A suicide bomber blew himself up inside a crowded mosque in a highly fortified security compound in Pakistan yesterday, killing over 61 people, most of them police.

The attack happened during afternoon prayers in the provincial capital of Peshawar, close to former tribal areas along the Afghan border where militancy has been

A frantic rescue mission was underway at the mosque, which had an entire wall and some of its roof blown out.

"Many policemen are buried under the rubble," said Peshawar police chief Muhammad Ijaz Khan, who estimated between 300 and 400 officers usually attended prayers at the mosque. "Efforts are being made to get them out safely," he added.

Bloodied survivors emerged limping from the wreckage, while bodies were ferried away in ambulances.
