Case filed against unnamed

Govt bodies concerned 'not IDing' the other vessel involved

OUR CORRESPONDENT, N'ganj

Government bodies concerned are apparently not identifying the bulk carrier that rammed a passenger launch in the Shitalakhya in Narayanganj on Sunday killing 34 people.

Around 60 hours after the accident, an official of Bangladesh Inland Water Transport Authority yesterday filed a case with Bandar Police Station accusing unnamed persons.

"Names of the cargo vessel and its owner could not be known. So, the case has been filed against unnamed persons. Now, police will trace the cargo vessel and its owner," said Babu Lal Baidya, assistant director of BIWTA at Narayanganj Launch Terminal, who lodged the case.

On Monday, Babu Lal told journalists that they came to know after a primary investigation that the passenger launch was rammed by tanker SKL-3.

Asked about it, he yesterday told The Daily Star that he had learnt the name of the vessel from others. But it was not confirmed.

In the case statement, the plaintiff alleged that a cargo vessel was being operated recklessly, said Dipok Chandra Saha, officer-in-charge of Bandar Police Station.

Scientists discover X-rays coming from Uranus

INDEPENDENT.CO.UK

Astronomers have detected X-rays from Uranus for the first time, in findings that could help them learn more about the seventh planet from the sun.

In a study published by the Journal of Geophysical Research, scientists from the UK, France, America and China said they had detected X-rays emitted by the planet thanks to visuals taken by Nasa's Chandra X-ray Observatory, a space telescope.

They studied observations taken in 2002 and 2017 by the Chandra observatory, detecting X-rays

RIDE SHARING SERVICE

Bikers stage demo, urge govt to lift restrictions

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Motorcyclists, who operate their vehicles under different ride-sharing services, staged demonstrations in different parts of the city yesterday.

They demanded the continuation of their services from the authorities amid the weeklong restriction imposed to contain the spread of coronavirus.

The protesters alleged that although the government allowed different means of public transport to ply on the city roads from yesterday, many of them were barred to carry passengers by on-duty traffic police.

Furthermore, traffic police imposed a "fine" to different amounts when they tried to come out and carry passengers only after experiencing economic hardship in the past couple of days, they added.

Around noon, more

COUP IN MYANMAR

Security forces kill 13 protesters

Chinese-owned factory set ablaze; group compiles junta rights abuse dossier

AGENCIES

Myanmar troops fired at anti-coup protesters yesterday, killing at least 13 people and wounding several, media said, as a series of small blasts hit the commercial capital Yangon and a Chinese-owned factory was set on fire.

The country's military ruler said the civil disobedience movement was "destroying" Myanmar.

More than 580 people have been killed, according to an activist group, in the turmoil in Myanmar since a February 1 coup that ended a brief period of civilian-led democracy. Nationwide protests and strikes have persisted since then despite the military's use of lethal force to quell the opposition.

Security forces opened fire on protesters in the northwestern town of Kale yesterday as they demanded the restoration of Aung San Suu Kyi's civilian government, domestic media said.

A resident of the area and the Myanmar Now news outlet said 11 people were killed and several wounded.

Reuters could not independently verify the toll.

Two protesters were killed in the town of Bago near Yangon, Myanmar Now said.

At least seven small explosions were heard in Yangon, including at government buildings, a military hospital and a shopping mall, residents said. There were no casualties and no claims of responsibility.

The US Embassy in Yangon said it had received reports
