

I focus on my work, not my co-star

Keya Payel

It feels great to know that I am being welcomed by the audience. I am overwhelmed with all the love that they have showered upon me. I am still getting compliments for my role in "Bhulona Amay"

ZAHID AKBAR

Keya Payel is one of the rising stars of our television industry, winning over fans with her acting prowess and simplicity. Recently the actress has impressed the audience with some of shows aired during Eid.

In a candid conversation with The Daily Star, she spoke about her plans in acting, syndicate in the industry and more.

Several of your projects aired during Eid-ul-Fitr, have been appreciated. How do you feel, after getting appreciation for your work?

It feels great to know that I am being welcomed by the audience. I am overwhelmed with all the love that they have showered upon me. I am still getting compliments for my role in "Bhulona Amay". I am being called by my character's name, and it doesn't get much better than that for an actor.

Do you have any particular role that attracts you, and you haven't played yet?

I usually like characters that are full of life. Depressing roles do not attract me. It is also true that my career just began, thus I try to focus on the story and the roles I play with full dedication and my love for acting.

Do you feel like you've done justice to the roles that you portrayed during this Eid?

Although I have worked on these projects in different times, they were all aired during Eid. Honestly, the reason that I signed up for so many projects was to gather experience. I am happy to get the opportunity to act in various roles, as I believe that this will help improve my acting skills.

It is often heard that a certain group have created a syndicate in the media.

They are also alleged to select actress through this syndicate. Have you ever faced that?

Frankly speaking, I am not aware of this, as I have worked with almost every actor in the television industry. I noticed that it is the directors who select the cast, and not the actors. However, while taking up a project, I focus on the story and my role, not on who is my co-star.

You made your silver screen debut in 2018, with the film "Indubala". Do you think that it was a wrong decision? How long will your fans have to wait to see you on the silver screen, once again?

As a newcomer, I had no experience of working in this field at the time. I honestly do not have any regrets, as I am still learning. I would definitely take up silver screen projects, but I will be more careful about choosing scripts, characters and the director.

PHOTO: COLLECTED FROM FACEBOOK

Karan Johar to launch Saif Ali Khan's son in Bollywood?

From introducing Alia Bhatt and Varun Dhawan in "Student of the Year" to providing the successful launch pad for Ananya Panday and Janhvi Kapoor, Bollywood filmmaker Karan Johar has played a vital role in the careers of several star kids.

Now, he is reportedly all set to launch Saif Ali Khan and Amrita Singh's son Ibrahim Ali Khan in Bollywood with the Hindi remake of the popular Malayalam film, "Hridayam".

Ibrahim, who is Sara Ali Khan's brother, is already working on the sets of Johar's "Rocky Aur Rani Ki Prem Kahani" as an assistant director.

Fans hail 'Top Gun: Maverick' as 'the best sequel of all time'

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT DESK

Coming back in theatres after nearly four decades, "Top Gun: Maverick", the Tom Cruise-led sequel, is already a blockbuster. The film was released on May 27 and is the second part to "Top Gun", which came out in 1986.

Fans on Twitter had an explosive reaction to watching "Top Gun: Maverick" as the majority hailed the film as 'the best sequel of all time'.

If you have seen the original "Top Gun", the first frame of the sequel to the moment where the opening credits end is all nostalgia guaranteed.

NEWS

My men

FROM PAGE 12
pressure on your fingers. If you can't push [EVM buttons], I'll keep people there to do it..."

"You must come to cast votes because it is EVM voting. If the voting was not held using EVM, I would not have been looking for anyone. I would have stamped the ballots as much as I could."

Contacted, Mujibul dismissed the allegation, claiming that the video was fake.

"I am not a child. I am the incumbent chairman. Can I give such a childish speech at a public rally?" he said.

"My rivals made it and disseminated it to tarnish my image," he said, adding, "I will go for legal action."

Faisal Alam, Banskhali upazila election officer, said Mujibul has been asked to explain his speech. "We are taking action."

Dhaka Wasa

FROM PAGE 12

Wasa got 13 percent.

Dhaka WASA's ADP allocation shows an upward jump over 2019-20 to cover the cost of delays in implementation of big projects while Khulna, a climate hotspot, receives a paltry allocation unchanged over the years, said the speakers.

Resolving the governance challenges, like low performance amid continuous project delays and cost overruns, should be a priority to ensure more effective utilisation of budget allocations, they added.

The speakers included PPRC Chairman Hossain Zillur Rahman, WaterAid Country Director Hasin Jahan, and PPRC Senior Fellow Mohammad Abdul Wazed.

Interference by goons at booths stations and journalists would observe the election.

FROM PAGE 12

"If there is any report of such incident in the presence of any presiding officer, action will be taken against that official."

At the EC office yesterday, Ahsan observed the customisation of EVMs, which will be used in the Cumilla elections and the customisation of EVMs and how the machines work. Twenty-one representatives of the candidates in the Cumilla polls were present at the event.

Kazi Mashieur Rahman, a representative of ward customisation of EVMs means giving inputs of information of voters and candidates in cards to be used in EVMs.

This is the first time the EC showed the representatives of candidates the customisation of EVMs and how the machines work.

Twenty-one representatives of the candidates in the Cumilla polls were present at the event.

Kazi Mashieur Rahman, a representative of ward councillor candidate Kazi Mahbubur Rahman, said he sought information on the source code of software used in the EVMs.

Syed Rakibul Hasan, project director of the EC's EVM project, said they would not provide the source code to anyone.

"A source code is a programming language created by a programmer.

It is related to security issues ... It will never be given to anyone."

This is the second arrest over the incident. Earlier, a man named Ismail Hossain, a resident of Budiamara village in Narsingdi Sadar, was arrested on May 21 after Narsingdi railway police filed a case under the Women and Children Repression Prevention Act against 12 people.

Asked if he raised the issue of Rohingya trespassing into Bangladesh from India, he said India does not officially recognise it, and said they may be entering Bangladesh illegally with the help of brokers.

On the deferral of Joint Consultative Commission meeting to June 19 from May 30, Momen said it was rescheduled on the basis of joint consensus as some other meetings on energy and railways were not held.

Momen further said India also spoke of navigability of all rivers and basin wide management so that all people on the river basins can benefit from this.

"They also want to involve the ASEAN countries as well as Bhutan, Nepal, Myanmar and Thailand. We said it's fine. We also want to be a connectivity hub," he said.

In an interview with Indian television channel NDTV, Momen said it is unfortunate that the Teesta water-sharing deal could not be signed even in 11 years.

"It's a shame ... we were ready, they were ready, yet the deal is not done. In future, there will be a big cry for water and we have to prepare for it," he said.

Momen further said India also spoke of cooperation on all 54 transboundary rivers and agreed on the principle of cooperation, not competition, regarding water management.

Momen told reporters that they discussed the Woman

FROM PAGE 12

into hiding after the incident and frequently changed her location and phone number to evade arrest, he said.

The elite force handed her over to Bhabra Railway Police yesterday afternoon.

Police produced her before the Senior Judicial Magistrate's Court and sought five day remand. The court granted three days, said Ferdaus Ahmed Biswas, officer-in-charge of Bhabra Railway Police Station.

This is the second arrest over the incident. Earlier, a man named Ismail Hossain, a resident of Budiamara village in Narsingdi Sadar, was arrested on May 21 after Narsingdi railway police filed a case under the Women and Children Repression Prevention Act against 12 people.

Later, Ismail was produced before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate's Court which sent him to jail.

On May 18, the female student along with her two friends was assaulted over her outfit while waiting for a Dhaka-bound train at the station.

A middle-aged woman, who was also waiting at the station, first started hurling abusive words at the female student for what she claimed was "indecent outfit".

Then some men joined the woman and launched an assault. The girl ran to the stationmaster's room for shelter.

Police rushed to the spot after getting a call on 999. They later helped the three board a Dhaka-bound train.

A video clip of the incident did the rounds on social media, sparking storms of protest by different rights organisations and netizens.

Padma General Hospital had started operating

Rescuers find nearly all victims

FROM PAGE 12

Nepali soldiers and rescue workers had retrieved 20 bodies from the wreckage, strewn across a steep slope at an altitude of around 14,500 feet. They were trying to recover another body they had seen, officials said.

The government said it had set up a five-member panel to determine the cause of the crash and suggest prevention measures for the future.

The difficult terrain and poor weather have hampered the search parties. An image published in Nepali media showed uniformed rescue workers moving a body from the wreckage and using ropes to haul it onto a stretcher and up a steep, grassy ridge.

"There is very thick cloud in the area," Netra Prasad Sharma, the most senior bureaucrat in the Mustang district, where the crash took place, told Reuters by phone.

The plane was headed to Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft crashed in cloudy weather and the wreckage wasn't spotted until yesterday morning by Nepal's army.

The plane was headed to

the crash site.

"I am waiting for my son's body,"

Maniram Pokhrel told Reuters his voice choking. His son Utsav Pokhrel, 25, was the co-pilot.

Operated by privately owned Tara Air, the aircraft