of the transgender community, said this undoubtedly is a very good initiative, but it should not just remain on paper.
"Also, monitoring is needed to ensure that organisations don't just employ one or two transgender employees to receive tax cut and social appreciation," she added. "This will not help the community as a whole."
Meanwhile, the government also proposed a five percent tax rebate for employers who will recruit 10 percent of their total workforce from persons with disabilities.
However, the announcement could not bring any hope for the group. Shirin Akhter, chairperson of Women with Disabilities Development Foundation (WDDF), said a similar rebate was proposed in the earlier budget, but it could not bring any change to the life and employment situation of persons with disabilities.
"There must be proper monitoring to ensure that the decision will actually help us," said Shirin.
"In addition, this year's budget hasn't brought any change in allowances for persons with disabilities. Can you imagine how will they survive with Tk 750 per month, and even for that, they need to wait for three to six months," she added. "In fact, many need to bribe employees of social welfare department to receive the allowance," she claimed.

Meanwhile yesterday, HC bench of Justice Jahangir Hossain Selim and Justice Mohiuddin Shamim asked lawyers to be careful while placing arguments on rape cases virtually.
The bench said lawyers should remain isolated from other family members while virtually conducting rape cases staying at home as unexpected and abusive words are used in such cases.
The court made the remark while hearing bail petitions filed by accused of some rape and violation cases.
Deputy Attorney General Dr Md Bashir Ullah told the court all should be careful while hearing such cases.
If children and female family members hear descriptions of rape incidents while placing virtual arguments by lawyers, it will create an untoward situation, he said.
Yesterday, HC bench of Justice Md Mozibur Rahman Miah and Justice Md Kamrul Hossain Mollah observed that the trend of recording incidents of rape and torture on women on video and uploading them on social media has become like a pandemic.
There is a law -- the Pornography Control Act, 2012 -- to prevent such acts, but, how many offenders have been punished under this law, the bench questioned.
The HC bench made the question while hearing on a suo moto (voluntary) rule issued in connection with an incident of a gang rape and torture of a woman in Noakhali's Begumganj.
The video footage of the crime, which took place in Eklashpur union on September 2 last year, went viral on social media in the first week of October last year.
On October 5 last year, the HC bench issued a rule asking the government to explain why they should not be directed to take appropriate legal and departmental action against the officials of Begumganj Police Station, including its OC, for their negligence in saving the victim and taking swift action against the perpetrators.
Yesterday, the bench fixed June 10 for further hearing on the rule.

While the two parties are shifting blame on each other, many patients and civil society members alleged that some hospital staffers do not want the machine to be operational all the time, as they have an "unholy alliance" with private diagnostic centres.
"Technical glitches are common for machines, but that cannot be an excuse for a vital test to remain halted for months at a government hospital," said SM Nazer Hossain, central vice president of Consumers Association of Bangladesh. "In private diagnostic centres, technical glitches are addressed within days, but they cannot do it in seven months at a government hospital, which is totally unacceptable."
"Actually, there is an unholy alliance between diagnostic centres and a section of staffers at government hospitals. If a vital test is available at a cheaper cost at government hospitals, people would be uninterested to go to the diagnostic centres," he said. "So, those staffers do not properly maintain the machines at government hospitals."
"There is a lack of monitoring. When we speak against irregularities, we have to face the wrath of the influential syndicate," said Nazer, without mentioning further details about the syndicate.
Contacted, CMCH Director Brig Gen SM Humayun Kabir brushed aside the allegation.
"We got the unit from Central Medical Store Depot [CMSD], which has an agreement with the distribution company for maintaining the machine," he said. "When any technical glitch occurs, we write to CMSD, and they contact the distributor, so it is a long process."
"When we directly contact the distributor, they say due to the agreement, they would come to address the glitch only when CMSD asks them to," he added.
"After much persuasion, engineers from the company came on Monday to fix the issue," said the CMCH director.
