendiary speech to a crowd of supporters moments
