

DNCC to operate mobile courts in Ramadan

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Dhaka North City Corporation (DNCC) will run mobile courts in all its zones during Ramadan to tackle food adulteration.

DNCC Mayor Md Atiqul Islam announced the initiative at a workshop at Nagar Bhaban yesterday.

Bangladesh Safe Food Authority, Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations, and DNCC jointly organised the workshop.

"Mobile courts of DNCC will conduct drives in all 10 zones to take legal action," said Atiqul.

"We not only have to ensure safe food at hotels and restaurants but also in the streets," he added.

The DNCC mayor said they have decided to provide 100 licences for food carts.

With no safety gear in sight, a man stands precariously on a flimsy metal beam to weld construction material of a building. Such sights are not a rarity, as these workers regularly put their lives on the line while authorities turn a blind eye. The photo was taken yesterday in port city's Prabartak area.

Speakers tell seminar on Abul Mansur Ahmad

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Ctg

The characters in the writings of litterateur Abul Mansur Ahmad can be seen in the society even today, proving that what he left behind is still relevant to understand contemporary Bangladesh, speakers said in a seminar yesterday.

They were addressing the event, titled "Abul Mansur Ahmad er Hujur Kebla o Prasangik Bhabna", at Chittagong University's Bangla department, which organised the event.

Even in the current period, characters like "Hujur Kebla" are found

"wearing different attires", trying to dominate the society, while people follow them. They are present in all classes, professions and levels of the society, said speakers.

Ahmed Mowla, professor of Cumilla University's Bangla department, in his speech said the British colonial process has detached Bangalees from kinship, while everyone wants to exercise power now.

"Power no longer remains at the hands of 'hujurs', but their [hujur kebla] presence is noticeable in every era. They [hujur] make the common people think

'We are not convinced'

BERC chief says suppliers' arguments behind hiking gas price not solid

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Bangladesh Energy Regulatory Commission (BERC) chairperson Abdul Jalil yesterday said they are not convinced with the suppliers' proposals to increase gas prices.

"They have been unable to present firm logic behind their proposals. If we find any other option, we will take it," said Jalil during the conclusion of the four-day public hearing held at BIAM auditorium in Dhaka.

He said they will discuss the matters with stakeholders at post-hearing meetings and re-examine the proposals. "We have the next 90 days to decide on the matter. Our decision will be in the consumers' favour."

Jalalabad Gas Transmission and Distribution System Ltd and Karnaphuli Gas Distribution Company Ltd -- who distribute gas at Sylhet and Chattogram -- presented their proposals on the last day. Both companies demanded a 117 percent price hike, while the Technical Evaluation Committee [TEC] recommended a 20 percent hike on average.
