Businesses for signing FTA with Canada

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

Local businesses want the government to start the negotiation with Canada to ink a free trade agreement (FTA) in order to retain the duty-free market access in the North American nation, said a chamber leader.

The signing of a bilateral foreign investment protection agreement is important to facilitate the inflow of foreign direct investment from Canada to Bangladesh, said Masud Rahman, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Bangladesh, on Sunday.

Canada granted duty-free market access to Bangladesh in 2003. Since then, two-way trade has been growing rapidly and it quadrupled from CAD$600 million to CAD$2.4 billion.

Bangladesh exported goods worth CAD$1.7 billion to Canada in 2018.

Rahman was speaking at an event to celebrate the 50 years of bilateral relations between Canada and Bangladesh at the InterContinental hotel in Dhaka.

In December 2020, Bangladesh struck a preferential trade agreement with Bhutan as part of its efforts to retain duty-free market access after the country becomes a developing nation. This was Dhaka’s first bilateral trade deal with any country.

Bangladesh will have to sign deals with trading partners to ensure preferential market access following Canada granted duty-free market access to Bangladesh in 2003.

Since then, two-way trade has been growing rapidly and it quadrupled from CAD$600 million to CAD$2.4 billion. Bangladesh exported goods worth CAD$1.7 billion to Canada in 2018 graduation since it is expected to lose duty benefits after the change in status.

Md Jashim Uddin, president of the Federation of Bangladesh Chambers of Commerce and Industry, said the apex trade body is playing a critical role to improve bilateral trade and investment relations.

There are immense opportunities for business between the two countries in the areas of leather, agro-foods and blue economy apart from garment items, he said.

Lilly Nicholls, high commissioner of Canada to Bangladesh, said this is a very special time for both Canada and Bangladesh.

Canada was the first country among the G7 nations that recognised Bangladesh after its independence and supplied food aid to the country.

Nicholls lauded the poverty reduction from 90 per cent to 9 per cent.

“We have a lot in common,” the high commissioner said.

AK Abdul Momen, foreign affairs minister, praised Canada as a great friend of Bangladesh.

Bangladesh needs Canada’s general trade preference facility after graduation to a developing nation from the least-developed country in 2026, he said.

He sought cooperation from Canada to put pressure on Myanmar to take back around 1.1 million displaced Rohingyas who were forced to take shelter in Bangladesh. Khalilur Rahman, the high commissioner of Bangladesh to Canada, spoke virtually.

We haven’t reached inflation peak: ECB

REUTERS, Frankfurt

Euro zone inflation has not peaked, and the risk is that it will turn out even higher than currently expected, European Central Bank President Christine Lagarde said on Monday.

“We do not see the components or the direction that would lead me to believe that we’ve reached peak inflation and that it’s going to decline in short order,” Lagarde told the European Parliament.

“Whenever I ask my top-notch economists at the ECB ... about the risk, the answer that I get at the moment is (that) risk is to the upside, without qualifying the upside.”

Internet users dip

“Value-added tax and other tax rates have increased on new connection sales in the current financial year.

Apart from that, the minimum recharge amount has increased by Tk 10-20 while the number of packages and offers has been reduced,” he said.

So, many customers who kept their second or third connections active with low recharge amounts are now either not using them at all or are using them as the primary connection.

“These factors have reduced the fierce competition in selling new connections,” he added.

However, the number of unique internet users is much lower than the BTRC data suggests as many people use multiple SIMs.

According to the new population census of the government, about 6.5 crore people aged five or above in the country of 16.51 crore do not use the internet.

The GSMA estimates only 31 per cent of people in the country are using mobile internet services, which is lower than the South Asian average.
