FIREARMS MANAGEMENT

Long-due system launched

MOHAMMAD JAMIL KHAN

The government has moved to bring arms sales and licencing procedures under an automation system to prevent illegal use of legal arms in the country.

The Special Branch of Police launched a software named Firearms Management System on March 22 to this end, through which authorities can verify the legality of a firearm online with a few clicks.

The SB designed the software following a home ministry directive in November 2018, which came after a deputy commissioner's (DC) call on the government to introduce an automation system at a DC-level conference the same

Police authorities used to keep the firearms licence and inspection records manually, said Abdus Salam, special superintendent of SB.

"But this software helps track every legal bullet and firearm. If, for example, someone tries to use an illegal firearm claiming it to be legal, then we can check it in a couple of minutes just by inputting its serial number. It will reduce the use of illegal firearms," he added.

Currently, people willing to carry a rifle or a shotgun have to apply manually to the DC, who sends the application to SEE PAGE 10 COL 5 to the Philippines Khurram Panni today defected to the Bangladesh government.

MORE DEFECTIONS TO BANGLADESH The Pakistan Ambassador

Khurram Panni, 49, was the first diplomat of ambassadorial rank to defect to the Bangladesh cause. He came to Manila as ambassador in March, 1970 and his tenure of duty was not scheduled to end until late in October, 1971.

Panni told a news conference that he would ask the Philippine government for permission to remain in Manila and start his mission. He was moving from the official residence to new

He said: "I hereby disassociate myself from the present usurper army junta of West Pakistan which claims to be the Government of Pakistan. It is totally illegitimate and absolutely barbarian. It has no mandate of the people -- it has no right to call itself the Government of Pakistan.

"Pakistan, as I knew it, lies buried under a mountain of corpses -- the corpses of innocent men, women and children of Bangladesh. It lies buried under the agony of the eight million refugees whom they have pushed out into India. It lies buried under the mass plunder and rape which the West Pakistani government are perpetrating there every day."

'Bangladesh can be another wonder'

The last three years of Rensje Teerink, ambassador of the European Union Delegation to Bangladesh, have been eventful with the Rohingya crisis, coronavirus pandemic, Taliban's control of Afghanistan, and Bangladesh becoming eligible to graduate from the LDC status. The Daily Star's Porimol Palma spoke to her before she leaves for Brussels after completing her assignment. She shared her thoughts on the future EU-Bangladesh relations.

DS: What makes you happy or sad as you leave Bangladesh? Teerink: My professional engagement as an envoy of the EU to Bangladesh has ended but my relationship with the country remains resolute. A second chapter of my link to this marvellous country is about to start. Since 2017, I have marvelled at the unvielding resolve of the people of this country. Despite the ravages of pandemic, Bangladesh has managed to maintain a relatively low fatality rate. Also, the fact that this country is proudly celebrating 50 years as a nation and looking towards middle income status is something to cherish. Naturally, I am sad to leave Bangladesh, will miss the hospitality, compassion, empathy and the indomitable fortitude of the people.

DS: The EU has taken some initiatives to help Bangladesh overcome the impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic. Can you give us the second disbursement from the joint EUR 113 million grant made available by the EU and Germany as part of Team Europe's response to fight Covid-19 in Bangladesh. Funds are channelled through the budget support programme on National Social Security Strategy reforms in Bangladesh.

DS: Bangladesh is seeking extension of LDC privileges for 12 years after 2024. What are the EU's thoughts on that? Teerink: Under the EU's GSP, Bangladeshi exports are exempt from normal customs

FBI releases 1st 9/11 memo

Document outlines contacts hijackers had with Saudi associates in US

REUTERS, Washington

SEE PAGE 10 COL 2

The FBI on Saturday released the first document related to its investigation of the September 11, 2001, attacks on the United States and allegations of Saudi government support for the hijackers, following an executive order by President

Relatives of the victims had called on Biden to skip memorial events to mark Saturday's 20th anniversary if he did not declassify documents that they have contended will show Saudi Arabian authorities supported the plot.

The partially redacted 16-page document released by the FBI outlined contacts between the hijackers and Saudi associates, but no evidence the government in Riyadh was complicit in the attacks, which killed nearly 3,000 people. Saudi Arabia has long said it had no role in the attacks.

The Saudi embassy in Washington did not immediately respond to a request for comment sent out of hours late

In a statement issued on September 8, the embassy said Saudi Arabia has always advocated for transparency around the events of September 11, 2001, and welcomes the release by the United States of classified documents relating to the attacks.

"As past investigations have revealed, including the 9/11 Commission and the release of the so-called '28 Pages,' no evidence has ever emerged to indicate that the Saudi government or its officials had previous knowledge of the terrorist attack or were in any way involved," the embassy's statement said.
