Pulitzer Prizes

REUTERS

The New York Times won three Pulitzer Prizes and was named as a finalist five more times on Monday, while its rival the Washington Post took the public service award and Reuters claimed the prize for feature photography.

The annual Pulitzers are the most prestigious awards in US journalism, with special attention often paid to the public service award.

In feature photography, a team of Reuters photographers won the Pulitzer for coverage of the coronavirus pandemic's toll in India.

With three more Pulitzers this year, the New York Times has won 135 since the awards were first presented in 1917.

The Times took one for national reporting for its coverage of fatal traffic stops by police; another for international reporting for its examination of the failures of the US air war in the Middle East; and a third for criticism for Salamishah Tillet, a contributing critic at large, for her writing on race in arts and culture.

World could see 1.5C
of warming in 5 yrs

REUTERS, London

The world faces a 50 percent chance of warming of 1.5 degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels, if only briefly, by 2026, the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) said on Monday.

That does not mean the world would be crossing the long-term warming threshold of 1.5C (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit), which scientists have set as the ceiling for avoiding catastrophic climate change.

But a year of warming at 1.5C could offer a taste of what crossing that long-term threshold would be like.

"We are getting measurably closer to temporarily reaching the lower target of the Paris Agreement," said WMO Secretary General Petteri Taalas, referring to climate accords adopted in 2015.

The likelihood of exceeding 1.5C for a short period has been rising since 2015, with scientists in 2020 estimating a 20 percent chance and revising that last year up to 40 percent.

Even one year at 1.5C of warming can have dire impacts, such as killing many of the world's coral reefs and shrinking Arctic sea ice cover.

In terms of the long-term average, the average global temperature is now about 1.1C warmer than the pre-industrial average.

"Loss and damage associated with, or exacerbated by, climate change is already occurring, some of it likely irreversible for the foreseeable future," said Maxx Dille, deputy director of climate at the WMO.

World leaders pledged under the 2015 Paris Agreement to prevent crossing the long-term 1.5C threshold – measured as a multi-decadal average – but so far have fallen short on cutting climate-warming emissions.

Today's activities and current policies have the world on track to warm by about 3.2C by the end of the century.

Marcos Jr wins big

REUTERS, Manila

The son of the disgraced late Philippines dictator Ferdinand Marcos yesterday vowed to work for all people after his stunning election victory, and told the world to judge him by his presidency, not his family's past.

Ferdinand Marcos Jr, better known as "Bongbong", became the first candidate in recent history to win an outright majority in a Philippines presidential election, paving the way for a once unimaginable return to rule for the country's most notorious political dynasty.

Marcos fled into exile in Hawaii with his family during a 1986 "people power" uprising that ended his father's autocratic 20-year rule, and has served in congress and the senate since his return to the Philippines in 1991.

Voters also elected outgoing President Rodrigo Duterte's daughter Sara as vice president by a landslide in a parallel vote. A fully certified tally is not expected before May 28.

Rare miss for Queen

AFP, London

Head of state Queen Elizabeth II missed yesterday's ceremonial opening of the UK parliament for the first time in nearly 60 years, handing the duty to her heir Prince Charles in a clear sign of the looming transition of power.

Buckingham Palace said late Monday she would skip the annual showpiece on medical advice, making the decision "reluctantly" as she continues to experience "episodic mobility problems".

It is the latest in a string of cancelled public appearances caused by health problems and old age indicating her record-breaking 70-year reign is drawing to a close.

Charles, the Prince of Wales, was accompanied at the high-profile state engagement by his eldest son, Prince William, who is second-in-line to the throne.

Charles delivered the Queen's Speech from the consort's throne, symbolically an inch shorter than the monarch's sovereign throne, and was flanked by his wife Camilla, Duchess of Cornwall and son as he read out the government's agenda.

It is William's first time attending the state opening, in another clear sign of the family preparing for a future beyond Elizabeth and Charles.

president goes," he added.

A mob assaulted a top police officer and torched his vehicle near the prime minister's official residence in the capital Colombo yesterday.

In another sign of rapidly deteriorating security, vigilante groups blocked the main road to Colombo's airport and stopped all traffic to check for any Rajapaksa loyalists trying to leave the island, witnesses said.

Thousands of angry protesters stormed Mahinda's official residence on Monday night, and the former premier had to be rescued in a pre-dawn military operation yesterday, firing tear gas and warning shots.

Mahinda and his family have taken shelter at a naval base in Trincomalee in the north-east part of the island nation, sources told NDTV.

Despite the attack on his residence, Mahinda's son Namal told AFP that his father would not flee, describing the surge of national anger against his family as a "bad patch".

Protesters and a key trade group yesterday called for a new government to take control of the crisis-hit country as the president called for calm.

Sri Lanka has been suffering its worst economic crisis in history, with a severe shortage of foreign exchange stalling the essential of imports, including drugs and fuel.

For months, its tottering economy has been largely supported by India, which has provided assistance of more than $3.5 billion as the country began much-delayed talks with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) for a rescue package and also sought help from China.

China and India have long jostled for influence over Sri Lanka, a strategically-located island located off the southern tip of India with a population of 22 million people, reports Reuters.
