She highlighted the necessity of technological skills for teachers and regularly training them about specific topics, so that they can teach those to students.

The webinar's chair Dr Qazi Kholiqzaman Ahmad, chairperson of PKSF and Education Watch, said institutional decentralisation and formation of a permanent education commission is a must to strengthen the education sector.

Special guest Dr Manzoor Ahmed, professor emeritus at Brac University, underscored the need for putting national importance on pre-primary and early childhood education.

He called upon everyone to join hands and work together to implement the child education policy of 2013 and strengthen the technical education sector.

Ashrafunnahar Misti, executive director of Women with Disabilities Movement Foundation, said although the national education policy talks about a uniform education system for students with disabilities, in most cases, teachers, especially headteachers and those who are in management committees, are not willing to allow those children integrate into schools.

Lawmaker Aroma Dutta; Shykh Seraj, head of news at Channel i; Quazi Faruque Ahmed, member of National Education Policy 2010 Formulation Committee; Parveen Mahmud, chairperson of UCEP; among others, spoke at the webinar, moderated by Rasheda K Choudhury, convener of CSO Alliance and executive director of CAMPE, and co-moderated by Asif Saleh, executive director of Brac.

JU's resident snake

Later, they briefed JU's acting proctor ASM Firoz-ul-Hasan about the issue and contacted wildlife specialist Prof Monirul Hasan Khan, chairperson of JU's zoology department, and Prof Kamrul Hasan of the same department about their drive.

Eventually, the snake was rescued and released with the forest department's permission. The team has conducted hundreds of drives like this, they said.

"Currently, 528 volunteers are working with the team via a Facebook private group, in which over 1.3 lakh members are present. Around 18 members, five of whom are female, directly participate in the rescue drives," said Mahfuz.

"We enrol them [volunteers] as rescuers following verification and training sessions."

"We believe that every animal has a right to live freely," said Syeda Ananya Faria, publicity secretary of the foundation and one of their first female snake rescuers.

Contacted, founding adviser and a trainer of DESRF Asif Adnan Azad said, "They [the students] are not only attempting to rescue snakes, but they're also trying to disseminate awareness about the animal among people."

Adnan said snakes play an important role in maintaining the ecosystem. They eat rats and serve as a companion to farmers. There are many misconceptions about them, and many people kill them out of ignorance.

The organisation is in the process of becoming registered, he said. So far, rescue operations have been carried out through financial assistance of members, including advisers. Presently, their focus is centred around increasing the number of volunteers.
