

DNCC among Bloomberg’s ‘best climate projects’

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Dhaka North City Corporation has been recognised among the World’s Best Climate Projects at the C40 Cities Bloomberg Philanthropies Awards 2022.

C40 and Bloomberg Philanthropies revealed the 10 winners of the awards at the C40 World Mayors Summit in Argentina, according to a press release published on Wednesday on Bloomberg.org.

Awards were given out in five categories to represent the most ambitious and effective projects undertaken by mayors fto address the global climate catastrophe, aligning with this year’s summit theme, United in Action.

Dhaka North City Corporation was recognised for their work on “Expansion of green spaces to create a greener, more inclusive and livable city in DNCC.”

Media can help navigate bilateral issues

The observations were made at a seminar titled “Role of Media in Bangladesh-India Relations: Challenges and Prospects”, organised by Jatiya Press Club at its premises yesterday, marking the golden jubilee of Bangladesh’s independence and 68th founding anniversary of the club.

Addressing the inaugural event virtually, Jatiya Sangsad Speaker Shirin Sharmin Chaudhury said Dhaka and Delhi have taken the relationship to new heights in the last decade, by addressing maritime and land boundary issues as well as improving connectivity and trade.

The two countries can solve the complexities through dialogue and play an essential role in regional integration. Media can play an important role to this end, she said.

In his speech as guest of honour, The Daily Star Editor and Publisher Mahfuz Anam proposed that Bangladesh establish a specialised centre, like a “India Study Institute”, to explore all potentials of Indo-Bangla ties. India can also set up a similar institute on Bangladesh.

These centres can provide intellectual guidance on how to further deepen the relations.

He also suggested that the institutes be funded by the private sector.

Anam said the bilateral ties between the two nations are deep, but there are many complexities as well, which need to be addressed through a friendly, cooperative approach.

One of the major concerns for India was security in its north-east, which was rightly addressed by Bangladesh, and such cooperation should continue, he said.

Anam said although the two countries signed the Ganges Agreement in 1996, the water-sharing issue has not evolved smoothly. The Teesta deal remaining unsigned is frustrating for Bangladesh.

Besides, he requested the Indian journalists not to look at Bangladesh through its relations with any other country.

Stressing on water sharing, Indian Journalists’ Union President Geetarth Pathak said Bangladesh, as a lower riparian country, has the right to get sufficient water from the 54 common rivers, but that is not being ensured.

Bangladesh suffers from both flooding and drought, he said. “I hope journalists of both countries will focus on this issue.”

He said in Assam, so-called “illegal infiltrators from Bangladesh” have been made into a big issue because of power politics. If political parties’ motives go against human rights, the media should highlight it.

Pathak said if a society is dominated by its religious identity, there is a high risk that the society will be divided. Journalists of the two countries should work on these issues.

Prothom Alo Joint Editor Sohrab Hossain said political leaders face various obstacles, as they need to make their voters happy, but the media should not give into those forces. They should report objectively.

However, the media sometimes play the religion and nationality card, he said, calling upon journalists to have more collaboration and cooperation.

Press Club of India President Gautam Lahiri said water scarcity is shown as a reason for not signing the Teesta deal.

“But I think whatever water is there should be shared because it is a right of Bangladesh.”

He said the Citizens Amendment Act (CAA) – which was enacted to give citizenship to Hindus, Sikhs, Buddhists, Jains, Parsis or Christians from Afghanistan, Bangladesh or Pakistan – could not be implemented yet because of media pressure.

When Lahiri talked to the Hindu community in Bangladesh, they said they want to solve problems in their own country, not take shelter in India, taking advantage of the CAA, he said.

Lahiri said border killing has been a thorny issue, but the media has not properly reported on it. He suggested the media of both countries take a joint initiative of investigation for such issues.

Ekattor TV Editor-in-Chief Mozammel Babu, GTV Editor-in-Chief Syed Ishiaque Reza, Bhorer Kagoj Editor Shyamal Dutta, Indian journalist Mohua Chatterjee, Jatiya Press Club General Secretary Elias Khan, Dhaka Union of Journalists President Sohel Haider Chowdhury, senior journalist Monjurul Ahsan Bulbul, and Dhaka University International Relations Prof Imtiaz Ahmed also spoke at the event, chaired by Jatiya Press Club President Farida Yasmin.

party’s anger over police raids on the houses of opposition leaders and workers, sending them to jail in other cases despite obtaining bail from courts.

Referring to a newspaper report, Fakhrul said the government is now unable to repay the loans it borrowed from abroad and different lending agencies. “So, what will happen now? All foreign lending agencies will stop giving loans while the reserves are falling.”

He categorically said the current regime has now no right to rule the country. “You have turned the country into a failed state through corruption and misrule. You please quit power with dignity...”
