

WHO WORE WHAT!

Abanti Sithi
Despite a leg injury, Abanti Sithi sportingly made it to the red-carpet evening and still managed to rock the stages with her beautiful aura. Clad in a white gown with floral imprints she looked simply beautiful.

Arifin Shuvoo
Wearing jeans with comfortable kurta (short panjabi), the actor certainly prioritised the deshi look. The statement hat, silver beads, and brown shades certainly matched his look for the day. If it was entirely on us, we'd assume that he was going for the perfect blend of eastern and western styles.

Armeen Musa
We simply love her and now even more so because of the way she rocks the classic black. Armeen Musa was clad in a lovely black and yellow combination sari, but that was not what actually made her stand out for the evening — it was her lovely dinosaur earrings that pulled the crowd.

Aruna Biswas
Keeping it traditional, Biswas wore a beautiful jamdani sari in the combination of blue, yellow and sea green. She opted for a low bun adorned with beli ful (Arabian Jasmine) and gold jhumkas (danglers). Thanks to Aruna Biswas, the venue was uplifted with the traditional touches of a bygone era.

Zinat Sanu Swagata
Swagata wore a printed floral sari in shades of pastel. She paired her look with an equally gorgeous mint-green blouse, minimal makeup prioritising the recent favourite 'nude look,' and a pair of traditional jhumkas (danglers).

Shanta Islam
Shanta Islam donned the deshi jamdani in peach-pink. The actress made sure her jewellery made up for the colours that she was wearing for the red-carpet evening. With a puffed sleeve blouse, heavy neckpiece and a handful of gold bangles, Shanta Islam certainly stood out amongst the crowd.

Shirin Akter Shila
For the exclusive red-carpet evening, Shiring Akhter Shila was wearing Meher by Samina Sara, an outfit that carried multiple crystals and exclusive stones. What stood out amongst the entire wardrobe was her bright and blood-red lipstick. Great choice in shades!

Shohel Mondol
Clad in a white, striped tuxedo shirt, black tuxedo pants, bow tie, and black glasses, Shohel Mondol certainly stood out amongst the crowd. Mondol's entire look was etched by Rulmaker, a soon-to-be extremely popular gentleman's clothing store, especially after the red-carpet event.

Shoumik Ahmed
The famous YouTuber/actor looked dapper in a black suit with tiny black crystals embroidered onto the outfit, a creation of Meher by Samina Sara. According to Ahmed, the designer developed a custom-made suit, so that Ahmed could dazzle the red carpet with his persona.

Orchita Sporshia
Sporshia wore a solid black jumpsuit with black heels. For jewellery, she went for pearl ear studs and a thin pearl necklace. With minimal makeup, her look was classy, sassy, and fresh at the same time.
