

Govt removing officials in fear of losing power Says Fakhru

UNB, Dhaka

BNP Secretary General Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir yesterday alleged that the government is removing the government officials from their jobs out of anxiety.

"They (govt) have become very nervous. The government of (Sheikh) Hasina is so anxious that now they have started removing the officials... out of fear of losing power," he said.

In the context of sending some of the officials to forced retirement, Fakhru made the remarks while addressing a rally in front of the BNP's Nayapaltn central office.

BNP's Dhaka south and north city units organised the rally to protest against the police attacks on party leaders and activists, their arrests and harassment in "false" cases.

The protest was also meant for registering the

Rooppur to get powerful reactors

Says Rosatom DG at meeting with the prime minister

UNB, Dhaka

Bangladesh will get high-powered reactors for Rooppur Nuclear Power Plant (RNPP) for optimum generation of electricity, said Rosatom Director General Alexey Likhachev yesterday.

Fresh nuclear fuel for the country's first ever nuclear power project will come in October next year, Likhachev said.

Likhachev said this during a call on Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina at her official residence Gono Bhaban, according to the prime minister's Press Secretary Ihsanul Karim.

Rosatom is the Russian contractor for the implementation of the US$2.65 billion nuclear power project.

The meeting took place a day after the prime minister inaugurated the installation of the final reactor at the second unit of the 2400 MW plant being built at Rooppur in northern Pabna district.

The Rooppur Nuclear Power Plant will have two units each having the electricity generation capacity of 1200 MW.

Likhachev said Russia is also interested in conducting research on nuclear science and technology in Bangladesh. He mentioned that they are training the Bangladeshi manpower for the RNPP.

The prime minister thanked Russia, particularly the Rosatom DG, for extending support and continuing the construction work in full swing even during the Covid-19 pandemic.

Media can help navigate bilateral issues

Say journalists from 2 countries on Bangladesh-India ties

SUGGESTIONS

- Set up specialised centres on two countries
- Address issues through friendly, cooperative approach
- Nurture people-to-people ties
- More collaboration between journo's of 2 countries

DIPLMATIC CORRESPONDENT

The proactive, collaborative roles of media in Bangladesh and India can help address the complexities in their bilateral ties, said senior journalists from the two countries.

They observed that many a time, misreporting or not pointing out problems leads to tension between the two neighbouring countries, whose relationship is special because of their common history and culture, and owing to India's contribution in Bangladesh's fight for independence.

Therefore, the ties are more people-to-people, which should be nurtured. This is where the critical role of journalists comes in to enhance the ties. To do this, they should not become victims of politics.

IT WAS AN EYEWASH

Stakeholders' consultation mostly ignored in final draft of social media, OTT regulation

ZYMA ISLAM and ASHUTOSH SARKAR

Even though Bangladesh Telecommunication Regulatory Commission (BTRC) had invited feedback on the draft of its new social media regulation, the finalised version shows that little or no heed was paid to the major stakeholders.

Last Wednesday, BTRC gave the High Court the meeting minutes of the last three sessions held by the Regulation Formation Committee when finalising the draft of the regulation. The minutes portray that crucial feedback given by stakeholders was not even discussed, let alone adopted.

The finalised "BTRC Regulation for Digital, Social Media and OTT Platforms" was submitted to the High Court on the same day.

The final draft allows the government to order individuals to take down content, empowers it to order social media companies to block content, and grants it indemnity for its actions under the law.

Over the months, Transparency International Bangladesh (TIB), Bangladesh Legal Aid Services Trust (BLAST), Global Network Initiatives and others sent feedback ringing alarm bells about the government constricting the space for free expression.

BLAST, in its recommendations, had told BTRC that "imposing restrictions on the creation and dissemination of online content will create a chilling effect on freedom of expression concerning issues of rights and justice, including by and

Dengue cases cross 28,000, 2nd highest since 2000

Four more die in 24 hours

HELEMUL ALAM

Dengue has still not loosened its grip on the country, as infections keep piling up. Cases this year reached 28,698 yesterday, the second highest since 2000, when the country witnessed the first-ever outbreak.

According to Directorate General of Health Services (DGHS), at least four dengue patients died, while 896 were hospitalised across the country in 24 hours till yesterday morning.

Experts fear the situation will persist throughout this month, but cases may start decreasing from the beginning or middle of November.

According to DGHS data, of the total 28,698 cases, 12,606 were recorded in just 20 days of October, while 55 out of the 110 deaths were witnessed during the same period.

A total of 1,01,354 people, the highest ever, were hospitalised and 179 died in 2019.

When the first outbreak occurred in 2000, 93 died and 5,551 were infected.

Entomologist Manzur Chowdhury said the government will

The authorities are sufficiently prepared to provide dengue treatment if cases increase further. However, it must be kept in mind that the health ministry can only provide treatment, not kill Aedes mosquitoes.

Zahid Maleque, Health minister have to conduct a massive campaign to destroy Aedes mosquito breeding grounds and kill adult mosquitoes.

"Everyone will have to spray insecticide in their homes twice a day. Every citizen of the country, not only residents of Dhaka, will have to remain cautious, so that mosquitoes don't bite them," Manzur said.

Rainfall is still being witnessed, so daily dengue infections may not decline till mid-November, he said.

Entomologist Kabirul Bashar said it is essential to conduct crash programmes to control Aedes mosquitoes across the country.

Using mosquito nets is crucial, no matter whether it is day or night, he said, adding that children will have to wear full-sleeved clothes.

Meanwhile, Health Minister Zahid Maleque yesterday said the authorities are sufficiently prepared to provide dengue treatment if cases increase further.

"We have readied Dhaka North City Corporation Hospital, the new wing of BSMU and Lalkuthi hospital," he said at a programme at Bangladesh Shishu Hospital and Institute.

However, it must be kept in mind that the health ministry can only provide treatment, not kill Aedes mosquitoes, the minister said.

Stressing the need for city corporations and municipalities to kill mosquitoes, Maleque said dengue patients will go down when the Aedes mosquito population goes down. At a programme in Dhaka yesterday, Nazmul Islam, director of DGHS' disease control wing, said they are expecting dengue cases to decrease from early next month.

He said many factors are behind the high dengue cases. "This year, the monsoon came late. There has been intermittent rain, barely any torrential rain, then regular rain due to low pressure. These issues have played a very important role."

"We believe no one person can deal with all the impacts of climate change; everyone in the country has to deal with it together... Each citizen has a responsibility to keep the city clean. If we are aware, then of course, breeding areas of mosquitoes will go down, and so will their population," added Nazmul.

Dhaka North City Corporation started a seven-day, anti-mosquito crash programme on Wednesday, which will continue till Tuesday.

Dhaka South City Corporation also started an initiative in five vulnerable wards - 6, 2, 3, 56 and 15 - on October 16, which continued till yesterday.

"We are also taking special measures besides the routine work, which include drives around houses of dengue patients," said Md Abu Nasher, public relations officer of DSCC.
