Cutwork, crochet, and cutouts are cool

Matching-matching

Matching and coordinating sets such as a cropped blouse with wide-leg pants or a tie-up shirt with a maxi-length skirt, in fun prints, especially tropical prints will be pretty big next year. Putting on a co-ord set is the easiest way to look effortlessly chic and classy, while also being super comfy.

Ballet season has arrived

Balletcore is out in full swing, and as part of it, ballerina shoes are once again trending. Soft colours like white, cream, baby blue, and soft pink are great for that sweet girly vibe while pointed flats can give you a more sophisticated edge.

Utility and functionality at the front row

Utilitarian fashion will become a mainstay in the form of cargo pants. Cargo pants with lots of large pockets are the way to go.

Accessories for 2023

Chunky jewellery will continue from the past seasons all the way to 2023. Thick chain necklaces, baubles for bangles, bracelets, rings, and neckpieces will be the hottest pieces. Surprise additions to the roster will be arm cuffs and chandelier earrings.

Some honourable mentions

Leather is still coming in strong with sleek jackets, and leather pants, adding that masculine, ripped edge to your personal style. Glitters, sequins, and metallic will be great for parties and evening wear. Colourful suits, blazers, and pants will come together to give you the most fashion-forward, cohesive corporate look. All-white looks, prioritising texture, and long white dresses with cutwork and crochet will be your choice of resort wear. And finally, gladiator sandals of the 2010s are coming back, tagging along with knee-high boots.

Not much will shift radically from what was trending in 2022 for the next year. In the fashion arena, 2023 is about reinventing and embracing femininity in all its flirty, sweet, girly elegance. So, I wish you all a very happy, colourful, and fashionable 2023 ahead where you embrace your true self and personal style with authenticity and confidence.
