China says military spending to grow 7.1 percent in 2022

China's military budget -- the second-largest in the world after the United States -- is set to increase by 7.1 percent in 2022, Beijing announced yesterday.

Some 1.45 trillion yuan ($230 billion) has been set aside for national defence, according to a government

The increase is slightly higher than the 6.8 percent rise last year and broadly in line with the general pace of growth in recent years.

It exceeds Beijing's annual GDP growth target of 5.5 percent announced separately by Premier Li Kegiang on Zelensky remains defiant and yesterday announced that Ukrainian were counterforces attacking around Kharkiv, the country's second largest city, which has seen Russian incursions and fierce bombardments.

Russian Meanwhile, President Vladimir Putin vesterday said that any country that sought to impose a no-fly zone over Ukraine would be considered by Moscow to have entered the conflict.

"Any movement in this direction will be considered by us as participation in an armed conflict by that country," the Russian leader said during a meeting with Aeroflot employees.
