The series of communal attacks that ravaged Hindu communities across parts of the country last month have left its victims traumatised. Recounting the horrors they experienced during the violence, victims of the Chattogram region spoke of their persisting feeling of insecurity at a public hearing yesterday.

ARUN BIKASH DEY, Ctg

Law enforcers stood mum as the marauders conducted their mayhem at the puja mandaps during Durga Puja, several of the victims told the hearing while giving their deposition to it.

In many cases, police and administrative officials did not respond to their calls for help immediately, which allowed the miscreants to carry out their atrocities unobstructed. In places where members of the Hindu community challenged them, they were injured by the attackers, the victims said.

They were providing deposition before the mass commission formed to investigate into the series of communal and fundamentalist violence in Bangladesh, hosted at the port city’s Shilpakala Academy.

Ekattorer Ghatak Dalal Nirmul Committee and the Parliamentary Caucus on Ethnic and Minority Affairs jointly formed the commission chaired by Justice Shamsuddin Chowdhury Manik.

During the hearing, the victims alleged that the police are yet to arrest the main culprits who are roaming free in their respective areas, issuing threats to withdraw cases filed against them.

Overcharging continues

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Despite ongoing mobile court drives against overcharging from passengers, bus operators are still collecting extra fare in Dhaka and Chattogram.

Some operators have even collected extra fare in the name of seating services yesterday, going against the decision of their associations to abolish the so called services by Saturday.

Yesterday, ten mobile courts of Bangladesh Road Transport Authority (BRTA) fined 245 buses in the two cities Tk 2.72 lakh for overcharging passengers. Of them, 198 were diesel-run and 49 were CNG-run buses, according to a BRTA press release.

Moreover, two buses in Dhaka were fined Tk 8,000 for hoisting illegal sticker of seating services.

With this, BRTA’s mobile courts have raised Tk 15.68 lakh fine from 1,573 buses in the six days since November 8, when the new bus fares came into force following the fuel price hike.

Although the government has decided to ramp up bus fares up to 28 percent, many operators were charging as much as 50 percent higher fares, even the CNG-run ones, for whom the hiked fares do not apply.

Amid these allegations, Bangladesh Road Transport Owners Association on Wednesday announced that they would abolish seating and gate lock services within three days.

HC blasts home, law ministries’ officials for delay

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The High Court yesterday blasted the home and law ministries for not responding to its rule issued for introducing biometric data management system in prisons in order to properly identify the prisoners.

“Why have we issued the rule and what is the benefit of its issuance if the ministries don’t reply? They could have sought time from this court through submitting affidavit to respond to the rule. But, the officials concerned of the ministries did not feel any necessity to do so. They are too busy to get promoted,” the HC bench of Justice Jahangir Hossain Selim and Justice Md Atoar Rahman said.

The bench made the comment during hearing an appeal and petition filed in connection with a murder case of Chattogram in which an innocent Minu Akhter has served jail sentence instead of convicted Kulsuma Akhter.

During their hearing, the HC bench on June 28 asked the respondents to explain in two weeks why they should

Online gambling agents using MFS accounts: CID

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Online gambling agents are using the business accounts of mobile financial services (MFS) to run the illicit trade in the country, found an investigation of the Criminal Investigation Department (CID).

According to the CID, online gambling reaches a peak during international sports tournaments, such as the World Cup, Indian Premier League, Big Bash, and English Premier League. It found transactions at least Tk 3-5 crore every day through MFS in just one or two districts.

“There are at least 40-50 agents in a district. There are transactions of over Tk 10 lakh a day from some of these numbers,” CID Additional Deputy Inspector General Kamrul Ahsan told a press briefing at its headquarters in Malibagh yesterday.

Kamrul Ahsan said they were investigating the online gambling site, 1xbetbd. Although the site is operated from Russia, it has agents in Bangladesh.

“The 1xbetbd agents, in particular, are using mobile financial services, especially Nagad. Sales representatives and depo managers of MFS in some districts are also linked

Out of robbers’ jaw, into loan sharks’

From being robbed to paying high interest loans, anglers of Sundarbans cannot catch a break

- » From 2016-18, 328 robbers from 32 gangs surrendered
- » Gov declared the forest ‘robber free’ in 2018
- » But loan sharks have ascended in their place
- » Making use of power, they force anglers to take loans
- » High interests rates are determined
- » Tk 30 to Tk 40,000 interest for every lakh
- » ‘Dadon’ loans also make them sell fish at very low rates

A major fishing hub of the country, the Sundarbans attracts almost 20,000 anglers from Satkhira, Khulna, Bagerhat, Barguna and Pirojpur every year. But a majority of them get tangled up in high interest loan and hardly make any income at all.

MOHAMMAD JAMIL KHAN, back from Dublar Char, Sundarbans

It seems the efforts to make the Sundarbans safe and secure for anglers is still far from fruition. Finally rid of robbers in 2018, they have now become “captive” to a high interest loan or “dadon” system, which they have to subscribe to even get access to the forest’s waters.

These loan sharks, belonging to an influential group, offer the anglers loans at high interest or a dadon loan -- which must be repaid with products (their haul) as interest. However, there’s no way to opt out of this, as the same group handles the forest department’s “permission tickets” that one needs to fish inside the forest.

Following the surrender of around 32 robber groups in 2018, the anglers started to think the tides may have finally turned for them. But this only led to the ascent of syndicate members -- that the anglers call “saheb” (sir) --, around 15 whom run the whole network.

This means that despite their hard work, the anglers can seldom earn their worth back, as a large chunk of their money goes towards these interests.

As an example of dadon, when this correspondent visited the Sundarbans earlier this month, he found that anglers were selling medium-sized shrimp for only Tk 90 per kg. Asked why, they said it’s because the sahebs buy from them at this price.

For comparison, the same variety of shrimps go for Tk 600 to Tk 700 per kg at kitchen markets in Dhaka, while the price is Tk 450 to Tk 500 per kg in Khulna.

However, to prevent anglers from getting to know this price, members of the syndicate switch off the network service towers inside the forest, local sources alleged. Of note, the forest only has four towers by the state-owned Teletak.

At Dublar Char, this correspondent came across Mintu Howlader, who has been fishing in the area for the last 10 years.

Just the night before, their fishing net had been torn due to the sheer weight of the fish they caught.

“Every season, we get huge catches from the sea, but we can only keep so much as most of it has to go to repay dadon. As we have to sell our catch to the sahebs for the very low price, we’re very poorly compensated when compared with the prices at the city markets [where the fish are sold],” he said.

“We kind of have to take the loan, as it’s expensive to fund a trip to the sea. We can’t get it from an authorised source as no one’s providing it, and this is where the sahebs step in,” Azad said in frustration.

Whenever anyone takes out a loan, they have to sign on a stamp, promising sales after coming back from the trip, sources said.

For every Tk 1 lakh loan, the local syndicate charges around Tk 30 to Tk 40 thousand in a season. In the Sundarbans, a season means a period of five months, from November to April.

A major fishing hub of the country, the Sundarbans attracts almost 20,000 anglers from Satkhira, Khulna, Bagerhat, Barguna and Pirojpur every year. But a majority of them get tangled up in the dadon system and hardly make any income at all.

Kamal Uddin alias Kamal Mama is the leader of the syndicate, who primarily controls the racket, according to locals.

Talking with this correspondent, he said they are always fair with the anglers. “We only do this with the intention to help them out,” he claimed.
