REGULATING PUBLIC TRANSPORT
Going from bad to worse
Drivers with faulty or no papers, unfit vehicles way too common on roads

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY
 The Anabil Paribahan bus that ran over and killed SSC examinee Mainuddin Islam in the capital's Rampura on Monday had neither a route permit nor an updated tax token.
 Two of the three buses that were vandalised following the incident, as mentioned in documents of cases filed with police, were also without route permits.
 Such cases of vehicles or their drivers being found without proper documents after fatal road crashes are by no means isolated.
 Following the widespread student protest for safe roads in 2018, triggered by the deaths of two college students, students and the general public hoped for a change for the better.
 Those hopes were in vain as the situation has since deteriorated further and a new wave of protest has taken hold following the death of Notre Dame College student Nayeem Hasan on November 24 -- five days before Mainuddin's death.
 The latest data of the Bangladesh Road Transport Authority indicates that at least 10 lakh registered vehicles are being operated by drivers without licences.
 The data also shows that the number of vehicles getting fitness clearances dropped by around 75,000 in the last fiscal year compared to the figures in 2019-20 fiscal.
 "The system to ensure road safety is totally dysfunctional," noted transport expert Prof Shamsul Hoque said.
 A driver can operate a vehicle without a proper licence for years without any fear of surveillance because the system is not working, he said.

Alesha Mart suspends operations
Cites harassment of employees, lack of security

STAFF CORRESPONDENT
 Beleaguered e-commerce platform Alesha Mart has halted its official operations until further notice citing an unwanted situation and inadequate security.
 In a Facebook post around 12:30am on Wednesday, it said, "We are being forced to make such a decision because some people physically harassed our office staff yesterday."
 "Note that those people are not our customers and they did not have a payment schedule as they didn't receive any SMS. Our activities will resume as soon as we get adequate security."
 Contacted, Manjurul Alam Sikder, chairman and managing director of Alesha Mart, claimed that a vested quarter began taking money from customers assuring them of faster refunds from the platform.

QUARANTINE FOR PEOPLE FROM AFRICA
Stern action if rules breached
Omicron cases detected in India

STAFF CORRESPONDENT
 Stern action will be taken against both hotel authorities and the incoming passengers from southern Africa, the epicentre of the Omicron variant of coronavirus, for breaching quarantine protocols.
 Health Minister Zahid Maleque said this yesterday as the high-risk variant is now present in more than 30 countries including neighbouring India.
 Passengers arriving from South Africa, Botswana, Eswatini, Lesotho, Mozambique, Namibia, Zimbabwe and Malawi, where the new potentially more contagious variant is dominant, will have to go for an institutional quarantine for 14 days.
 The armed forces, the police and the Directorate General of Health Services will oversee the institutional quarantine, he told reporters after inspecting the Covid-19 testing facilities for Dubai-bound passengers at the Hazrat Shahjalal

INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.
 More than 100 hotels have been listed for quarantine purposes, with the passenger bearing the expense of the fortnight's stay.
 "There are many irresponsible persons who do not think about themselves and their country -- they leave their hotels for their homes and roam around. We will penalise the hotels for letting anyone leave early."
 The foreign returnees' passports will be held until the completion of the quarantine.
 "We are going to take strict measures this year."
 Last year, the coronavirus was able to sneak into Bangladesh because of lax measures.
 And earlier this year, the Delta variant, the most aggressive strain of the coronavirus yet, had spread in the country as the government could not keep the returnees from abroad for the full duration of the quarantine.

IN-PERSON CLASSES
Govt shelve plan to raise the number

STAFF CORRESPONDENT
 The government has suspended its plans to increase the number of in-person classes next year as the world braces for the impact from new Covid-19 variant Omicron.
 Education Minister Dipu Moni yesterday communicated the change in the government's plans while visiting Government Shaheed Suhrawardy College exam centre in the capital on the first day of HSC and equivalent exams.
 She said the government had earlier planned to increase the number of in-person classes next year, but the move has been suspended due to the emergence of the new variant. She added that the government may also shut down all educational institutions if the Covid-19 situation deteriorates.
 She also said next year's Secondary School Certificate (SSC) and Higher Secondary Certificate (HSC) exams might take place in mid-2022.
 "We have shortened the syllabus for the exams of 2022. We'd like students to be able to attend more classes, so we're hoping to hold the exams in the middle of the year," Dipu Moni said.

 Soon after the delivery of the verdict, some convicts broke down in tears in the dock, said court sources.
 The judge in the verdict said the prosecution was able to prove the charges against 32 accused beyond doubt and they were given punishments.
 The convicts with a common intention killed the victims, treating them robbers, which was a heinous offence, said the judgement.
 The punishment of the fugitives will be effective from the day of their arrest or surrender, it added.
 The convicts can now appeal to the High Court within seven days from the receipt of the judgement copy.
