

Dhaka's overgrowth costs up to 10pc GDP

Reveals study presented at BIDS event

Nearly eight percent of jobs in the country are concentrated in Dhaka city, and 40 percent are condensed in the greater Dhaka region, which includes Gazipur and Narayanganj city.

excessive concentration of resources and economic activities in Dhaka. In 2019, GDP loss amounted to USD 35 billion.

At present, Bangladesh is losing six to 10 percent of its GDP, because Dhaka's growth has crossed the optimum rate.

Ahmad further revealed that Dhaka's economic overgrowth has slowed down the reduction of urban poverty in the country significantly.

According to his study, from 2010 to 2016, extreme poverty rate in rural areas has declined from 21.1 to 14.9 percent, whereas there was virtually no change in urban poverty rate. In 2010, the urban poverty rate was 7.7, and in 2016, it was 7.6.

Traffic congestion in Dhaka causes losses amounting to 2.9 percent of Bangladesh's GDP, he said, citing a 2011 estimate.

There are also environmental and health costs resulting from environmental degradation. These should also be taken into consideration, he said.

Ahmad added that when compared to cities of developing countries, Dhaka's

Footover bridges are hard to find around the capital's Rampura Bridge area. Stranded by the side of this busy road, these three children were too afraid to cross it. This is when a police officer came along and lent them his hands. By manoeuvring around the incessant rush of vehicles, the official helped them cross the street and led them to a place of safety. Playground only exists on paper

10 years after plans were announced, field for children with disabilities yet to be completed

MD SHAHNAWAZ KHAN CHANDAN

In the western corner of the National Parliament building adjacent to the Mirpur Road in the capital, a signboard with the inscription "proposed playground for children with disabilities" can be seen erected on a field covered with thick vegetation.

The five-acre land is supposed to be a playground for children with special needs, after Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina announced to turn it into a playground in 2011.

But 10 years later, the construction of the country's only playground for children with disabilities still has not begun, all due to the negligence of the authorities concerned and bureaucratic tangles.

With no gates whatsoever for visitors or children, the field has been left unattended all this time.

It is now covered with bushes and shrubs of all kinds, becoming an ideal breeding ground for mosquitoes.

According to disability rights experts, following the announcement, the land acquisition process for the playground was completed by 2016.

In January 2017, ASM Feroz, the then chief whip of the parliament, announced that it would be completed within six months.

But even after Feroz's announcement, the procurement process for the playground remained immobile.

Initially, the National Disabled Development Foundation was given the responsibility to develop the playground, which decided that the field will be turned into a sports complex.

Contacted, Md Anisuzzaman, managing director of National Disabled Development Foundation, said, "We do not have the experience and capacity to complete such projects."

"Therefore, the task was handed over to the Ministry of Youth and Sports in 2019," he added.

On November 20, 2019 Md Zahid Ahsan Russell, state minister for the youth and sports ministry, and Akhter Hossain, senior secretary to the ministry, visited the site and promised to inaugurate the playground as soon as possible.

In December 2020, Zahid presented a primary design of the playground to the speaker of the parliament.

The design included boundary walls,

UNB, Dhaka

Doleshwar Hanafia Jame Mosque, situated in Keraniganj on the outskirts of Dhaka, has won the "Award of Merit" in the 2021 UNESCO Asia-Pacific Awards for Cultural Heritage Conservation.

Popularly known as "Daroga Masjid", the mosque was constructed by Daroga Aminuddin Ahmed in 1868.

After Aminuddin's son Moiz Uddin Ahmed, brothers Khidir and Kader Baksh, Moiz's relatives, continued the mosque's construction and renovation.

Kader Baksh's grandson former lawmaker Prof Hamidur Rahman expanded the mosque further and built its minaret in 1968.

OPERATION JACKPOT A mission that rattled Pakistan

ARUN BIKASH DEY, Ctg

"We started swimming in the calm waters of the river. I was moving fast and reached the jetty, where I found the big barge. The jetty was dazzling with lights, but no guard was in sight."

"We were instructed to fix the mine beneath the ship or barge, underwater, but I was so excited that I forgot all that and fixed it on the barge's side... and then I pulled off the mine's safety pin," recalled Faruk-e-Azam, Bir Pratik, who was a sub-commander of Operation Jackpot, one of the biggest operations undertaken during the Liberation War.

"The timer started, and I just had half an hour to flee the scene," Faruk wrote in his article "Amar Muktiujddher Kotha", remembering the pivotal days. "We were swimming back from the barge fast," he described. "At one point, we were running in the middle of the paddy field. Right then, we heard the explosion. One after another, our mines started to explode, and Chattogram port and its surrounding areas were filled with thunderous bangs." News of the incident reached the international media, and the whole world got to know that a guerrilla war was going on in the country, contrary to Pakistan's claims that there was no war and everything was under control.

Operation Jackpot was planned in May, 1971 in India. The commandos selected for the operation were trained for two months in Palashi's Ambagan.
