to dig worms in this regard, bigger snakes will come out."

He said, "Our government has embassies in every country, it has offices of the Permanent Representative to the United Nations. What are those for? They were tasked to inform those countries about the events in Bangladesh and to explain them."

"Why should the government or a government party hire a lobbyist there? Despite having an embassy, it is unethical to hire a lobbyist spending public money."

and likewise, newspapers should not broadcast news. TV channels' online portals also must obtain approval."

He called upon all to follow the rules and regulations when running IPTV services, YouTube channels, and online portals.

The minister also warned that if anyone broke the rules, legal action would be taken.

"Free flow of information is important to our government. Plenty of new private television channels have emerged over the years. The journey of private televisions in Bangladesh started through Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina," he said.

"A lot of television stations have online portals. Some of the applications have been approved. Some of them are yet to be approved. Our goal is to provide accurate information to people and to ensure free flow of information, which is a prerequisite for a democratic society," Hasan added.

Asked, Additional Secretary to the information and broadcasting ministry Md Mizan Ul Alam, told The Daily Star that according to the amended National Online Mass Media Policy-2020, IPTVs were not allowed to broadcast any news items or talk show.

He also said YouTube channels were also not allowed to air any news items or talk shows.

Asked whether any newspaper via its registered website or its YouTube channel could air any news item or talk shows, he said newspapers were given registration for online on condition that they would publish their printed items online.

He, however, said if any newspaper wanted to do so, it would have to get a separate approval.

"Since the policy does not allow this now, newspapers will not be able to broadcast any talk show or news items through YouTube channels as this will invade the field of the others," he added.

After his meeting with the DCs, the information minister said, "If we look at the statistics of the last seven to eight years, we can see that almost all rumours and motivated propaganda were spread through social media."

The spread of misleading news through social media creates instability in the country, he added.

Prominent singer Sabina Yasmin, also Anwar's sister-in-law, paid homage to the author and spent some time with the bereaved family members.

"My father was a warrior," said Anwar's son Qazi Shahnoor Husain. Shahnoor said his father was courageous but liked to live a quiet life, surrounded by his family.

Anwar's daughter-in-law Masuma Maymur said books of his most popular series "Masud Rana" and "Kuasha" have been published for 43 years.

In recent years, Anwar drew flak after Bangladesh Copyright Office granted the copyrights for many "Masud Rana" and "Kuasha" books to their ghost writer Sheikh Abdul Hakim in June 2020.

However, Maymur said Sheikh Abdul Hakim claimed himself to be the author of the books, adding that the issue was unresolved.

Anwar's cousin Quazi Rownaq Hossain said the state has not given Anwar his due recognition. He inspired the country's youths to read books, which helped them stay away from trouble, he said.

Meanwhile, 25 citizens of Sylhet gave a joint statement yesterday, condemning the situation and expressing solidarity with the students' demand.

Planning Minister MA Mannan at a programme in Sylhet yesterday said, "Students at this age are always agitated, and they cannot tolerate any decision imposed on them. The situation must be handled by convincing them in a controlled manner and with patience." On Thursday, students of Begum Sirajunnesa Chowdhury Hall launched a protest after Provost Zafrin Ahmed Liza reportedly misbehaved with a student, who called her to report mismanagement at the dormitory. Students started demanding the VC's resignation after over 30 students were injured, as police entered the campus and used truncheons, rubber bullets and sound grenades on Sunday evening to take the VC, who was confined at his office, away.

"The more communication, the less becomes the communication gap. The less communication gap, the better it will be for us to work," he said. Responding to a question about his role in the electoral field, the army chief said, "Our first responsibility is to protect the country's sovereignty."

"In addition to that, we carry out nation building activities in aid to civil power. We assist law enforcement too," he added.

"Whenever the civilian administration thinks that the army can stand by their side under the direction of the government, we will respond to their call and of course we will be by their side to fulfil our duty," he said.
