Patuakhali remote island finally gets power

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Patuakhali

About 23,000 consumers of Charkajal and Charbiswas in Rangabali upazila, an isolated island in Patuakhali, are elated to have finally gotten electricity in their homes, 50 years after Bangladesh gained independence.

From Char Fashion Upazila of Bhola, 22,006 consumers of 45 villages of the two unions were brought under electrification through submarine cable through the river.

SM Shahzada, lawmaker from Patuakhali-3 constituency, inaugurated the first line of electrification by lighting electric bulbs at the inaugural function held at the grounds of Charbishwas K Ali College field at 11:00am on Thursday while Chairman of Charbiswas Union Parishad Tofazzal Hossain Babul Munshi was in the chair.

Chairman of Galachipa Upazila Parishad Md Sahin, GM of Bhola Palli Bidyut Samiti in charge of electrification in Charkajal and Charbiswas Unions Abul Basar, Galachipa Upazila Nirbahi Officer Ashish Kumar, Upazila Awami League President Santosh Kumar Dey and General Secretary Golam Mostafa, among others were present at the programme.

GM of Bhola Palli Bidyut Samity Abul Basar, who is in-charge of electrification in Charkajal and Charbiswas Unions, said the power line has been laid at a cost of Tk 165 crore through a submarine cable at the bottom of the river, which is the longest submarine cable line in the country.

A power substation has been set up in Charnujib area and transmission lines have been provided to Charkajal, Charbiswas, Charborhan of Dashmina upazila, Charhadi of Ward 9 of Charmini and Charmontaj of Rangabali upazila in Patuakhali district. There is a 792-km-long transmission line from Bhola via the submarine cable.

Asiya Begum, 65, of Chhotashiba village in Charkajal Union, said, "I used to see electric lights in the city and electric fans. I thought how happy the people of the city were amid bright lights and electric fans when the earthen lamp would light our house. Now, we will also live in luminous house after dusk."

Sabiha Shila, an SSC examinee from Charbishwas Janata Secondary School, said, "We used to study by lighting the earthen lamp. Solar lights were also in place for several years. But it could not meet our need. This time, electricity will revolutionise the ICT, education, agriculture and healthcare sectors in this neglected island area."

"We have computers in our school," said Lamia Akhter, a ninth-grader student at the same school.

"We could not take part in computer training due to lack of electricity. Now we will be able to learn computer," she added.

DIGGING HOLES BY HIGHWAY

Natore court issues suo moto rule

PP says contractor deliberately damaged highway

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Natore

The Natore Senior Judicial Magistrate's Court of Abu Sayeed has ordered a suo moto action to launch an inquiry into the reports published on print and electronic media regarding a breach of contract in the digging of holes beside the Natore-Bogra highway (N-502).

Advocate Sirajul Islam, public prosecutor (PP) at the Natore Judge's Court, quoted the court as saying that after analysing two news items, it became clear to the court that the contractor was digging holes beside the highway, causing long-term damage to government roads. The offense is punishable under Section 431 of the Penal Code.

Moreover, by violating terms of work order, the contractors have committed criminal breach of trust and fraud with the Roads and Highways Department (RHD) and other government institutions including the government itself. The offence is punishable under Sections 406 and 420 of the Penal Code.

The court directed the special superintendent of police (SSP) of the Police Bureau of Investigation (PBI) in Natore to investigate into the case.

The court in its preliminary investigation identified the accused, took statements of witnesses, prepared draft map of the site, seized all the documents related to the project and obtained measurements of the total amount of soil (in cubic feet) removed from the side of the government road and an estimation of the extent of the damage.

In this light, the court ordered the investigation officer to conduct a detailed investigation in this regard and obtain statements from representatives concerned at the daily Prothom Alo and Ekattor Television.

The court also directed the executive engineer of RHD in Natore to provide all-out cooperation in the investigation.

a freedom fighter where the UNO concerned is female."

The member said usually women do not take part in namaz-e-janaza. Many in society raise questions about this. Therefore, in case of giving the guard of honour to a freedom fighter in jurisdictions where the UNO is female, it is necessary to give the charge to a male officer.

In that case, assistant commissioner (land), upazila education officer, upazila agriculture officer or any such officer could be kept as alternative persons for the job.

Shajahan Khan, chief of parliamentary body, said ruling AL MP Rafiqul Islam also raised the matter of not giving the guard of honour at night.

"For this reason, the committee has recommended giving the guard of honor during the day. UNOs usually do the job," he added.

He also said religious issues are also involved with namaz-e-janaza. It is forbidden for women to participate in janaza.

The committee then made the recommendations, meeting sources said.

Shajahan said the committee has asked the ministry to make a decision in this regard in line with the rules and regulations.

Asked, Salma Ali, president of Bangladesh National Woman Lawyers Association, told The Daily Star that the decision of finding alternative persons to give the guard of honour instead by female UNOs should be taken following necessary discussions and in line with the norms and customs.

In the meeting, the parliamentary body also suggested collecting definitions of freedom fighters from different countries of the world. International rules should be followed in case of giving government jobs to the next generation of identified Razakars, it said.

The meeting also decided to send a summary to the Cabinet Division to resolve the incidents related to hoisting the national flag by anti-Liberation elements on different days in some places.

Committee members Liberation War Affairs Minister AKM Mozammel Huq, Razi Uddin Ahmed, Kazi Firoz Rashid, Waresat Hossain Belal, and Moslem Uddin Ahmed, among others, attended the meeting.

Djokovic

Tsitsipas recovered from a break down to win the opening set in a tiebreak before he raced through the second set.

But Djokovic was determined to ensure that all the effort he put in to beat 13-time Roland Garros champion Nadal in the semifinals did not go to waste and he started to assert his authority to win the third set.

Before the start of the fourth set, the 22-year-old Greek requested the trainer to come on court to manipulate and massage his lower back.

But that intervention failed to revive Tsitsipas' fortunes and Djokovic was virtually unchallenged in the fourth set.

The Serb broke decisively for a 2-1 lead in the decider before securing the win in four hours and 11 minutes that made him the first man since tennis turned professional in 1968 to win all four Grand Slams titles at least twice.

only underecords its likely fragility.

Addressing parliament before Bennett was sworn in, a combative Netanyahu said: "If we are destined to go into the opposition, we will do so with our heads held high until we can topple it."

That will happen, 71-year-old Netanyahu added, "sooner than people think."

The new government, formed after an inconclusive March 23 election, plans largely to avoid sweeping moves on hot-button international issues such as policy toward the Palestinians, and to focus on domestic reforms.

Palestinians were unmoved by the change of administration, predicting that Bennett, a former defence chief who advocates annexing parts of the occupied West Bank, would pursue the same right-wing agenda as Likud party leader Netanyahu.

Israel's longest-serving leader, Netanyahu was prime minister since 2009, after a first term from 1996 to 1999.

HC asks for documents malign and undermine the solemnity of the National Mourning Day of August 15 should not be declared illegal.

Secretaries to the ministries of home affairs and health and family planning, inspector general of police, commissioner of Dhaka Metropolitan Police, and officer-in-charge of Gulshan Police Station are respondents to the rule.

The HC bench of Justice M Enayetur Rahim and Justice Sardar Md Rashed Jahangir came up with the order and rule after hearing a writ petition filed by Supreme Court lawyer Md Mamun-or-Rashid challenging the legality of celebrating birthday by Khaleda Zia on August 15.

In the petition, the SC lawyer said it is a matter of great distress for the nation that Khaleda Zia has mentioned her date of birth as being August 15, 1946 in her present passport with the ulterior motive and mala fide intention of maligning the National Mourning Day when Father of the Nation Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman and most of his family members were brutally killed in 1975.

The petitioner said Khaleda Zia's birthday is recorded as: September 5, 1946 in her SSC certificate; August 4, 1944 in her marriage registration; August 5, 1946 in her machine readable passport issued in 2001; and May 8, 1946 in her Covid-19 test report released on May 8, 2021.

Lawyer Nahid Sultana Juthi appeared for the writ petitioner while Deputy Attorney Generals Arobinda Kumar Roy and Bipul Bagmar supported the writ petition.

BNP Joint Secretary General and former Supreme Court Bar Association Secretary AM Mahubb Uddin Khokon opposed the writ petition saying the writ petitioner has filed the petition in order to achieve a political gain.

Thousands of people, including Khaleda Zia, were born on August 15, he said, adding it is not for the HC to deal with matters like birthdays.

Two pro-AL contractors

In the footage, a group of contractors carrying firearms was seen arriving at the facility. Among them were Hazi Faruk, science and technology affairs secretary of Pabna Sadar AL; AR Khan Mamun, organising secretary of Pabna Municipality AL; and local Jubo League leader Sheikh Lalu.

"Mamun and Lalu submitted two shotguns to Pabna Police Station. Both guns have proper licenses but no one can brandish firearms to create panic among the people," Masud Alom, additional superintendent of police in Pabna, told the Daily Star.

He added that police were investigating the incident.

Contacted, Anwarul Azim, executive engineer at Pabna PWD, said, "They [the armed contractors] might have done it by mistake. They did not harm anybody or damage anything in the office. So, we didn't file any case."

AL leader Hazi Faruk told The Daily Star that the contractors had "no bad intentions and it was nothing but a mistake."

Meanwhile, the arms showdown at the government office sparked widespread criticism in the district.

Talking to this correspondent, acting president of Pabna AL Rejaur Rahim Lal said, "We don't support such unruly activities. This was not a political incident."

TIB in a statement said this was another example of how the ruling party men have been ruining the competitive tender procedure in development works.

TIB Executive Director Dr Iftekharuzzaman said corruption in the procurement process could cause a loss of 8.5 to 27 percent of the total procurement funds. He demanded exemplary punishment of those involved.

RMG workers take to street

Lenny Apparels Ltd blocked the Nabinagar-Chandra highway in front of the EPZ around 7:30am and started demanding their arrears.

The protestors alleged that the two factories announced the closure of their businesses in January without paying dues to their workers. Amid repeated demonstrations, the authorities paid no heed to it.

According to police, they had to use tear gas and water cannon against the demonstrators as they caused over an 8km-long tailback on both sides of the highway.

SP Asaduzzaman said they repeatedly tried to talk to the protestors and free the busy highway but the demonstrators did not listen to them.

At one stage, after around 45 minutes of road blockade, police fired tear gas and water cannon and brought the situation under control, he added.

At least 10 readymade garment workers were injured during the police attack, said protestors.

Contacted, Kamruzzaman, officer-in-charge of Ashulia Police Station, said the body was sent to Dhaka Medical College Hospital for autopsy.

Contacted, DEPZ's General Manager Abdus Sobhan told The Daily Star that there were about 6,000 workers in the two factories.

Authorities closed the factories last January. The workers of the two factories have already been paid arrears of Tk 45 crore, he said.

Attempts are being made to pay the remaining arrears by selling the two factories. Factories owner and BEPZA are trying together to sell the factories, he added.

There was no due payment date yesterday. Workers gathered in front of the DEPZ this morning by posting on Facebook. They blocked the road, he further added.

"I went in front of them and tried to convince them but the workers continued to protest. Police later removed the workers from the road," he added.

In Chaudhagram, Comilla, a group of freedom fighters under the command of Khaled Mosharraf ambushed Pakistani forces. Pakistan army suffered heavy losses and had to retreat. Snare of Bigo Live runs deep group, administered by Bigo Live officials in Bangladesh.

CID said Saif was the Bangladeshi admin of Bigo Live, Arif used to recruit young girls and have them join in the live streaming, and Nazmul is one of the top agents who sold "Bigo Live Diamonds", a virtual currency, to users. Asma served as the head of admins.

In his LinkedIn profile, Jie Yao introduced himself as the country manager of Bigo Live in Bangladesh. Saif and Asma also introduced themselves as Bigo employees.

Bigo Live is a live streaming platform and Likee is a short video-making and sharing app. Both the apps are owned by Singapore-based BIGO Technology, which was founded in 2014 by David Li and Jason Hu.

CID officials said that young Bangladeshis and expats are targeted by these agents. To gain more followers and subsequently, more cash, a lot of broadcasters get a little raunchy. The Bangladeshi agents recruit five to seven young girls to "go live and lure men" during live streaming.

To join the live streams, its users have to top up "Bigo Live Diamonds" from their Bangladesh based agents. These "diamonds" are digital currency that local agents buy from foreign admins through banks, MFS or hundi, they added.

The broadcaster can earn money after encashing the virtual gifts. If someone is a popular streamer, the followers send her virtual gifts. The streamers, in turn, can stock up these gifts, which can be transformed into "beans".

The more popular the streamer, the more beans they earn. These beans can be encashed for real money, which the app deposits in the streamers' accounts. The current "bean" exchange rate is 210 beans for US $1.

Besides, someone can work on Bigo Live as an official host or recruiter and earn a decent commission on top of the virtual currency.

During the drive, law enforcers seized eight mobile phones, four laptops, seven credit cards, six cheque books, and Tk 50,460 in cash.

The CID official said a case was filed against the arrestees and 50-60 unnamed others under the Digital Security Act and Pornography Act with Paltan Police Station.

After investigation, another case may be filed under the Money Laundering Act. Meanwhile in a statement yesterday, BIGO Technology, which has operations in 20 countries, including Bangladesh, said that they are conducting a thorough review on this case and will work with relevant law enforcement agencies in this regard.

They further said that they will cooperate closely with the law enforcement agencies and the government for upholding regional and national laws and values.

Govt finally moves to set limits

"We may have to hold one more meeting to finalise it [fixing the service life of commercial vehicles]," he said.

In March 2019, a committee, led by transport sector leader Shajahan Khan, made 111 recommendations to curb road accidents and bring discipline in the sector.

Later, the government formed a taskforce headed by the home minister to implement the recommendations.

In its report, the committee, which included transport experts, called for fixing the economic service life of buses, trucks, covered vans and human haulers and stopping operation of over 20-year-old buses and over 25-year-old trucks.

Identifying the plying of old vehicles as a key reason for road accidents, it said on the one hand, such vehicles, specially outdated buses and trucks, go out of order on roads, leading to traffic congestion. And on the other hand, these cause accidents and loss of lives.

The report also pointed out that neighbouring India already fixed the service life of commercial vehicles.

Seeking anonymity, a BRTA official said the government in 2010 issued a circular banning over 20-year-old buses and over 25-year-old trucks in the capital.

Following the decision, most of such vehicles were removed from the city roads and put into service on district and inter-district roads, the official pointed out.

Khondaker Enayet Ullah, secretary general of Bangladesh Road Transport Owners Association, claimed that no over 20-year-old bus runs in the capital.

"But I am not sure whether any truck [used for more than 25 years] operates or not [in the capital]," he told this newspaper yesterday. "A meeting has been called and I hope the service life of commercial vehicles will be fixed."

Replying to a query, he said, "I think there should be fixed service life for vehicles. There was no opposition from transport owners in setting service life of vehicles... This issue did not come to the fore in the past."

Prof Md Hadiuzzaman, director of Accident Research Institute at Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology, said upon expiry of service life, chassis, brake system and axle of such vehicles weaken and pose risk of road accident.

Besides, such vehicles cause environmental pollution as those emit harmful gases, including carbon dioxide.

Referring to a recent study, he said emission of harmful gases from outdated vehicles is responsible for 15 percent air pollution in the capital.

He further said the authorities should not fix the economic service life of vehicles only on the basis of years of service because the service life of vehicles varies depending on their manufacturers. Mileage of a vehicle should also be considered.

He also opposed setting the service life of buses at 20 years as that of buses manufactured by renowned companies usually remains between 10 and 12 years given that those are operated on good roads.

A total of 46.49 lakh vehicles were registered with the BRTA across the country till February this year. Of those, 16.52 lakh were registered in the capital.

However, many unregistered vehicles are in operation all over the country, said people involved in the transport sector.
