India's top court vesterday upheld the right of a woman to an abortion up to 24 weeks into pregnancy regardless of marital status, a decision widely hailed by women's rights activists.

"Even an unmarried can undergo woman abortion up to 24 weeks on par with married women," said Justice D.Y. Chandrachud of India's Supreme Court, holding that a woman's marital status could not decide her right to abort.

"The decision to have or not to have an abortion is borne out of complicated life circumstances, which only the woman can choose on her own terms without external interference or influence," the court ruling

It added that every woman should have the "reproductive autonomy" to seek abortion, without consulting a third party.

Hurricane Ian batters Florida

workers Rescue residents of Florida's Gulf Coast searched for missing people and picked up the pieces from wrecked homes yesterday after Hurricane Ian tore through the area with howling winds, torrential rains and raging

One of the mightiest storms to hit the US mainland in recent years, Ian flooded communities and left more than two million homes businesses without power before barreling on across the peninsula to the Atlantic seaboard. It was downgraded to a tropical storm yesterday morning. Ian blasted ashore at the barrier island of Cayo Costa on Wednesday afternoon as a Category 4 hurricane.

An unspecified number of people were stranded after choosing to ride it out at home rather than heed evacuation orders, Florida governor said.

US Vice President Kamala Harris tours South Korea's heavily fortified border with the nuclear-armed North yesterday, part of a trip aimed at strengthening the security alliance with Seoul. North Korea fired a ballistic missile off its east coast yesterday, South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff said, following the firing of two short-range ballistic missiles a day earlier.

US declares $810m new funding for Pacific Islands

Aims to stem China's expanding influence in the region

AFP, Washington

The United States yesterday announced $810 million in new funding for Pacific Islands at a summit with President Joe Biden amid inroads by China in the strategic but sparsely populated region. The White House said $600 million will be in the form of a 10-year package to clean up dirty waters to support the tuna industry, while the United States will also expand climate assistance, development aid and its diplomatic Biden was set to address a first-ever Washington summit of Pacific Island nations later yesterday, including 12 heads of state or government, in hopes of using a personal touch to reconnect with a region that has been tied closely to the United States since World War II.

With the United States often seen as taking the region for granted, China has asserted itself strongly in recent years through investment, police training and, most controversially, a security pact with the Solomon Islands.

The Biden administration also announced that the United States would recognize Cook Islands and Niue, a self-governing territory whose foreign and defense policies and currency are linked to New Zealand.

The step will allow the United States to increase its diplomatic presence in the Cook Island and Niue, which have fewer than 20,000 inhabitants but constitute a sprawling economic zone in the South Pacific.

Launching a new strategy engagement, Biden also designated a veteran US ambassador in the region, Frankie Reed, as the first-ever US envoy to the Pacific Islands Forum.

The US recently announced the restoration of an embassy in the Solomon Islands, amid the heavy of China, presence and the White House said vesterday that US embassies would also open in Tonga and Kiribati.

The US Agency for International Development will open a Pacific regional mission in Fiji by September 2023 and Peace Corps volunteers will return to Fiji, Tonga, Samoa and Vanuatu. Addressing the summit opening at the State Department on Wednesday, US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said the two sides had agreed "a declaration of partnership between the US and the Pacific."

MAHSA AMINI PROTESTS Iran targets media, celebrities

AFP, Paris

Iran yesterday stepped up pressure on celebrities and journalists over the wave of women-led protests sparked by outrage over the death of Mahsa Amini after she was arrested by the Islamic republic's morality

Filmmakers, athletes, musicians and actors have backed the demonstrations, and many saw it as a signal when the national football team remained in their black tracksuits when the anthems were played before a match in Vienna against Senegal. "We will take action against the celebrities who have fanned the flames of the riots," Tehran provincial governor Mohsen Mansouri said, according to the ISNA news agency.

POST-COUP MYANMAR

Suu Kyi, Aussie economist jailed for 3 years

Suu Kvi has already been convicted of corruption and a clutch of other charges by a closed court.

ONLINE HATE SPEECH FB must compensate Rohingyas: Amnesty

Facebook should pay reparations to the hundreds of thousands of Rohingya forced from their homes in Myanmar in a campaign exacerbated by rampant online hate speech, Amnesty International said yesterday. The Rohingya, a mainly Muslim minority, were targeted by Myanmar's military rulers in 2017 and driven into neighbouring Bangladesh, where they have since lived in sprawling refugee camps. Victims' associations and rights advocates argue the violence was ramped up by Facebook's algorithms, saying they play up extremist content that encourages harmful disinformation and hate speech. "Many Rohingya tried to report anti-Rohingya content via Facebook's 'report' function" but to no avail, "allowing these hateful narratives to proliferate and reach unprecedented audiences in Myanmar," Amnesty said in its
