

EARTHQUAKE IN SYRIA

Infrastructure, war to blame for high death toll

AL JAZEERA ONLINE

More than 72 hours since two devastating earthquakes struck northwestern Syria and southern Turkey, civil defence members and rescue teams are still working around the clock in an attempt to rescue people still stuck under the collapsed buildings.

Residential complexes, which were recently built to accommodate those who were forcefully displaced from government-controlled areas of Syria to the opposition-controlled northwest of the country during the now almost 12-year war, were completely destroyed. Older, residential neighbourhoods in Salqin and Harem in the Idlib countryside, as well as al-Atareb and Jenderez in Aleppo were also ruined.

Saria Bitar, a civil engineer and head of Hathi Hayati Volunteering Group in the northern city of Idlib told Al Jazeera that the infrastructure of the buildings in Syria were not equipped to handle earthquakes, especially strong ones. Some structures survived, but those had engineers that supervised the construction and made sure they matched international criteria.

“The first reason for the quick collapse of the buildings in the Idlib and Aleppo countrysides is the violent attacks these cities suffered, with all kinds of heavy weapons over the past 10 years,” Bitar said, referring to Syria’s war.

Osama al-Yahya is one of the survivors that was rescued from under the rubble of his destroyed house at Jinderes, near Afrin in the Aleppo countryside.

But the 40-year-old refused to stay in the tent and decided to come back to the town to help the civil defence teams and other civilians rescuing families still trapped under the debris.

“The situation is disastrous. Hundreds of families are still stuck and we do not know when we will reach them. I alone was able to take out 23 bodies from under the debris, including my neighbours and friends.”

A feeling of helplessness and being let down by the international community has developed, as the families in the area said the world has left them alone in a crisis that countries cannot face alone.

Emergency personnel conduct a rescue operation to save 16-year-old Melda from the rubble of a collapsed building in Hatay, southern Turkey, yesterday. She had been trapped there since a 7.8-magnitude earthquake struck the country’s south-east early Monday.

BIDEN ON SPY BALLOON CONTROVERSY

US not seeking conflict with China

AFP, Washington

President Joe Biden said Wednesday the United States is not looking for conflict with China despite heightened tensions over last week’s downing of a Chinese balloon that US officials say was part of a spy fleet spanning five continents.

“We’re going to compete fully with China, but... we’re not looking for conflict -- and that’s been the case so far,” he said in a televised interview with PBS.

Pointing to global ramifications of the balloon incident that has animated the United States, Secretary of State Antony Blinken said earlier that the United States was giving data to allies as it assesses recovered debris.

White House Press Secretary Karine Jean-Pierre, speaking separately to reporters on Air Force One, described the balloons as part of a fleet and said they had been spotted around the world for several years.

A huge white balloon carrying sophisticated equipment traversed the continental United States last week before Biden ordered the military to shoot it down just off the east coast in the Atlantic.

China insists that the balloon was merely conducting weather research, but the Pentagon described it as a high-tech spying operation.

Beijing yesterday condemned Biden’s comments that Xi Jinping faced “enormous problems”, saying the remarks were “extremely irresponsible”.

Beijing confirmed it had refused the offer of a call between the two countries’ defence chiefs after Washington shot down the inflatable aircraft.

MILITARY PARADE

N Korea unveils
‘record’ number of ICBMs

AFP, Seoul

North Korea’s Kim Jong Un oversaw a major military parade showcasing a record number of nuclear and intercontinental ballistic missiles, state media reported yesterday, including what analysts said was possibly a new solid-fuelled ICBM. The parade on Wednesday to mark the 75th founding anniversary of North Korea’s armed forces featured fireworks, military bands and uniformed soldiers marching in unison to spell out “2.8” -- the date of the celebration -- and “75”, the official Korean Central News Agency reported. The weapons on show included at least 10 of the North’s largest Hwasong-17 ICBMs, as well as vehicles apparently designed to carry a solid-fuelled ICBM because such missiles are easier to store and transport, are more stable and quicker to prepare for launch, and thus harder for the United States to detect and destroy pre-emptively.

Earthquake
in Indonesia’s
Papua kills 4

AFP, Jayapura

At least four people were killed yesterday when an earthquake struck the capital of Indonesia’s breakaway eastern region of Papua and crumpled a waterfront restaurant, officials said. The 5.1-magnitude quake hit around 1.28 pm on land just southwest of Jayapura city at a depth of 22 kilometres, the US Geological Survey said. The country’s meteorological agency gave a higher magnitude of 5.2 and warned of potential aftershocks. Indonesia experiences frequent seismic and volcanic activity due to its position on the Pacific “Ring of Fire”, where tectonic plates collide. The region affected by Thursday’s quake is home to a decades-long insurgency waged by rebels seeking independence from Indonesia.

Turkey, Syria
quake could cost $4b

AFP, Paris

The earthquake that has devastated Turkey and Syria could cause economic losses exceeding $4 billion, ratings agency Fitch said yesterday.

More than 17,500 people have died so far in the 7.8 magnitude earthquake that struck Turkey and Syria on Monday.

“Economic losses are hard to estimate as the situation is evolving, but they appear likely to exceed” $2 billion and could reach $4 billion “or more”, Fitch Ratings said.

Insured losses will be much lower, possibly around $1 billion, due to low insurance coverage in the area, it added.
