

Rohingyas avoiding the journey into Bangladesh through Chittagong Union of Bandarban's Madhupachhari Upazila, 2017.

PHOTO: ANJUNA BANERJEE

refugees under a programme titled "Operation Golden Eagle" following an agreement signed with the Bangladesh government in 1979.

MASS EXODUS IN 1991-92

Myanmar's military junta once again targeted the Rohingyas in 1991. An increase in the presence of the Myanmar military in Rakhine State prompted a mass exodus of an estimated 250,000 Rohingyas people to Bangladesh in 1991 and 1992. The army was accused of rape, forced labour, and religious persecution at that time.

The Bangladesh government then set up temporary camps for them in the two districts. Although the governments of Bangladesh and

In this photograph taken on September 7, 2017, unidentified men carry babies and supplies as they walk past a burning house in Bawin Tharye village near Mungpan in Myanmar's Rakhine State.

PHOTO: AFP