

Here's hoping

"I still believe it should have been held in February when things were looking a bit more stable. This is really frustrating," said Monirul, also the executive director of Academic and Creative Publishers' Association of Bangladesh.
Another thing this year's fair dearly missed is the writers' presence. The fair is usually a place for writers to meet with their readers, a place for exchanging views with each other. But this was difficult due to social distancing requirements. Moreover, many writers living abroad couldn't come home to be there for their book's publication.
Poet Piash Mazid said, "I could only get very little interaction with the readers. The congregation of writers and readers that we are used to were sorely missed this year."
Mithun Raksham, writer and publisher of Thokbirim, said, "Every year, indigenous researchers and literary enthusiasts come here all the way from Rangamati and Mymensingh to buy from my stall. But due to the lockdown, almost none of them could come this year."

Most visitors were also frustrated. From the delayed start to the frequent timing changes, they had a lot to complain about when this correspondent spoke to them.
"This year's fair felt underwhelming. It was short, and there was no festive feel to it," said regular Boi Mela visitor Suraiya Jasmine. "Besides, the timing was odd -- noon is no time to visit a book fair in summer."
However, some also praised the initiative.
Shahadat Apurbo, a private job holder, said, "Despite everything, the book fair was held with safety protocols in place. We were able to visit the fair, buy some books and spend time with family and friends. Hopefully, things will change for the better and the next year's Boi Mela will be bigger, better and free of Covid-19."
Contacted, Bangla Academy

Director General Habibullah Siraji said, "Everything is different due to the pandemic. But through all the constraints, we did manage to organise the fair."
"There were expectations from many sides, and we tried our best to address them. We gave it our 100 percent," he said.
This year, 834 units of space were allocated to 540 publishing houses and organisations to set up their stalls and pavilions.
The authorities allotted 154 units on Bangla Academy premises to 107 organisations, and 680 units in Suhrawardy Udyan to 433 organisations.
Considering the Covid-19 social-distancing requirements, the land earmarked for this year's fair was expanded to 1,500,000 square feet from the usual 900,000 square feet.
A total of 2,640 new titles hit the fair this year with 64 of them on the last day, according to Bangla Academy.

Of all the patients that our photojournalist saw coming in to the Chattogram Medical College Hospital yesterday between 11:30am and 12:40pm, nearly half were children. Failing to avail services at other hospitals, many rushed to the hospital from different parts of the division to seek treatment, oxygen support or ICU facility.

according to the infection rate of a particular area.
In order to curb transmission, Zillur said it is of paramount importance to halt inter-district public transportation services for a limited period, impose strong time restrictions on marketplaces, and ban recreational public gatherings.
He stressed on work from home practices for both public and private offices, and operating factories with residential workers.
"In all cases, strict enforcement of health protocols needs to be ensured."

Pointing out that movement restriction will take its toll on the poor, Zillur said last year, initiatives were taken to provide emergency assistance to the poor, but there were leakages in distribution.
"It's important to keep that experience in mind while taking new initiatives. Besides, disbursement of existing safety-net support cannot be held up and needs to be expedited," he added.
Raising the question of accountability, he said the health ministry needs to overcome the crisis of credibility and trust for combating the second wave effectively.

Healthy Bangladesh proposed establishing a high-powered national public-private monitoring body to monitor the outcomes of policy measures on health and economy.
The body will give suggestion on remedial measures.
Healthy Bangladesh called for urgent expansion of Covid-19 hospital services and gave emphasis on civic responsibility.
"It is impossible to combat Covid-19 without social awareness and responsible behaviour of every citizen," he said.

had failed to get his groceries for two consecutive days. But he'd still rather buy from here, simply because of the relatively lower pricing.
But he lamented the shortage of stocks and number of trucks. "How it is possible for 10 trucks to provide for 1.7 million people?" asked Tohidul.
Atia Begum, standing next in line to him, said, "We have to stand in line for an hour or so. But once we reach the end, we end up getting fewer goods at higher prices."
"What makes it even harder is that the goods come in a package. If you don't buy onion, it doesn't give oil. But I don't need big onions like the ones sold here, I need cooking oil," she said with frustration.
Customers also alleged that the trucks are not going to places where they are needed most.
As an example, they cited how only one truck goes to Khalishpur, one of the lowest-income areas, whereas Shibbari Mor, a more affluent area, also gets one truck. They said this misallocation does not help the people of the city.
According to TCB sources, lentils are being sold at Tk 55 per kg, sugar at Tk 55, gram flour at Tk 55, onion (Turkey) at Tk 20 per kg, and soybean oil at Tk 100 per litre.
In comparison, at a kitchen market in the city's Moylapota area, sugar was being sold at Tk 70 per kg, lentils at Tk 80 to 85 per kg, local lentils at Tk 120, gram flour at Tk 80, local onions at Tk 40, and soybean oil at Tk 140 per litre.
Contacted, Anisur Rahman, head of TCB's Khulna regional office, told The Daily Star that they were conducting operations according to instructions from Dhaka's TCB headquarters. "I have informed the higher ups of the people's demands. Maybe they are considering increasing the supply of goods," he said.

"Founding Father of the Nation", but the court committed an error in its observations by using "Founding Fathers". The error is liable to be reviewed or expunged, it adds.
Article 96 deals with formation and functions of SJC. The article was scrapped when the 16th amendment was introduced.
In the full text of the verdict that upheld the scrapping of the amendment, the Supreme Court said the provision of SJC was reinstated in the constitution.
It also said the independence of the judiciary was undermined and curtailed by making the judiciary "vulnerable to a process of removal of the judges by parliament".
The procedure entailed in the SJC is more in consonance with the spirit of the constitutional scheme, the SC observed in the full verdict. The provision of SJC was not only for the interest of justice, but also for the independence of the judiciary, the court said.
The scrapping of the 16th constitutional amendment was widely discussed among ruling party politicians as the SC, in its full verdict, made observations critical of the then prevailing political culture.

"The prime minister-pledged money did not reach the distressed due to red tape and bureaucratic failure. They show accounts that exist only on papers," the statement added.
The party proposed that people's representatives should play a vital role during the pandemic.
It proposed for giving responsibilities to people's representatives to make the "lockdown effective" and allocation of Tk 3,000 crore more for workers and poor people besides the unspent money allocated earlier.
The party also proposed to ensure accountabilities of the organisation that is failing to provide Covid-19 vaccines in due time and explore an alternative source of vaccine and lower the vaccination age to 18 years.
The government should take responsibilities of treatment and health services of people, it further added.
