They used to position themselves with a car in front of banks and commercial institutions to target businesspeople. Posing as law enforcers, they would intercept their target and put them inside the car, saying that the victim was wanted in cases. Then the criminals snatched away money and valuables, before dropping the target in deserted areas.

A team of Detective Branch of police (Lalbagh division) arrested six members of a robbery gang, which allegedly snatched away Tk 85 lakh from a businessman in Dhaka's Keraniganj on November 13.

DB recovered Tk 20 lakh of the robbed money and seized a microbus and motorcycle from the arrestees' possession during drives in Dhaka, Savar and Patuakhali on Friday, DB chief Mohammad Harun Or Rashid told a press briefing yesterday.

The arrestees are Sohag Majhi (28), Delwar (26), Joynal Hossain (28), Sohel (27), Jony (32) and Md Aziz (57).

Militant Zia: always a step ahead

Law enforcers struggling to catch him for years

MOHAMMAD JAMIL KHAN

Whenever targeted killings and the resurgence of extremist outfits enter the conversation, the name of sacked army major Syed Ziaul Haque comes up. This has been the case for over a decade.

Zia, popularly known as Major Zia, a top leader of the Al Qaeda-inspired militant outfit Ansar al Islam, has been found to be directly involved in at least six murders of writers and bloggers.

In the latest, he has been named as the mastermind behind the recent snatching of two militants from court premises.

Khan Kamal yesterday told reporters that Zia is constantly changing his position. “Whenever his location was identified, he changed it immediately. He also remains hidden from the surveillance of modern equipment.”

The home boss also said militants possess the same modern equipment or techniques that law enforcement forces use.

“We are trying to get hold of him. We are hopeful of arresting him soon,” he said.

According to investigators, Zia's activities were last noticed in the capital's Gulistan area last year.

He has collected a total of around Tk 6 lakh from a member of Ansar Al Islam behind Gulistan's Ahad police box, when he visited the area twice. He was supposed to collect funds again, said a police official, who has been following Zia's footprints for the last six years.

“We had created a trap to catch him after learning that Zia would go there to collect funds again, but he did not come,” said the official, requesting anonymity.

Asked why law enforcers did not try to catch him during his two visits, the official said even the outfit member, who delivers

AL likely to introduce three leadership posts

Move comes ahead of govt announcing two more divisions

PARTHA PRATIM BHATTACHARJEE

The ruling Awami League is likely to introduce three key leadership positions in the party – two organising secretaries and a joint general secretary – as the government is set to announce two new geographical divisions of the country.

However, top leaders of the ruling party confirmed that although three key positions will be added to the party, the size of Awami League's central working committee – the party's highest decision-making body – will not increase.

Sources said party president Sheikh Hasina is against making the apex body – which currently comprises 81 members – larger.

In that case, the party may deduct three members from the executive committee.

As per the party's constitution, currently, there are 28 posts for executive members.

The issue was discussed at the first meeting of the subcommittee formed for constitutional amendments on November 12, with the agriculture minister and party presidium member Abdur Razzaque in the chair.

After the meeting, the committee sent letters to the party's grassroots leaders, seeking their recommendations for bringing amendments to the party charter, to modernise it and make it more time befitting.

They were asked to send their suggestions within two weeks, after which, the sub-committee will scrutinise the suggestions.
