STAR REPORT

Although there is plenty of video footage and photos showing that the recent countrywide mayhem was unleashed by Hefajat-e-Islam, only a handful of people from the Islamist organisation have been accused in the cases over the violence.

As Hefajat began nationwide protests against Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit, the demonstrations turned violent in certain districts, including Brahmanbaria, Chattogram, Kishoreganj and Narayanganj.

At least 25 cases have so far been filed against over 15,000 people, but only one accused 32 top Hefajat leaders in Dhaka. Other than that, Hefajat names are nary in sight.

There are, however, many BNP leaders and activists who have been accused in the cases.

The Daily Star found this after going through statements of many of the cases and speaking to the officers-in-charge of the police stations concerned.

Following the Hefajat mayhem, Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan on Sunday issued a note of warning saying no violence would be tolerated. He also warned that those involved in breaking laws and carrying out subversive activities would be identified and brought to book.

But when he was asked yesterday why the perpetrators identified in most of the cases do not include Hefajat men, he said, "The cases were filed immediately after the

HEFAJAT'S MAYHEM A wake-up call for AL, for us all

MAHFUZ ANAM

The ostensible reason for the recent protests was Indian PM Narendra Modi's latest visit. The real reason was to signal that Hefajat-e-Islam (HI) under its new leadership was not the same party as it was under its former chief Shah Ahmad Shafi and his immediate followers and to announce that HI was ready to emerge as a new political force under the guise of protecting the majority faith. It is also a signal that the government's policy of appeasement has totally failed and the compromises and concessions so generously and unthinkingly given have only helped make them stronger and more determined to challenge the fundamental character of the country. The situation stands as a testimony to the follies of a politics of power and arrogance that has led the ruling party to cripple all its political allies representing secular and democratic forces.

To politically obliterate Jamaat, Sheikh Hasina wanted to create an alternative Islamic force. The choice was Qawmi-Madrasa based Hefajat-e-Islam (HI). The logic was as simple as it was attractive. The AL needed an "Islamic party" that did not have the unacceptable features of opposing the birth of Bangladesh and being involved in anti-liberation activities and whose leaders were not among the war criminals of 1971. By having such a force aligned with it, AL could easily obliterate the Jamaat.

Govt moves to raise number of hospital beds

MOHAMMAD AL-MASUM MOLLA

The government has taken steps to increase the number of beds in public hospitals and open temporary healthcare facilities in Dhaka to accommodate the rising number of Covid-19 patients.

As part of the move, Dhaka North City Corporation kitchen market in Mohakhali will be turned into a makeshift hospital dedicated for novel coronavirus patients.

Speaking to The Daily Star yesterday, Health Minister Zahid Maleque said, "The makeshift hospital will be able to accommodate around 1,200 patients at a time. It will have 51 ICU beds."

He said they have instructed the city's three specialised public hospitals -- National Institute of Mental Health, National Institute of Cardiovascular Diseases and National Institute of Kidney Diseases and Urology -- to soon open units dedicated for coronavirus patients with 100 beds each.

"We are trying our best to improve hospital facilities. We have already given instructions in this regard."

Response delayed, and it lacks clarity

Experts say about govt's 18-point directive on containing Covid surge

MOUDDUD AHMED SUJAN

Experts say the 18-point directive that the government issued on Monday to curb the rapid surge in Covid cases is not only a delayed response but it also lacks clarity.

With daily cases crossing the 5,000 mark for the last couple of days, experts have strongly suggested imposing a lockdown in the Covid hotspots in Dhaka and Chattogram.

"I would say it is too late to issue such notifications. The daily infection positivity rate has risen to 18.94 percent from 2.30 percent. Now it is high time to enforce curfew in big cities. The hotspots where the positivity rate is high should be isolated from the rest of the country," Md Sayedur Rahman, chairman of pharmacology department at BSMMU, told The Daily Star yesterday.

The country recorded 5,042 cases and 45 deaths in 24 hours till 8:00am yesterday. On Monday, 5,181 cases were recorded, the highest in a day since the pandemic hit the country in March last year.

Amid the sharp rise in Covid cases, the government on Monday issued fresh directives, including restrictions on social gatherings and extension of closure of educational institutions, with immediate effect.

Those will remain in force for at least two weeks, read a gazette notification signed by Ahmad Kaikaus, principle secretary to the prime minister.

As per the directives, the number of participants at public meetings must be kept at a limited scale and no gatherings will be allowed in the areas seeing high virus transmission.

But the government is yet to publish the list of such areas.

A source in the health directorate, however, said the government has classified Dhaka, Narayanganj and Chattogram as "high risk" zones. Four districts --

Only 2 oxygen cylinders at emergency

Mugda struggles to deal with deluge of Covid patients

ANISUR RAHMAN

With only two oxygen cylinders, the emergency unit of Mugda Medical College Hospital in the capital is struggling to cope with the influx of coronavirus patients.

Apart from treating follow-up patients, attending doctors and nurses in the emergency unit of the Covid-19-dedicated hospital were seen trying to serve the critical patients with severe respiratory problems.

Watching from a distance, this correspondent saw at least six such patients arrive at the hospital between 12:00pm and 2:30pm. But the emergency unit could only provide oxygen support to three of them with the available cylinders, which had to be switched from one patient to the other.

Buses, trains to ply at half capacity

Bus fare to rise 60pc from today; train, launch fare to remain same

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

With the country witnessing a sharp rise in Covid-19 cases and deaths, authorities concerned have imposed restrictions on carrying passengers in buses, trains and launches.

Buses and minibuses are going to charge 60 percent more than the existing fare from today on condition that they would carry 50 percent passengers of their capacities and maintain necessary health safety guidelines.

Bangladesh Railway yesterday started selling half the tickets of a train's capacity. However, it may take a few days to start operation with 50 percent passengers as many advance tickets up to April 4 have already been sold.

Launch owners have also been directed to carry 50 percent passengers on the deck from yesterday. However, launch and train fares would remain the same.

The government on Monday issued the new directives to curb the fresh and sharp rise of Covid-19 cases in the country.

As per the directives, issued by the Prime Minister's Office, public transport cannot carry passengers over 50 percent of the capacity.

Inter-district transport has to be limited to areas with higher infections, has to be suspended entirely if necessary, the directives said.

The new bus fare would be applicable for next two weeks unless the government issues any further directives, officials said yesterday.
