New stars storm the entertainment industry

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

In the arena of showbiz, new and upcoming talent are always looking for opportunities to prove their potential. However, since the level of competition in this industry is high, the probability of gaining recognition and acceptance is equally lower.

In the past few years, some of the new faces in showbiz have done well and have shown their potential to take over the industry in the future.

Tasnia Farin is one of those names. Starting out in the small screen, her performance in OTT would become critically acclaimed, catching the eyes of the audience.

Mostofa Sarwar Farooki's debut web-series "Ladies and Gentlemen" was a breakthrough performance for Farin. The actress went on to impress the audience with Mizanur Rahman Aryan's "Networker Baire", Shihab Shaheen's "Syndicate" and Syed Ahmed Shawki's series "Karagar".

Tanjim Saiyara Totini is another name that has shone a ray of sunshine over the industry, with her charming smile and powerful performance in Piplu R Khan's "Kolpona", an episode of the anthology series, "Ei Muhurte".

She went on to earn the title of "Shuhashini" after she was featured in the project of the same name—which was directed by Mizanur Rahman Aryan. At present, the actress is getting ready for her silver screen debut in Piplu R Khan's "Joya Aar Sharmin".

Shommo Jyoti and Dibbo Jyoti are twin brothers who have stepped into the world of showbiz together. They are the sons of celebrity couple,

Brindaban Das and Shahnaz Khushi. Alongside their education, both twins have slowly started to make a name for themselves in the industry. Currently, they are busy with several television,

OTT and film projects. Shommo received a lot of appreciation for his role in the Hoichoi web-series "Kaiser", directed by Tanim Noor, where he shared the screens with Afran Nisho. Soon, he will be seen in Mushfiqur Rahman Gulzar's upcoming film on Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, "Tungipara Dushshahoshi Khoka"—where he will be playing the role of Bangabandhu.

The rising star will also have a role in the second season of Ashfaqur Nipun's much-anticipated web-series, "Mohanagar".

Dibbo, on the other hand, earned accolades for his role in the part two of Syed Ahmed Shawki's web-series, "Karagar". The actor received much appreciation for his role in Shakal Ahmed's "Pita Bonam Putro Gong". Dibbo has also worked in Shyam Benegal's "Mujib: The Making of a Nation", where he donned the role of a young Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.
