

DEPOSITS WITH SWISS BANKS
Dhaka in talks with Bern to find ways to exchange info

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

Bangladesh has started a discussion with Switzerland to develop a mechanism for exchanging information on funds deposited by Bangladeshi citizens in Swiss banks, to ensure that there is no confusion over the matter.

The mechanism will also help bring back money if it was laundered from Bangladesh, said Foreign Secretary Masud Bin Momen.

"We will try to ensure that no one from Bangladesh illicitly transfers money. This does not only concern Switzerland but other countries as well. For example, we know about tax havens like Panama and the Caribbean islands," he told reporters at the foreign ministry yesterday.

At an event at Jatiya Press Club on August 10, Swiss Ambassador Nathalie Chuard said Bangladeshi authorities did not seek information about any particular fund from Swiss authorities.

The next day, Foreign Minister AK Abdul

Momen said the ambassador's statement is not true.

In the wake of an embarrassing situation, the High Court intervened. Bangladesh Financial Intelligence Unit (BFIU) and Anti-Corruption Commission placed two separate reports before the HC, saying that BFIU sought information from Switzerland Financial Intelligence Unit (SFU) through Egmont Secure Web about 67 persons and organisations, who or which have allegedly deposited money to Swiss banks.

Tk 120 for a day's work is not something that can be worked with in this economy, is what the tea workers of the country have been trying to say since August 13, the first day of their strike demanding a raise. In Sylhet's Malinichara Tea Garden, this tea worker holds a placard that says, "The movement for raise will go on." This photo was taken yesterday.

Tea workers' strike for pay hike to continue as meeting with govt officials yields no results

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Moubibazar

A government-convened meeting to discuss revising wages of tea garden workers ended without any decision yesterday.

The Department of Labour yesterday held a day-long meeting with workers at its Sreemangal's office in Moulvibazar.

As the officials and workers could not reach a consensus over the wage hike, the department will hold another meeting with both workers and tea garden owners today at the department's head office in Dhaka.

"In today's (yesterday) meeting, I heard problems and demand of workers. Then I requested the workers to resume work. At the same time, we assured them that we will continue discussions with owners about the wage hike. But the workers did not agree," said Khaled Mamun Chowdhury, director general of the Department of Labour.

"We will hold another tripartite meeting tomorrow (Wednesday) at 4:00pm in Dhaka," he told this correspondent last evening.

However, the workers remain rigid to continue their work abstention until their demand is met.

"We will resume work only after our demands are fulfilled," said Nipen Paul, acting general secretary of Bangladesh Tea Workers Union.

Workers of 166 tea estates across the country, including those in Chattogram and Sylhet, have refrained from working since August 13 demanding a hike in daily wage from existing Tk 120 to 300.

Meanwhile, tea workers held daylong demonstrations and rallies in different gardens to press home their demands yesterday.

Around 11:00am, workers blocked roads in Gazipur area of Moulvibazar's Kulaura upazila and observed a one-and-a-half hour hunger strike.

Addressing the programme, a female worker Gouri Almik said, "We don't want to conduct any movement. But we have no alternative. It is impossible to survive with a daily wage of Tk 120. We demand
