morning, said the DB official, adding that the bail paper and condition don't allow Muktar to leave country.

The police raid at the bar earned criticism after the Department of Narcotics Control and Detective Branch came up with conflicting statements.

DB officials said the bar is illegal, while DNC officials said a DNC inspector was harassed and kept locked in a room by DB officials during the police raid, and the bar had licence and valid documents to operate.

During the October 7 raid, about 500 bottles of liquor and more than 6,000 cans of beer were seized from the restaurant.

More than 2,000 establishments have been made occupying the riverbanks over the years, which include a multi-storey building of a general hospital and several important government establishments.

Shahjalal University of Science and Technology Professor Zahirul Haque Shakil, said, "Khowai is the lifeline of Habiganj."

"We've been hit hard with waterlogging in recent years as the river is filled with garbage. Keeping the river alive is crucial for the future of Habiganj town," he added.

According to locals, the river was moved 2 to 3 kilometres west from its current location due to flooding in 1976-77. Since then, the previous section of the waterbody is known as the Old Khowai River. It's about 5 kilometres long, stretching from Machulia to Kamrapur. Due to encroachment, this 200-foot-wide river has become 10 or 20 feet in some places.

repercussions, many owners have abandoned or destroyed their own establishments during this time.

However, the authorities did not hold on to this momentum for a long time and dropped the ball soon after.

As a result, the structures have been rebuilt on the riverbanks and the status quo went back to square one.

Besides, new structures were built on both sides of the river in various places, including Machulia, Inatabad, Shayestanagar, Mahmudabad, Shyamoli and Puran Munsef residential areas.

Shamsul Mia, a resident of Mahmudabad in the city, said encroachers abandoned their buildings initially when the drives started in 2019. But they started coming back after two to three years, as the authorities did not carry on with the evictions.

Contacted, Shah Newaz, WDB executive engineer in Habiganj, said, "I don't know the status of the 2019 project. However, we've recently started construction of a 500-metre walkway on the river's west bank."

"If we get more allocation, we'll engage more manpower in evicting the illegal structures," he said.

Bijan Banerjee, additional deputy commissioner (revenue) of Habiganj, said the authorities will soon conduct eviction drives to free the riverbanks.

annulled the system with the help of Justice Khairul Haque."

Later, he said the government has politicised the judiciary, which now dictates what the nation's political structure will be.

Fakhrul said the government has also destroyed the country's economic structure through widespread looting and stealing. "The main motive behind all mega projects is theft."

He said the ruling party was boasting for a long time that the country has achieved self-sufficiency in electricity with a power generation capacity of about 25,000 MW. "But we're now facing load shedding."

The BNP leader said Tawfiq-e-Elahi at a programme of businessmen helplessly admitted that they will not be able to provide power during the day, and it will be given only at night.

He said people now cannot freely express their opinions due to the Digital Security Act and other repressive laws.

and damage" claim stronger and scientifically valid.

Md Shamsuddoha, chief executive of Centre for Participatory Research and Development (CPRD), said, "The mindset to not accept the 'loss and damage' claim led to political denial from developed countries. However, due to the pressure from affected countries, they agreed to form the "Warsaw International Mechanism for Damage and Loss" in 2013 under UNFCCC."

"The issue was also included under article-8 of the Paris Agreement. In both cases, there was a decision to finance the 'loss and damage' claim. However, no fund was released for that," he added.

Prof Mohammad Abdul Quader, chairperson of geography and environment at Jagannath University, said, "When disasters hit us, we never assess the losses in terms of ecology and biodiversity."

"There are many trickeries from the developed countries to deprive the Global South. Equally, there is a lack of negotiation skills from our side," he added.
