Women can perform hajj, umrah without blood relatives

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A woman pilgrim no longer requires a mahram (blood relative) to accompany her if she wishes to travel to Saudi Arabia to perform hajj or umrah.

Saudi Minister of Hajj and Umrah Tawfiq Al-Rabiah made the announcement at a press conference at Saudi embassy in Cairo on Monday.

The minister brought to end the lingering controversy over whether any woman pilgrim requires a mahram, the Saudi Gazette said in a report.

Talking to this correspondent, M Shahadat Hossain Taslaim, president of Hajj Agencies Association of Bangladesh, yesterday said the new announcement will bring about a positive change.

Every year, Bangladeshi women face difficulties while arranging a mahram.

On top of that, the women usually need to bear all expenses of the mahram. In 2019, around 1.27 lakh Bangladeshis were allowed to perform hajj.

Not bothered by it Says CEC on shifting NID job to home ministry

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Chief Election Commissioner Kazi Habibur Awal yesterday said the issue of shifting all services relating NID cards from the Election Commission to the home ministry was solely a government matter. The government is going to give the job of issuing national identity (NID) cards to the home ministry, taking away the responsibility from the EC.

On Monday, the cabinet approved in principle the draft of the National Identity Registration Act-2022 on conditions that some of its provisions would be reviewed and some sections of the existing law would be added to it unchanged. "If the NID jobs goes to anyone... this is not our [EC's] matter. This is matter of the government, parliament and state. We are not bothered about it," Habibur said.

"Voter list will remain with us... the Election Commission will have a transparent voter list. We will conduct the election with the voter list. We will
