

Biden: Putin 'a worthy adversary'

AFP, Brussels
US President Joe Biden on Monday assured his NATO allies that he would lay down "red lines" to his Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin at their meeting today.
"I'm not looking for conflict with Russia, but that we will respond if Russia continues its harmful activities," he said. Biden also called Putin "tough" and "a worthy adversary" ahead of their hotly anticipated meeting in Geneva today.
In the summit communiqué, the leaders told Russia that there would be no quick return to "business as usual".
Russia's military build-up and provocative behaviour on NATO's eastern frontier "increasingly threaten the security of the Euro-Atlantic area and contribute to instability along NATO borders and beyond," it added.

Declares Nato despite 'right balance' calls from European allies; Beijing slams exaggeration

NATO leaders have declared China a constant security challenge and said the Chinese are working to undermine global order, a message in sync with President Joe Biden's efforts to get allies to speak out with a more unified voice against China's trade, military and human rights practices.

In a summit statement, the leaders said that China's goals and "assertive behavior present systemic challenges to the rules-based international order and to areas relevant to alliance security."

While the 30 heads of state and government avoided calling China a rival, they expressed concern about what they said were its "coercive policies," the opaque ways it is modernizing its armed forces and its use of disinformation.

They called on Beijing to uphold its international commitments and to act responsibly in the international system. Beijing yesterday, a day after the summit, accused NATO of "creating confrontations".

A statement from the Chinese Mission to the European Union called for NATO to "view China's development rationally, stop exaggerating various forms of 'China threat theory' and not use China's legitimate interests and legal rights as excuses for manipulating group politics".

The language in the summit's final communiqué, which will set the path for alliance policy, came a day after the Group of Seven (G7) rich nations issued a statement on human rights in China and Taiwan that Beijing said slandered its reputation.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is an alliance of European and North American countries formed after World War II as a bulwark against Russian aggression.

NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg said China's growing military presence from the Baltics to Africa meant nuclear-armed NATO had to be prepared.

Stoltenberg also said the leaders had agreed to increase their contributions to the alliance's common budget. The vast bulk of military spending in NATO is handled separately by member countries. The new Brussels communiqué states plainly that the NATO nations "will engage China with a view to defending the security interests of the alliance."

However, some allies bristled at the NATO effort to speak out on China.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel said NATO's decision to name China as a threat "shouldn't be overstated" because Beijing, like Russia, is also a partner in some areas. China is Germany's top trading partner and is heavily dependent on Russia in fulfilling the country's energy needs.

Merkel noted that "when you look at the cyber threats, the hybrid threats, when you look at the cooperation between Russia and China, you can't just ignore China."

But she added that it was important to "find the right balance" as China is also a partner on many issues.

France's President Emmanuel Macron urged the alliance not to let China distract it from what he saw as more pressing issues facing NATO, including the fight against terrorism and security issues related to Russia.

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson said there were risks and rewards with Beijing. "I don't think anybody around the table wants to descend into a new Cold War with China," he said.

China minorities targeted in forced organ harvesting

Say UN rights experts; Beijing slams 'clumsy lies'

AFP, Geneva

UN rights experts have said they had "credible information" that detainees from minority communities in China may be being subjected to forced organ harvesting, a claim fiercely rejected by Beijing.

The 12 independent experts, who are mandated by the United Nations but do not speak on its behalf, said in a statement on Monday that they were "extremely alarmed" by the allegations.

Detained members of minority communities appeared to have been forcibly subjected to blood tests and organ examinations such as ultrasound and x-rays, without informed consent, said the UN experts.

This was not something other detainees were required to undergo.

The exam results were then registered in a database of living organ sources for transplants, the experts added.

Liu Yuyin, a spokesman for the Chinese mission in Geneva, condemned the experts for using "disinformation". "We are deeply alarmed that the special procedure mandate holders in question, lacking rudimentary thinking capability and judgement, have fallen for those clumsy lies," he said in a statement.

UN rights experts had previously raised concerns about alleged forced organ harvesting from prisoners with the Chinese government back in 2006 and 2007, they pointed out.

Beijing had not at that time provided sufficient data on questions regarding the sources of organs for transplants.

5 Afghan polio vaccinators shot dead

AFP, Jalalabad

At least five polio workers were shot dead in eastern Afghanistan yesterday, officials said, in the area's second attacks on vaccinators in less than three months.

The workers were gunned down in three separate locations within hours in a "coordinated attack", Nangarhar provincial police spokesman Farid Khan said blaming the attacks on the Taliban. Pakistan Health ministry confirmed the attacks. The Taliban denied responsibility.

The Taliban and religious leaders often tell communities that vaccines are a Western conspiracy aimed at sterilising Muslim children, and they also suspect immunisation drives are used to spy on militant activities.

DELTA COVID-19 VARIANT IN UK

2 vaccine doses mostly prevent hospitalization

AFP, Londres

Two doses of Covid-19 vaccines are "highly effective" in preventing hospital admission with the Delta variant, Public Health England said on Monday.

Scientists said two jabs of the Pfizer/BioNTech vaccine stopped the need for in-patient treatment in 96 percent of cases. With a double dose of the Oxford/AstraZeneca shot, the rate was 92 percent, PHE added.

The findings were published as Britain grapples with a surge in coronavirus cases, most of which were of the Delta strain, which first emerged in India.

The government, which began a mass-vaccination programme with the Pfizer/BioNTech jab in December last year, is pushing for more people to get two jabs.

PHE said the vaccine effectiveness for the Delta variant is comparable to that for the Alpha strain. Head of immunisation Mary Ramsay said: "These hugely important findings confirm that the vaccines offer significant protection against hospitalisation from the Delta variant."

Further investigations were under way to determine the level of protection against death from the Delta variant, PHE said, but added that it was expected to be "high".

Simon Kolstoe, senior lecturer in evidence-based healthcare at the University of Portsmouth, said the inoculation programme was clearly working. Nearly 57 percent of the UK's adult population has had two doses, according to government statistics.

However, Prime Minister Boris Johnson delayed his plans to lift most remaining Covid-19 restrictions by a month on Monday, warning that thousands more people might die if he did nothing because of the rapid spread of the more infectious Delta variant.

Under the final stage of a plan outlined by Johnson in February, he had hoped to lift most social restrictions on June 21, meaning pubs, restaurants, nightclubs and other hospitality venues could fully reopen.

That much-anticipated step was pushed back to July 19. "I think it is sensible to wait just a little longer," Johnson told a news conference. "As things stand, and on the evidence that I can see right now, I'm confident that we will not need more than four weeks."

On Monday, Britain recorded 7,742 new COVID-19 cases and three deaths.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Attack on Canadian Muslims: suspect charged with terrorism

Canada is pressing terrorism charges against a man accused of mowing down a Muslim family with a pickup truck, prosecutors said Monday, in an attack denounced as "terrorist" by Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. Four members of the Afzaal family -- a man and his wife, their teenage daughter and his mother -- were out for a walk in London, Ontario, on June 6, when a truck driver struck them on purpose, according to authorities. Prosecutors revealed in a brief hearing that they were adding terrorism charges to the four counts of premeditated murder and one of attempted murder leveled last week against 20-year-old Nathaniel Veltman, 20. The attack has fueled debate about the prevalence of Islamophobia in Canada, and heightened fears within the Muslim community that outward signs of religious affiliation can make a person a target.

Drug war: Duterte will not cooperate with ICC probe

Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte will "never cooperate" with an International Criminal Court probe into the country's deadly drug war, his spokesman said yesterday, branding the process "legally erroneous". Outgoing ICC chief prosecutor Fatou Bensouda on Monday asked judges at the world's only permanent war crimes court to authorise an investigation into allegations that Philippine police unlawfully killed as many as tens of thousands of civilians between 2016 and 2019. Duterte was elected in 2016 on a campaign promise to get rid of the country's drug problem, and he openly ordered police to kill drug suspects if their lives were in danger. The Philippines left the ICC in 2019 after the court launched a preliminary examination into the war on drugs.

AstraZeneca hits snag in Covid drug development

Covid vaccine-maker AstraZeneca yesterday revealed it had hit a setback in trials of a treatment for the coronavirus. The drug, made from a combination of two antibodies, failed its main goal to treat Covid-19 symptoms in exposed patients, AstraZeneca said in a statement. The treatment has been undergoing phase 3 or final clinical trials to assess its safety and efficacy. AstraZeneca said that 1,121 unvaccinated adults had been exposed to an infected person as part of the trial. Treatment AZD7442 reduced the risk of developing symptoms by only 33 percent -- which was "not statistically significant", it added.

Irreversible warming tipping point may have been triggered

The tipping point for irreversible global warming may have already been triggered, the scientist who led the biggest-ever expedition to the Arctic warned yesterday. "The disappearance of summer sea ice in the Arctic is one of the first landmines in this minefield, one of the tipping points that we set off first when we push warming too far," said Markus Rex, who led the world's biggest mission to the North Pole, an expedition involving 300 scientists from 20 countries, said we might have already stepped on the mine. He said the next year's data is crucial to confirm his fear.

Speaking at the press conference on Sunday, Pori Moni said during the incident Nasir had introduced himself as a "friend" of Inspector General of Police Benazir Ahmed, the president of Dhaka Boat Club.

Following his arrest on Monday, Nasir, also a presidium member of Jatiya Party, claimed that he was framed.

Pori Moni yesterday went to the DB office at 3:45pm and talked with officials till 6:15pm.

"I am mentally refreshed. Everything worked very quickly and the accused have already been arrested," she told journalists after the meeting.

"Everything took place like a magic... I have regained my strength seeing everyone's love for me."

Although a relative of Pori Moni said DB officials had called her to their office to record her statement over the attempted rape and murder directly, DB Joint Commissioner Harun said she visited the office to thank them over the arrest of the accused.

The DB official said they talked in detail about the case.

"We assured her that we will ensure a fair investigation and those involved in the incident will not be spared," Harun told reporters.

Meanwhile, a Dhaka court yesterday placed Nasir and Omi on seven-day remand each in a case filed under the Narcotics Control Act.

Detectives on Monday arrested the businessmen along with three young women, who are said to be members of a DJ group, with yaba tablets, foreign liquor and beer from an Uttara flat in the capital.

Dhaka Metropolitan Magistrate Nivana Khair Jesi placed each of the three women -- Lipi Akter, Sumi Akter, and Nazma Ameen Bristy -- on three-day remand each in the narcotics case.

DB Inspector Udoy Kumar Mondol, also the investigation officer of the case, produced the five before the court with 10-day remand prayer for each.

Manik Kumar Sikder, a sub-inspector of DB's Gulshan zonal team, filed the case against the five with Airport Police Station on Monday night after their arrest and the recovery of drugs.

In another development, Savar police yesterday filed an application with another Dhaka court seeking 10-day remand each for Nasir and Omi in the case filed over the attempted rape and murder.

The processing of that remand application will start upon completion of Nasir and Omi's remand in the narcotics case, sources at the court said.

During a hearing yesterday, the court also asked the investigation officer to submit the probe report of the case within July 8.

Kazi Mainul Islam, officer-in-charge of Savar Model Police Station, said as part of the investigation they have visited the boat club and asked its officials to provide a list of people who entered the club -- which is usually open from 11:00am to 11:00pm -- after business hours on June 9.

Replying to a query, he said they were yet to watch the club's CCTV footage.
