"We want underprivileged children to chase their dream of prospering in life. We want to stand by the children with our little efforts," said Minarul Islam, founder of Doshomik Pathshala.

The school is currently running in Tangail town's Kagmari slum, Zila Sadar slum and Nagarjalpai slum areas and educating 20, 12, and 10 students respectively.

Islam and nine others take turns in shouldering the burden of teaching as well as channelling their pocket money in the running of the classes.

"I feel mental peace when I see the smiling faces of the underprivileged children -- -t is very pleasant for me to spend time with them," said Amena Akter Tilittoma, one of the teachers.

Along with providing education, the school provides books, notebooks, pens, slates, pencils, bags and other academic materials to the children for Payesh festival, music festival and sports events. The school conducted a health awareness campaign to make children aware of washing hands with soap and wearing masks.

One student who benefitted from the initiative is four-year-old Ismat Ara from Kagmari slum.

"I like to go to school because they [teachers] give me chocolates, biscuits, notebook and pens. I am really happy for being able to study in this school,"

In Kagmari slum, the group takes classes six days a week, and in the other two slums, just once a week.

Salma Akter, a resident of Nagarjalpai slum, could not be more grateful for the project.

Her husband lost his livelihood during the pandemic and could not buy a smartphone for their children's online classes.

"So their education stopped." But thanks to Doshomik Pathshala, their education has resumed.

The High Court may pass an order next week after reviewing the proposed names, said Sayed Mahsib Hossain, whose writ petition elicited the move.

Last month, Hossain on behalf of his client Md Farhad Hossen, an aggrieved Evaly customer, filed a writ seeking dissolution of the e-commerce platform and distributing the proceeds among creditors.

Hossen had purchased a washing machine from Evaly in May but never received the product.

Subsequently, the court placed a freeze on the sale and transfer of Evaly's assets and also sought all relevant documents from the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies and Firms to decide whether a board can be formed to run the company.

After examining the documents, High Court bench of Justice Muhammad Khurshid Alam Sarkar on October 12 called for forming a fourmember interim board at the earliest for assessing the liabilities of Evaly, which is said to be upwards of Tk 1,000 crore.

The board will consist of a retired justice, a jurist, a secretary and a chartered accountant, and the court sought names of three former or incumbent secretaries and one additional secretary to serve as a member.

The warranty period of the two EDSs, which cost Tk 17 crore each, expired last year, he said.

The machines were supplied by local business group Navana, which has no major knowledge on the maintenance of EDSs.

"This caused the delays. We had to bring in technical experts from Malaysia or India to fix problems with the EDS machines."

And flying in experts became tricky amid the travel ban for the global coronavirus pandemic.

It was also not possible to bring in spare parts from abroad to fix the EDS machine, Rahman added.
