COMMUNAL POLITICS

If stronger in India, stronger here too

Say speakers at webinar on West Bengal polls

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A stronger divisive communal brand of politics in India will also make the same brand of politics stronger in Bangladesh, discussants said yesterday.

Speaking at a webinar, they urged all South Asian countries to work for secularism and against the divisive politics of religion.

Study Group on Regional Affairs organised the webinar on election results in neighbouring Indian states of West Bengal and Assam and its probable impact on Bangladesh.

Jahangirnagar University Prof Anu Muhammad said any kind of political, economic and cultural change in India has an impact on Bangladesh as it is the closest neighbour and friend.

If the Bharatiya Janata Party's (BJP) politics of Hindu nationalism get stronger in India, religion-based politics will be stronger in Bangladesh, he said.

Anu Muhammad said they get a chance of discussing Indian elections, but it is unfortunate that "election in Bangladesh has been sent to museum".

Rana Dasgupta, general secretary of Bangladesh Hindu Buddhist Christian Oikya Parishad, said although the Trinamool Congress won the West Bengal assembly election for the third time in a row, the BJP gained a huge success in this election.

He said the BJP bagged only three seats in this assembly polls in 2016 and it increased to 82 this time.

The BJP-led alliance won Assam assembly polls for the second time in a row.

He said all have to think about how to stop the rise of communal politics in India. "We have to ensure that no minorities leave Bangladesh for India. It is probably a reason for the rise of communal politics in some places of India."

Shamsher Mobin Chowdhury, former foreign secretary and ambassador, said it was a huge achievement for BJP in the latest assembly election in West Bengal. But the BJP got success in less number of seats in comparison to the last Lok Sabha election. "It proves that conscious Indian cast their votes, understanding the difference of issues of Lok Sabha and Vidhan Sabha elections," he said.

The Bangladesh government's reaction to the elections was noticeable. It congratulated only Trinamool Congress chief Mamata Banerjee after she was sworn in as the chief minister of West Bengal, but did not yet send any congratulatory message to those who won in Assam, he said.

"The use of communalism in Indian politics has been increasing over the last 10 to 15 years. Many said communalism suffered a blow in West Bengal, but it is not sure whether it is permanent or temporary," Shamsher Mobin said.

Dhaka University Professor Amena Mohsin said she was worried because she was seeing the communalisation of politics across the globe, including India and Bangladesh.

She said by visiting a shrine of "Matua" community in Gopalganj's Orakandi on the first day of West Bengal election, Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi just took the domestic agenda to another country. It was not right.

Journalist Amir Khasru, coordinator of Study Group on Regional Affairs, moderated the webinar.

Third arrest in manhunt after Maldives bomb attack

AFP, Malé

A third man has been arrested following the attempted assassination of Maldives' former president Mohamed Nasheed, police said yesterday, as they renewed an appeal for more information about another suspect.

The democracy pioneer and climate activist was seriously hurt after a bomb attack in the capital Male on Thursday night that also injured a British national and two others, which police have blamed on "religious extremists".

"We can confirm that a third individual has been arrested in connection with the May 6 attack early today," police said in a statement.

No further details about the man were released.

Police also appealed for more information about another man seen in the area where a motorcycle that the bomb had been rigged to was parked.

The owner of the motorcycle as well as another man were arrested on Saturday.

The bomb detonated as Nasheed walked to his car.

Family members tweeted that the 53-year-old ex-president, now the parliament's speaker, remained in the intensive care unit of a hospital.

Several hundred passengers crowded closely together, braving the scorching sun and the risk of Covid-19 infection, as they wait at the Shimulia ferry terminal in Munshiganj yesterday. Inset, people negotiating a fare with a private car driver near Kanchpur bridge in Narayanganj. People were paying up to Tk 1,000 to go to Cumilla in this way.

Khaleda can't go abroad

will allow Khaleda to travel abroad for better treatment, the sources told this newspaper.

Earlier on May 5, Shamim met the home minister at his Dhanmondi residence and handed him the application.

The home boss later told reporters that the prime minister is very considerate on such issues, and the request was being considered positively.

WHAT LAW MINISTER SAYS
Talking to this newspaper yesterday afternoon, Law Minister Anisul Huq said, "I gave the opinion that Khaleda Zia's jail sentence has been suspended as per Section-401 of the CrPC on condition that she cannot go abroad. Now there is no scope for relaxing the condition. She cannot go abroad for treatment."

He further said the jail sentence was suspended after her family submitted an application in this regard.

"The application was disposed of the moment the government granted it on the condition that she cannot go abroad. And therefore, there is no scope for the government to change its decision," observed Anisul, also a criminal law expert.

Section-401 of the CrPC says,

"When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the government may at any time without conditions or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his/her sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he/she has been sentenced."

In reply to a query, the minister said he didn't know whether any convicted person was allowed to go abroad in the past for any purpose.

Earlier in the morning, the law minister sent the opinion to the home ministry through an official of his ministry.

Amid the coronavirus outbreak, the government on March 25 last year released Khaleda, suspending her jail sentence for six months. Later, the suspension was extended twice and separate notifications were issued to that effect.

The notifications said Khaleda will receive treatment at home and she cannot go abroad.

The BNP chief landed in jail on February 8, 2018, after a special court sentenced her to five years in prison in the Zia Orphanage Trust corruption case. On October 30, 2018, the High Court enhanced her punishment to 10 years.

WHAT LAWYERS SAY

Contacted, Khaleda's lawyer Khandaker Mahbub Hossain said the law ministry's view goes against the law.

The government will be held responsible if something bad happens to Khaleda, he said.

About the government decision, Mahbub said, "It is completely illegal. There is no provision in the existing law which bars a convicted person from going abroad."

Meanwhile, Khurshid Alam Khan, counsel for the Anti-Corruption Commission, welcomed the government decision.

He said the government doesn't have the authority to allow any convicted person to go abroad.

PARTY REACTION

The BNP has voiced anger and disappointment at the government's rejection of the plea for permitting the party chief to go abroad for better treatment.

BNP Secretary General Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir said the government had pardoned a convict, who was sentenced to death, and allowed the person to go abroad but it didn't show any humane gesture or decency to Khaleda.

The reasons that the government cited for rejecting the plea are illogical, he told reporters after visiting Khaleda at Evercare Hospital in the capital.

Asked about Khaleda's health, Fakhru said her condition was better yesterday. She had no difficulties in breathing without oxygen support, which was a sign of improvement.

RELATIVES DISAPPOINTED

Talking to this newspaper, one of Khaleda's close relatives expressed disappointment at the government decision.

The relative, however, was hopeful that the prime minister could still make it possible for Khaleda to go abroad for better treatment.

The 76-year-old BNP chief, who tested positive for Covid-19 for the second time on April 24, was admitted to Evercare Hospital on April 27 for a thorough check-up.

She was later shifted to the Coronary Care Unit of the hospital with breathing difficulties.

On April 28, a 10-member medical board, headed by Prof Shahabuddin Talukder, was formed to oversee her treatment.

Khaleda first tested positive for Covid on April 11 as eight people at her residence were infected with the virus.

Virus scare lost in home rush in them were seen leaving for the northern and southern districts.

People of low-income groups were seen boarding smaller vehicles like human hauliers and auto-rickshaws to get to the ferry terminals. Many even got on trucks and pick-ups.

Displaying indifference to the need for physical distancing, transport workers were cashing in on people's desperation and charging them extra to take them on.

Talking to this newspaper, many passengers said they were being charged almost double the usual fare.

Shawon Rahman, with five of his family members, went to Amin Bazar from Islambagh to go to Kushtia.

Talking to this correspondent, Shawon said he earns Tk 9,000 a month. He left his place in the capital with Tk 10,000 to take home, but feared that he may have to spend it all on the journey to pay the fare for his family of five.

As more and more people left using whatever means available, pressure of vehicles on the highways increased significantly in the afternoon.

A 20km tailback formed on the Dhaka-Aricha highway, stretching from the Savar bus stand to Gabtoli bridge area, reports UNB.

Despite a ban on inter-district operation, long-haul buses were seen on the Dhaka-Tangail highway.

Our Pabna correspondent reports that several hundred Dhaka-bound passenger buses were stranded since yesterday morning at different points of Bangabandhu Bridge West Zone after police barred them. As the congestion increased, police released the buses.

Mosaddek Hossain, officer-in-charge of Bangabandhu Bridge West Police Station, said a total of 26,223 vehicles crossed the Bangabandhu Bridge between Saturday and 6:00am Sunday.

Vehicles heading for the northern districts from Dhaka, Narayanganj and Gazipur were on the rise, he added.

RUSH AT FERRY TERMINAL

Although ferry services on the Paturia-Daulatdia and Shimulia-Kathalbaria routes, gateways to 21 south and southwestern districts of the country, have been suspended during daytime, thousands thronged the Shimulia terminal yesterday morning. The crowd only increased as the day wore on.

To manage the crowd, two ferries carrying a total of around 5,000 passengers along with some ambulances carrying patients crossed the Padma river yesterday, said Md Hilal Uddin, Mawa traffic police inspector.

People were falling over themselves in order to get on the ferries. In the first ferry, around 7:45am, it only took a few minutes for the vessel to fill up with passengers. The back of the ferry was so crowded that it could not depart. Finally, police charged the crowd with truncheons to control the situation.

In the afternoon, hundreds of passengers were waiting for a ferry. But local administration told them to go back.

Munshiganj Deputy Commissioner Moniruzzaman Talukder said daytime ferry services will be completely closed, even to ambulances, which have now been asked to use the Jamuna bridge. At night, only goods-laden vehicles will pass.

At least 350 goods-laden vehicles were waiting to cross the river in the Shimulia terminal area.

Around 9:45pm, hundreds of passengers and some ambulances got on three more ferries along with the goods-laden vehicles and left Shimulia terminal, reports our Munshiganj correspondent.

Some people boarded trawlers to cross the Padma river from near the terminal. Police then conducted a drive, seized 12 trawlers and detained 20 of its drivers and helpers from different points near Shimulia for violating government instructions, said Mawa Naval Police In-charge Sirajul Kabir.

A BGB platoon was deployed a kilometre inland of Shimulia terminal to control the rush of holidaymakers. Personal vehicles and trucks were not being allowed to board the ferries.

At Paturia, five ferries operated to transport ambulances with patients and hundreds of people, reports our Manikganj correspondent, adding that no BGB team was seen in the terminal area yesterday but a police team was deployed there.

SHOPPING MALLS PACKED, ROADS CROWDED

In the capital, shopping centres and malls were seen full of customers.

Visiting some major shopping malls and markets in Dhaka -- New Market, Chandni Chawk, Gausia, Noor Mansion, Chandrima Super Market, Bangabazar, Jamuna Future Park and Bashundhara City Mall -- yesterday, The Daily Star correspondents found customers pouring into shops from 10:00am.

At most shopping centres, maintaining health and safety rules appeared a big challenge due to the heavy flow of customers.

There was not enough space inside most shops to maintain physical distancing. Shops of some popular brands were crowded with shoppers while there were queues to enter few outlets.

During iftar, people were seen sitting in groups on the floors of Bashundhara City to have their meals.

In Gulistan and New Market areas, thousands were seen doing their Eid shopping on streets where no health rules were maintained.

Yesterday, heavy traffic congestion was seen on Mirpur Road, Technical area, New Market, Elephant Road, Bangla Motor, Panthapath, Farmgate and Karwan Bazar areas.

Traffic police said the crowd was heavier because shoppers and people heading home thronged the streets ahead of Eid.

SPEEDBOAT CRASH

Rab arrests owner in Keraniganj

Bss, Dhaka

Members of Rapid Action Battalion yesterday arrested the owner of the speedboat that caused an accident and claimed 26 lives in the Padma's Kathalbari point at Banglabazar in Madaripur's Shibchar upazila.

The accused Chan Mia was arrested from Keraniganj yesterday morning, said Commander Al Mayeen, director (law and media) of Rab.

On May 3, a total of 26 people, including women and children, were killed when a speedboat rammed a vessel.

Five others, including the driver of the speedboat, were also injured in the accident.

Rab would reveal further details later, the official said.

Covid death toll

1. There has been a steady decline in the number of tests since April 28. The number of testes rose again over 20,000 on May 4, 5, and 6, according to corona.gov.bd.

The daily infection rate fell to 8.19 percent, which was 8.74 percent a day before, according to the DGHS.

The number of coronavirus-related deaths came down to as low as 50 after over a month on Wednesday.

Bangladesh saw 50 deaths on April 1 and it had kept rising since then.

The daily death toll soared to over 100 on April 16-19 and on April 25 but has been falling gradually since then.

According to the DGHS, 3,329 patients recovered in the past 24 hours, putting the recovery rate at 91.81 percent.

The country reported its first coronavirus cases on March 8 last year and the first death on the 18th of that month.

them travelled to Dhaka through various means, probably leaving a trail of the virus along the way.

Asked, Professor Tahmina Shirin, director of IEDCR, said of the those infected with the Indian variant, a few are in hospital and the rest have probably completed quarantine.

She also said it is too early to say whether the variant has already spread in the community.

"We did not find transmission of the Indian variant among the people who do not have travel histories. Even if it may have already spread into the community, detecting that will take time."

She also said they have been conducting contact tracing and some more genome sequencing on people who recently returned from India.

Health officials and experts already warned that the presence of the Indian variant is a matter of serious concern and if people continue to disregard health guidelines, the situation will go out of control at a time when the country is just recovering from the second wave of the pandemic.

"It was predicted that the Indian variant will come to Bangladesh. We were able to delay it. But the way things are now, the situation will be very grave in the coming days," said Professor Nazrul Islam, member of the National Technical Advisory Committee on Covid-19.

Prof Sayedur Rahman, chairman of the pharmacology department at the Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University, said the variant has already spread to many parts of the world.

"So, banning entry from a single country will not bring any fruitful result. Our experience says we tried to ban the entry of people returning from UK to contain the entry of UK variant, but in the meantime the South African variant jolted the country's Covid situation."

Sayedur said there are two options -- either to isolate Bangladesh from the rest of the world, which is not realistic, or to enforce 14-day mandatory institutional quarantine for all incoming passengers from abroad.

"We must strictly enforce quarantine. Many countries in the world are doing so."

Meanwhile, the Civil Aviation Authority of Bangladesh yesterday issued a circular that no passenger from Nepal will be allowed to enter Bangladesh from today.

India's next door neighbour Nepal is facing a severe Covid-19 crisis as the Indian variant began showing up there as well, with a 1,200 percent increase in new infections, triggering hospital shortages, said International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies.

The Nepal government said 44 percent of Covid-19 tests administered had come back positive last weekend. The country is reporting about 20 new cases per 100,000 people, a statistic similar to what India had two weeks ago.

The India variant known as B.1.617 was first detected in October last year.

It is far more transmissible than the virus's previous strains. Very recently, it was reported that the variant has three different subtypes with slightly different genetic mutations.

The subtype, B.1.617.2, found in Bangladesh, appears to spread quicker than two other subtypes detected by scientists in India.

India's crematoriums and burial grounds are overwhelmed by the devastating new surge of infections tearing through the populous country with terrifying speed, depleting the supply of life-saving oxygen to critical levels and leaving patients to die while waiting in line to see doctors, reports AP from New Delhi.

Don't move, stay at your places

Conference Centre (BICC) in the capital.

Joining virtually from her official residence the Gono Bhaban, she called upon the countrymen to be patient thinking of the welfare of own self and family as well, saying "what else damage" will take place if one Eid is not celebrated staying at home.

She added, "So, don't move, stay at the places where you are right now and enjoy the Eid as you wish."

About the new variant of the Covid-19, the premier said a new virus variant has come which is more harmful and fatal, and urged all to wear masks and be careful about it to keep all protected.

She mentioned that people are dying in Bangladesh and elsewhere across the globe due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

The prime minister said, "People are dying regularly in our neighbouring country. It is quite natural that whatever happens to our neighbor, it may have the chance to come to our country. So, we have to be protected well before and we have to move that way."

State Minister for Housing and Public Works Sharif Ahmed, Chairman of the parliamentary standing committee on the ministry Engineer Mosharraf Hossain, MP, its Secretary Shahid Ullah Khandaker, and Chairman of Rajdhani Unnayan Kartripakkha (RAJUK) ABM Amin Ullah Nuri spoke on the occasion from the BICC end.

PM's Principal Secretary Ahmad Kaikus moderated the function from the Gono Bhaban site.

On behalf of the prime minister, the state minister later handed over the plot allotment letters to the people affected by the Purbachal New Town Project.

Earlier, a video documentary on the project was screened on the occasion.
