

USING PADMA BRIDGE

Bus fares rise on 13 routes in southwest

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The authorities have increased the bus fares on 13 routes of south-western districts, which will come into force on June 26, a day after the inauguration of the Padma Bridge.

As per a circular issued by Bangladesh Road Transport Authority (BRTA), the fares will be raised by Tk10 to Tk11 after adjusting the toll of the newly constructed bridge.

The BRTA uploaded a chart of the new bus fares on its website yesterday.

On May 17, the government fixed the toll rate for using Padma Bridge, which is around 1.5 times higher than the average toll paid on ferries plying the Padma.

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina will inaugurate the long-cherished bridge on June 25 and it will be opened to traffic the following day, Road Transport and Bridges Minister Obaidul Quader said yesterday.

The bus fares on these routes are likely to go up again when the government will start collecting toll for using the Dhaka-Mawa-Bhanga Expressway. The Roads and Highways Department said it is likely to start collecting toll for the expressway from July 1. However, no order has been issued yet in this regard.

The new rates will be applicable for only those buses which will start from Saydabad of Dhaka, not for those starting from other inter-district terminals in the capital.

Buses which would use other terminals have to take fresh route permits, BRTA officials said.

As per the circular, the fare on Dhaka-Bhanga-Madaripur-Barishal route would be Tk412, Tk504 on Dhaka-Rajoir-Gopalganj, Tk649 on Dhaka-Gopalganj-Khulna, Tk218 on Dhaka-Janjira-Shariatpur, Tk534 on Dhaka-Barishal-Pirojpur, Tk628 on Dhaka-Gopalganj-Bagerhat-Pirojpur, Tk501 on Dhaka-Barishal-Patuakhali, Tk327 on Dhaka-Bhanga-Madaripur, Tk633 on Dhaka-Gopalganj-Khulna-Shatkhira, Tk288 on Dhaka-Bhanga-Faridpur, Tk653 on Dhaka-Madaripur-Barishal-Bhola-Char Fashion, Tk219 on Dhaka-Buriganga second bridge-Shariatpur, and Tk694 on Dhaka-Madaripur-Barishal-Patuakhali-Kuakata.

The bus fares on these routes are likely to go up again when the government will start collecting toll for using the Dhaka-Mawa-Bhanga Expressway.

HAZARDOUS GOODS

Fire scare grips Ctg port

MOHAMMAD SUMAN, CTG

Panic spread among officials at the Chattogram Port when smoke began billowing from an acid-loaded container on Tuesday, around three days after the BM container depot fire and explosion.

The container had been lying on the port's yard 7 for around 12 years. After a two-hour effort, the port's firefighters were able to bring the situation under control.

At least 257 such containers of hazardous chemicals and other inflammable materials have been lying idle in yard for years, leaving the country's premier seaport at the risk of deadly explosions.

On Saturday, at least 45 people were killed in a devastating fire and explosion at the BM shipping container depot in Chattogram's Sitakunda.

After the BM depot explosion, the port authority wrote to Chattogram Customs on Sunday saying the same incident may occur at the port unless hazardous materials are immediately removed.

The 257 imported containers contain hazardous cargo, including hydrogen peroxide, sulfuric acid, sulfate, thinner, sodium sulfate, methanol, ethyl hexanol, potassium chloride, calcium carbide, nitric acid, calcium oxide and other flammable goods, the letter read.

Port officials said those containers have been lying at designated sheds and yards for five to 15 years.

Customs officials and importers cited a number of reasons for the delay in moving those containers.

The reasons include a fall in prices of the goods in the local market, failure to submit original documents in support of the shipment, failure to get clearance permit reports, and importers' refusal to pay fines for anomalies.

However, following the letter, Customs authorities on Monday auctioned off 30.5 tonnes of hydrogen peroxide imported four years ago.

The customs sold it at only Tk 5.20 lakh, far below the reserved price (a minimum price a seller would accept from a buyer) of around Tk 25 lakh, for its quick removal from the port area.

Ali Reza Haider, deputy commissioner of Chattogram Customs House, told The Daily Star that they have taken the issue very seriously. "Checking and sorting through the list [of hazardous materials] by the port has allowed us to know the present condition of the goods. Inventory of most of the containers has already been done, following which the goods will either be auctioned off or destroyed as soon as possible according to the relevant law."

He, however, said they were not able to sell some goods despite putting them up for auction several times due to low price offers.

After visiting the ill-fated BM depot on Monday, Shipping Minister Khalid Mahmud Chowdhury told top customs officials to auction off or destroy all kinds of dangerous goods inside the port to prevent another such tragic incident.

After the Beirut port explosion in Lebanon in 2020, the Chattogram port and customs authorities have actively begun looking into the handling of such cargoes.

They have formed a six-member committee to list the hazardous products.

The committee found various types of chemicals and hazardous materials, which were imported between 1992 and 2019, and are currently kept in around 55 pallets, 13 drums, and around 900 packages.

In the last two years, customs officials said they have auctioned at least 24 containers containing various Contacted, Mir Moshraf Hossain, officer-in-charge of Tangail Sadar Police Station, said, "Necessary legal measures will be taken after investigation."

Noose tightens on low-income groups branded ones were Tk 57, up Tk 5.

Taleb Sheikh, a security guard for a house in the capital's Tejguri Bazar, has a family of four. He said that with the prices of essentials going up, it has become difficult for him to run his family.

"Earlier, if we spent Tk 100 a day, we could eat. Now even Tk 200 seems not enough. We just eat rice, eggs, vegetables and lentils every day.

"We don't want to eat meat,' my son and daughter say to console me... but the fact is I don't have the money to buy fish or meat. I may have to send my children back to the village home," said a dejected Taleb.

What he did not know is that sending them to the village may not help.

The food inflation in rural areas was 6.71 percent and in urban areas 5.49 percent in March, according to the Bangladesh Bureau of Statistics. It put the overall food inflation at 6.34 percent in March, which was 5.60 percent in January.

According to a recent multisectoral research report jointly prepared by the Power and Participation Research Centre and the Brac Institute of Governance and Development, more than three crore people became poor again during the pandemic.

It said this number decreased as Bangladesh began recovering from the pandemic fallout, but the recent price hike of essentials has made 21 lakh people poor again.

People like Taleb could be in for tougher times ahead. For them, there is no light at the end of the tunnel yet.

Retailers and wholesalers fear the prices of imported items could increase further due to supply disruptions caused by the Ukraine war.

Shahjahan Talukdar, wholesaler and owner of the Mukta Rice Agency of Karwan Bazar, one of the largest kitchen markets in the capital, said, "I have been in the rice trade for years. I have never seen the prices of rice rise during the peak season. It always dropped."

SM Nazer Hossain, vice-president of the Consumers Association of Bangladesh, said there was inflationary pressure in the country and its effects hit all sectors.

He said the soaring prices of essentials have put consumers under a lot of pressure as the costs have gone up for almost everything.

Market monitoring needs to be strengthened. If not, some traders will increase the prices to make a quick buck, he said.

Bet on poor, future

Only in Mongolia, Nepal and the Kyrgyz Republic in Asia were the impacts of school closures more severe.

In the upcoming fiscal year, it is essential that the government prioritises spending on education, which has historically been meagre.

Children who have dropped out of school during the pandemic must be brought back to classrooms through financial support and incentives.

For those still in school, effective learning programmes should be devised to offer appropriate support such as tutoring or special classes to bridge the learning gap, the ADB report said.

And for the youth already out of school, they must be given additional skills training.

Ample funding must be provided to equip the youth with digital skills and awareness, which can become a key driver for productivity and economic growth, according to the Manila-based multilateral lender.

And raising labour productivity is of the essence seeing that the duty benefits that Bangladesh currently enjoys would be evaporating not long after graduation.

Bangladesh's exports simply need to be competitive and varied vis-a-vis peers if the current trend is to continue once the safety guard of duty benefits come off.

Another side-effect of graduation is the loss of the option of concessionary loans from multilateral and bilateral lenders.

That means the government would have to rely more and more on local revenue mobilisation to fund its expenses to support its growth aspiration of becoming an advanced economy by 2041.

At south of 10 percent, Bangladesh's tax to GDP ratio is one of the lowest in the world, restricting the government's fiscal space for the present and for the future.

This must be remedied with urgency. The tax administration must be automated and the tax policy needs to be streamlined and conducive to plug the longstanding ailments of leakages, corruption and evasion.

And the budget must have explicit references toward this direction. Otherwise, a rude awakening awaits the government.

The characteristic of a middle-income country is more and more people are employed in industries and services and fewer and fewer people in agriculture. To prepare for the transition, farm mechanisation needs to take off in earnest in Bangladesh, and the budget must incentivise that well.

When Kamal, a chartered accountant, took charge as the finance minister for five years in 2019, he contended that he would be going great guns as "this was his subject".

So, for him, anything less than smooth graduation would mean he failed to score a distinction in his greatest exam. And his bid for that starts now.

at Dhanmondi-32 around 5:00pm, causing gridlock in the areas.

People who were stuck on roads were posting on the "Traffic Alert" Facebook group, urging members to avoid certain areas. The roads over which the procession moved were shown in dark red on Google Maps, signifying that there was major congestion in those areas.

There were a number of private hospitals in those areas. Patients and their relatives also suffered due to the congestion.

"Avoid Karwan Bazar, Panthapath and Dhanmondi 32. I have been stuck for 50 minutes in front of Square Hospitals," said Mashrufa Jahan, who came to visit her relatives at the hospital.

Sanwar Hossain, a passenger stuck in the traffic jam, said, "Usually traffic jams occur in the morning due to the movement of office-goers and school or college students. However, the traffic pressure is comparatively less at noon. But today [yesterday], there is much more pressure around noon."

Kamrul Islam, a car driver, said he was stuck for four hours on his way to Mohakhali from the airport. Private job holder Rakin Ahmed said he is a regular commuter in the city.

"But today [yesterday], I faced the worst traffic jam of my life..." he said. Maruf Ahmed said he came from Bashundhara Residential Area to Dhanmondi 27 on an Uber car. It cost him Tk 908.

Mohua Islam, another private employee, said she started for her office in Karwan Bazar from Segunbagicha in the afternoon. But she had to cancel the trip later on due to the heavy traffic.

Visiting Karwan Bazar and Panthapath, it was seen that when the ruling party men marched through the roads, vehicular movement was paralysed.

On January 31, 2019, Road Transport And Bridges Minister Obaidul Quader, also the AL general secretary, said none would be allowed to hold rallies obstructing roads on weekdays, and that political parties could hold demonstrations or rallies only on public holidays.

President of Dhaka City North AL Sheikh Bazlur Rahman regretted the sufferings caused due to the traffic congestion.

At the procession, Advocate Jahangir Kabir Nanak, a member of the presidium of the AL, issued a stern warning to the BNP-Jamaat, saying no one would be spared if they threatened Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina in Bangabandhu's Bangladesh.

The AL alleged that BNP made a slogan about the assassination of 1975.

At a rally in front of the Jatiya Press Club, BNP leader Gayeshwar Chandra Ray yesterday said, "Recently, Abdul Qadir Bhuiyan Jewel, general secretary of Swachhasebak Dal, said at a programme, 'Let the weapon of November 7 [National Revolution and Solidarity Day in 1975] roar once again... But the people of the ruling party want to say that their leader Sheikh Hasina has been threatened with death by this slogan. I will tell those in power that BNP does not believe in killing anyone.'"
