No Eid cheer for seasonal rawhide traders

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The government could not stop the rampant waste of rawhide this year too despite fixing a higher price for the animal skins and allowing the export of wet blue for the first time in 30 years.

The squandering of the leather industry's raw material was less this time than in the previous two Eid-ul-Azha, which saw wholesale dumping of the sacrificial animals' skins.

This year, the government fixed Tk 40-45 for per square foot of salt-applied rawhide of cows in Dhaka and Tk 33-37 elsewhere. The prices of salt-applied rawhide of goat would be Tk 14-17 per square foot and female goat skins Tk 12-14.

In Bangladesh, a cow or buffalo's skin is 20 to 25 square feet and a goat's is 4 to 5 square feet. The hide of a cow, the sacrificial animal of choice in Bangladesh, is supposed to fetch at least Tk 800 and the goat's at least Tk 50 this time.

In reality, cows' skins are sold at Tk 200-300 apiece and goats' skins Tk 10-15.

And yet, many seasonal traders and orphanages could not sell the rawhides, with sights of the sacrificial animals' skins being chucked out became all too common in places such as Moulvibazar and Bogura.

As is custom, the amount raised by selling the rawhide of sacrificial cattle during Eid-ul-Azha is distributed among the poor, so the dumping meant the poor were deprived of alms.

Despite his best intentions, Rafikul Islam Sweet, a college teacher in Pabna, found no takers for the rawhide of the bull he bought for Tk 1 lakh.

FOREIGNERS GIVEN WARNING IN DHAKA

Foreigners in Dhaka were warned this week to avoid Chinese restaurants, which apparently became the latest targets for Bangladeshi guerrillas.

The Swadhin Bangla Betar Kendra reported this week that two West Pakistani officers were killed by Mukti Bahini members who threw a bomb into a Chinese restaurant in Dhaka.

During the last two weeks, bombs or grenades had been exploded every night in Dhaka. Today, an army truck hit a mine in a Dhaka suburb. The Pakistan army quickly imposed a curfew on the neighbourhood.

The guerrillas said movie theaters in East Pakistan would be attacked. Bangalee guerrillas sought to disrupt the government's examinations early this week throwing several grenades at exam venues. Only about a quarter of the registered applicants showed up to sit for the examination.

Foreigners and others had been warned to be careful when travelling to East Pakistan, especially by road. Drivers were advised to set out in the

PEGASUS SPYWARE Outrage spreads over 'snooping'

Hungary, Israel, Algeria launch probe; KSA, UAE, Kazakhstan deny using it

AGENCIES

Global outrage mounted and multiple countries began probing the allegations that Israeli-made spyware was used on journalists, rights activists and heads of state, as French leader Emmanuel Macron ordered tighter security and changed his phone over espionage concerns.

The NSO Group's Pegasus software -- able to switch on a phone's camera or microphone and snoop its data -- is at the centre of a growing storm after a list of about 50,000 potential surveillance targets was leaked to rights groups.

Amnesty International and French media nonprofit Forbidden Stories collaborated with a clutch of media companies, including the Washington Post, the Guardian and Le Monde, to analyse and publish the list.

The widening scandal is drawing in countries from Saudi Arabia, Algeria and the United Arab Emirates to Morocco, India, Kazakhstan and a host of other mostly emerging economies.

Over half of Europeans vaccinated

Says EU as Delta variant drives surge in Covid cases in US

AGENCIES

More than half of all European adults are now fully vaccinated, the EU said, as countries across Europe and Asia battled fresh outbreaks blamed on the fast-spreading Delta variant.

The European Central Bank said uncertainty over the wave of infections meant it was keeping the cash taps open to ensure the nascent economic recovery isn't snuffed out.

Despite successful vaccination drives, German Chancellor Angela Merkel said cases in her country were rising "exponentially" as the government officials warned that the US is "at another pivotal moment in this pandemic".

The spotlight, meanwhile, once again turned on the origins of the virus after the WHO called for an audit of the Chinese lab at the heart of
