Hasina said her government has been able to transform Bangladesh into a digital and developing country in line with the Vision 2021 mentioned in the election manifesto of 2008.

She said her government will make Bangladesh a developed and prosperous country and transform "Digital Bangladesh" into a "Smart Bangladesh" by implementing the Vision 2041.

Ekattorer Ghatok Dalal Nirmul Committee, also a member of the ministry-formed committee, said they are emphasising on finding the martyred intellectuals in upazila towns and other places.

On February 6, 2014, Liberation War Affairs Minister AKM Mozammel Huq told parliament that a complete list of martyred intellectuals would be published by June that year.

The ministry then sent letters to deputy commissioners of all 64 districts, seeking names of intellectuals, but the DCs reportedly did not send in names because the definition for a martyred intellectual was not clear.

On December 14, 2016, Mozammel said the ministry would publish a book containing the names of all martyred intellectuals, but this book, too, is yet to be published.

"Shaheed Buddhijibi Koshgrantha" listed 328 martyred intellectuals. The government documentary "Bangladesh" said 1,109 intellectuals were martyred. "Banglapedia" estimated that 1,111 intellectuals have been killed.

Many war researchers, however, said the total number of martyred intellectuals could be much higher. The members of Buddhijibi Nidhan Tathyanusandhan Committee, set up in 1972, had made a primary list of 20,000 intellectuals who were killed.

First national bamboo park disappears in plain sight

DWOHA CHOWDHURY

In 2012, the forest department took an initiative to protect threatened varieties of bamboo by creating the country's first national bamboo park in Sylhet.

The following year, the park was inaugurated at Forest School and Training Institute on June 6, where 23 varieties of bamboo were planted.

However, in just nine years, the bamboo park disappeared and only a handful of bamboo bushes survived.

The initiative was taken by the Wildlife Conservation and Eco-Tourism Development Project, for which approximately 1,417 hectares of land, including two hillocks, was selected.

The forest department planted 23 varieties of bamboo: Kalshi, Pecha, Rupahi, Tenga, Jai, Muli, Thai Barua, Kata Barua, Pali Marka, Kanchi, Budum, Kali, Sonali, Dolu, Makal, Mritinga, Tetua, Ora, Betua, Porua, Barua, Botom, Rangan and Parua.

The park was inaugurated by the then chief conservator of forests Md Yunus Ali.

While visiting the bamboo park recently, this correspondent witnessed only small bushes of four varieties of bamboo. A forest guard was chopping down five or six pieces of bamboo from a bush.

He said these will be used to make a fence.

While talking to another forest guard, this correspondent learned that bamboo varieties in the plainland were destroyed the very year they were planted.

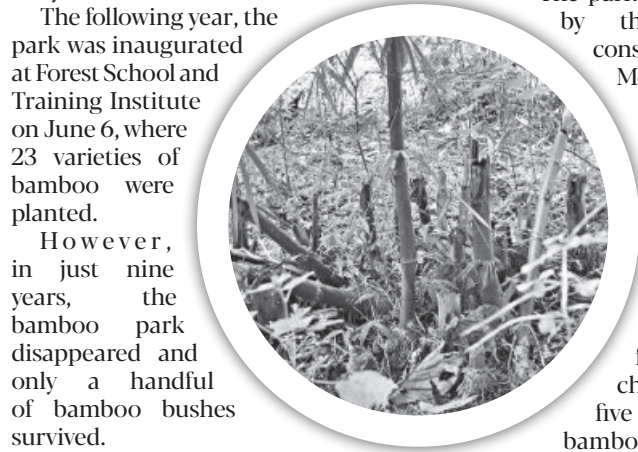

Seeking anonymity, he said no one looked after the park, and people living nearby cut bamboo from the unprotected park over the years.

Advocate Shah Shaheda Akhter, Sylhet divisional coordinator of Bangladesh Environmental Lawyers Association (Bela), said, "They [forest department] tend to create some projects to show that they utilised the allotted budget, but only a handful of people get benefited from those."

"This bamboo park could have been a milestone in the conservation of rare and threatened varieties of bamboo. But carelessness killed the park," she added.

Contacted, Sylhet Divisional Forest Officer Md Towfiqul Islam said he was unaware of such a park and project. The next day, he reached out to this correspondent with information regarding the park.

"As far as I gathered, the bamboo park has been almost destroyed over the years. I will be visiting the spot soon and will take initiative to rejuvenate the park by doing everything necessary," he said.

Nusrat Armeen, section officer at Cumilla University, informed that due to the extensive awareness campaigns in her institution, the committees have been playing a great role there.

"Each student is now aware of the existence of the committee and its responsibilities. However, more training and awareness campaigns are required to continue this progress," she added.

activist; activist Prof Mahfza Khanam; Prof Md Shahjahan Ali of Government Azizul Haque College Bogura; Amena Begum, associate professor at Cumilla Victoria College; Prof Jebunnessa, president of the sexual harassment prevention committee at Jahangirnagar University, spoke at the event among others.

Earlier, in another event held at the Parliament members Club, National Girl Child Advocacy Forum and Parliamentary Caucus on Land Rights urged the government to enact the proposed "Sexual Harassment Prevention and Protection Act 2022" immediately.

Lawmaker Shamsul Hoque Tuku said, "While enacting laws does not always solve everything, the law will create fear for criminals and protect the victims."

Lawmaker Basanti Chakma said, "Before finalising the law, further input from various stakeholders should be sought. The views of the indigenous people from the plain and hills need to be incorporated in particular."

"According to our MoU with Malaysia, the cost is around Tk 80,000. But I hear, they are charging Tk 2 to 3 lakh for immigration."

"Government will take action against the recruitment agencies who are collecting fake medicals and extra money in the name of sending workers to Malaysia. Instructions have already been given regarding this. We will terminate all licenses."

employees of both the health department and the city corporations were involved, said the study.

Speaking at the occasion, Iftekharuzzaman, executive director of TIB, said, "An anarchic situation is evident in medical waste management. There are weaknesses in the relevant legislation. The institutional framework is absent and there is an overall lack of coordination in this regard."

According to the study, Medical Waste (Management and Processing) Rules do not clarify the responsibilities and accountability of city corporations and municipalities for the out-house management of medical waste. "As a result, the city corporation/Municipality has not developed any action plan," it mentioned.

Although there are guidelines from the WHO for the management of recyclable and reusable waste, the rules do not indicate separate categories for reusable and recyclable waste.

For a standardised medical waste management system, the study placed a 13-point recommendation, including coordination, monitoring, and supervision of institutions related to medical waste management; amendment of laws; a clear definition of harmful medical wastes in relevant environment acts; coordination among the stakeholders, including the DoE, DGHS, hospitals and city corporations/municipalities; capacity development of the stakeholders; and adequate budgetary allocation and human resources.

The study also recommended developing a central open database and regularly updating it with information on waste generated, and strict action against corruption and irregularities to stop the illegal trade.

Mohammad Ali that the division facilities given to Mirza Fakhrul Islam Alamgir and Mirza Abbas have been executed on December 13 (yesterday) and therefore, the writ petitions have become infructuous (ineffective).

The petitioners' lawyers requested the HC bench to order the government to produce necessary documents of execution of the decision facilities before the court.

The bench then fixed today (Wednesday) for hearing and passing order on this issue.

A section of pro-BNP lawyers including AJ Mohammad Ali, Zainul Abedin, AM Mahbub Uddin Khokon, Bodruddoza Badal, Kayser Kamal and Md Ruhul Quddus

Kazal appeared for the petitioners.

Earlier in the day, Fakhrul's wife Rahat Ara Begum and Abbas's wife Afroza Abbas submitted the petitions to the HC, saying their husbands deserve division facilities in jail under the jail code as they are former lawmakers and ministers.

A prisoner reportedly gets a separate room, a bed, a table, a newspaper and some other facilities in jail if he or she is granted division facilities under the jail code.

BNP Secretary General Fakhrul and the party's standing committee member Abbas are now in jail in a case filed over the December-7 clash between police and BNP men in the capital's Nayapaltan area.

Rasheda alleged that there is a lack of data on the indigenous peoples of the country and the coordination between the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Primary and Mass Education.

She also criticised the plan on introducing scholarship at the primary level, citing the education minister's comment about minimising certificate-oriented education.

While chairing the programme, Shaheen Anam, executive director of Manusher Jonno Foundation, said, "Manusher Jonno Foundation has been working with the people and local organisations of the Chittagong Hill Tracts for the last 17 years. We worked on their education and livelihood as well as preserving their cultures."

She said the government took a positive initiative to introduce mother-tongue-based education.

"As this is a new initiative, many challenges, including the lack of teachers, remain. But the students are quick to learn when they are taught in their mother tongue," she added.

Prasenjit Chakma, assistant resident representative of UNDP; Md Farhadul Islam, chairman of NCTB; Hakim Arif, director general of International Mother Language Institute, spoke at the programme as special guests, while Mathura Tripura, executive director of Zabargar Kalyan Samity in Khagrachari, spoke as a discussant.

The case was filed with Paltan Model Police Station on December 8. The clash between BNP men and police left one person dead and many others injured.

On December 9, the court sent them to jail rejecting their bail petitions.

The initiative was launched to help the low-income families on the banks of the Brahmaputra in Kurigram's Chilmari.

Ahsanul Kabir Bulu, project manager, said, "We are working to provide women of poor families the opportunity to earn extra money by transforming them into skilled workforce."
