

Moushumi hopeful for BHANGON

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

Audiences should go to the theatres to watch Bangladeshi films, regardless of whether it is my film or someone else's. However, I would say this film is very close to my heart and I would be very happy if people went to watch it.

Over the years, Moushumi has made her mark as one of the most prominent female leads in the film industry. Beginning her career with "Keyamot Theke Keyamot", she has given the audience numerous box office hits over the years. In recent years, the actress has been away from the silver screen for a while, but she will soon be returning with the movie "Bhangon", which will be released on November 4. Recently, The Daily Star caught up with Moushumi to talk about her upcoming film, the current situation of the film fraternity and much more.

How have you been spending your downtime?
I am doing great, thank you! I have been spending a lot of time with my family, which is wonderful, and I want to keep myself busy with work.

How hopeful are you about "Bhangon", as it will be your comeback to the silver screens after a long time?

I have really high hopes for this project. Not just because it will be my comeback, but because this film has given me the chance to experience a lot of things, which I previously never had the opportunity to explore.

For example, in the movie, I play a churiwali. I also got to stay in a slum during the shooting. Both of these experiences were rather interesting, and I believe that the audience will appreciate it. I had a great time working alongside Mirza Shakhawat Hossain on this project.

Why should the audience go to the theatres to watch "Bhangon"?

Audiences should go to the theatres to watch Bangladeshi films, regardless of whether it is my film or someone else's. However, I would say this film is very close to my heart and I would be very happy if people went to watch it. Our film industry has been experiencing a lot of growth and success in recent times. We are receiving accolades globally for our films.

Films like "Poran" and "Hawa" have changed the scenario of the film industry. What are your thoughts on this phenomenon?

I am overjoyed at the success of these films in the theatres. The industry has given me a lot over the years, and so I am happy to see the success the industry has been experiencing. I hope that this trend shall continue and that the golden days of Bangladeshi cinema will return once again.

Recently the issues surrounding Shakib Khan and Shobnom Bubby's personal life have been the talk of the town. What are your thoughts on this issue?

No comments. I only want to talk about my upcoming film and to request audiences to watch "Bhangon".

For more than two decades, you have ruled over the hearts of the Bangladeshi audience. People have showed you respect and loved your performances. What are your feelings about this appreciation?

I am grateful to the Almighty and the people who have always supported me. I have always tried to work with honesty, and I want to continue doing this going forward.

of the International Day for Disaster Risk Reduction 2022.

The disaster management and relief ministry organised the event at the capital's Osmani Memorial Auditorium, with the premier joining it virtually from the Gono Bhaban.

Hasina said Bangladesh has established its position as a disaster resilient country on the global stage.

"The world believes that whatever disaster occurs, Bangladesh is capable of tackling it. We have to continue our efforts."

The premier said Bangladesh witnessed a devastating cyclone in 1991 when the then BNP government was not aware of it and that's why 1.5 lakh people were killed.

Hasina, also the Awami League president, said the leaders and activists of her party stood by the cyclone-hit people and she herself visited different islands in Chattogram and helped the victims.

She said Bangladesh is a disaster-prone country due to its geographical location and the country is used to facing flood, cyclone, waterlogging and salinity.

Bangladesh would certainly advance towards prosperity fighting all natural and manmade disasters as the AL government was working to achieve the target, the premier added.

Hasina said her government has already started working on the implementation of the Mujib Climate Prosperity Plan Decade-2030 following the footsteps of Father of the Nation Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.

"This plan is not only climate centric, rather it's for transforming Bangladesh into a developed and prosperous country."

In this connection, the PM said Bangladesh has formulated a 100-year-long Delta Plan-2100 aimed at protecting the country from the adverse impact of climate change.

She said six hot spots have been identified across the country considering the level of disasters. Besides, National Disaster Management Plan 2021-25 has been adopted to reduce disaster risks, respond to disasters and post-disaster rehabilitation and development.

The premier said her government has been working to revive canals, and water bodies across the country alongside dredging rivers to increase their capacity of holding water. Hasina briefly described her government's measures to tackle the adverse impact of climate change.

"We are very aware of climate change. It will not be wise to be dependent on others over the issue and we formed a trust fund with our own financing."

The PM asked all concerned to make sure that the country's environment is not hampered.

She said Bangladesh is among the countries worst affected by climate change though it has no contribution to the adverse impact of climate change.

Hasina said the developed countries who contributed to the adverse impact have made promises of providing enough monetary compensations, but the pledges are mostly unfulfilled.

The premier, however, said she sees hope due to the signing of the Paris Agreement.

State Minister for Disaster Management and Relief Md Enamur Rahman and Secretary Md Kamrul Hasan also spoke at the function.

On behalf of the PM, the state minister handed over awards to 83 Cyclone Preparedness Programme (CPP) volunteers for their contribution to disaster risk management.

yesterday said, "In this connection, we specially underscore the need to take similar uniform stand by the international community against the annexations of Palestinian and other Arab land by Israel."

Bangladesh remains deeply concerned by the continuation of the conflict in Ukraine and its global socio-economic implications, with the countries facing high inflation, disruptions in energy supplies and a possible global economic recession.

"We believe that antagonism like war or economic sanctions, counter-sanctions cannot bring good to any nation. Dialogue, discussion and mediation are the best ways to resolve crises and disputes."

"As a firm believer of multilateralism, we will continue to stand with the United Nations and the office of the secretary-general and supporting them in every way we can."

"We urge that in order to gain the trust and confidence of the people at all levels, the UN and the office of the secretary-general must lead from the front and work to fulfill the expectations of all," it said.

Bangladesh urged all parties in the conflict to play positive role for de-escalation and resume immediate diplomatic dialogue in order to settle all disputes by peaceful means, and refrain from taking any action that may endanger international peace and security.

The statement said all should work towards ending war and stopping arms race for the good of mankind.

said Ijtema was not held in the last two years due to the Covid pandemic.

not say that, but also, I personally worry if the Bangladesh government will swing position later on, with... outside pressure, or not, I am not sure. I am not sure."

The Chinese envoy said if China decided to go ahead with the project and then Bangladesh decided not to after "someone's suggestions that it is again another case of Chinese debt trap, or there is particular geopolitical sensitivity", it would put him in a very awkward position.

In July 2020, Bangladesh sought a $983 million loan from China to implement the project. The government is to provide about $130 million of the total project cost.

The project involves dredging the river for navigability, building strong embankments, townships, industries on two sides of the river, water reservoirs, and irrigation facilities.

Most of the 1,11,000 hectares of irrigable land in the Teesta basin cannot be cultivated during dry season. In 2013-14, only 35 per cent of the irrigable area was cultivated, Colombo is supposed to return the money in three instalments from February-March next year, Talukder said, quoting Weerasinghe.

"This is really very good news for Bangladesh... its [central bank] governor has confirmed that they would meet the deadline," Talukder told reporters after the meeting.

The island nation, which has been facing an economic crisis, borrowed $200 million from Bangladesh in May 2021. The country could not start repaying the loan and announced its external debt default in April this year amid a deepening crisis.

Bangladesh extended the deadline twice for Sri Lanka, Talukder said.

In April this year, the BB granted Sri Lanka another year for repayment.

The governor of Sri Lanka's central bank confirmed that the nation has undertaken a debt restructuring plan and started talks with India, China and Japan regarding it, Talukder said.

As per the agreement with Sri Lanka, Bangladesh was supposed to receive an interest payment of according to officials concerned.

Jiming visited the Teesta river in Rangpur on October 9 as he wanted to make sure if local government and people wanted the project.

"Fortunately, all the messages that I got from that trip is extremely positive," he said, adding that he would send a message to his colleagues in Beijing that the people were eager about the project, something that would help build confidence among the Chinese officials.

The Teesta water sharing deal could not be signed, though it was ready in 2011, due to opposition from Indian Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee.

Jiming said China was actively engaged in finding ways to help Rohingya repatriation. "We are working silently. We are doers, not talkers," he said.

After recent border violations by Myanmar, China reached out to Myanmar in response to Bangladesh's request, he said, adding that he would officially let Bangladesh know about it.
