Giving it my all for 'SHURONGO'

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

Afran Nisho, who has proven his acting prowess on the small screen and OTT platforms, is now stepping into the world of cinema. He is making his film debut with the film, Shurongo, directed by Raihan Rafi. Recently, the shooting of the film started in Sylhet. In a candid conversation with The Daily Star, Afran Nisho talked about his new film and more.

You are debuting on the big screen with 'Shurongo.' How are you feeling? This is the first time I am acting in a fulllength feature film. The shooting set, location, and environment-everything Rafi is a very flexible director. feels different. However, I want to act, He receives my inputs very regardless of the medium. work and honesty.

How was your shooting experience with Tama Mirza and director Raihan

Tama is very friendly and dedicated to her job. She is very serious with her acting. Although it's my first collaboration with Tama, she is giving more priority to my character in the film, forgetting who I am in real life, which is a good thing.

Although Raihan Rafi is quite young, he has good experience in this field. He has proved himself through his works.

Tell us about the film 'Shurongo.'

Through this film, we will try to connect the masses with our story. So far, it has been going well. However, if the technical side of the film goes well in post-production, then the film will be a smash hit. We will try to make the film enjoyable for the mass audiences. Every person has some pain in their heart, we will try to portray that on-screen.

Everyone wants to tell a different story. Will you, with 'Shurongo'?

All that we can do is portray our characters with utmost dedication. Of course, as entertainers, we want to work on something that is different from others, but with this one, I feel like the simplicity of the storytelling will catch

What are your plans moving

On December 27 last year, the government finally issued a gazette bringing the rules into effect and outlining the work of the board and the funds.

As per the rules, the family of a person killed in a road crash due to reckless or negligent driving will get at least Tk 5 lakh in compensation. Those who lose a limb or suffer other forms of life-altering injuries will get Tk 3 lakh each, while the victims who are likely to recover from injuries and return to normal life will get Tk 1 lakh.

Meanwhile, owners of buses, trucks, lorries and semi-trailer trucks will pay Tk 1,500 a year each for the fund, while owners of minibuses, minitrucks, and pickups will give Tk 750: Tk 500 for owners of cars, SUVs and microbuses; and Tk 300 for those of three-wheelers. A motorcycle owner must pay a one-time fee of Tk 1,000, the rules read.

Different authorities, including BRTA mobile courts, district administrations and police, who impose fines under Road Transport Act-2018, are also supposed to contribute to the fund.

BRTA, as per the rules, started collecting the money from early January this year.

Contacted, Prof Tania Haque, of women and gender studies department of Dhaka University and a member of the board, said she last took part in a board meetingaround a year ago. "I have no idea what happened afterwards," she told correspondent on March 4.

Another trustee board member, Khondaker Enayet Ullah, also secretary general of Bangladesh Road Transport Owners' Association, said they could not start giving compensation as "they did not get money for the fund".

Another member, Osman Ali, also the general secretary of Bangladesh Road Transport Workers Federation, is skeptical of when they might be able to start handing out the compensations.

Nur Mohammad FROM PAGE 12 Contacted, Mazumder said that as per an earlier circular, the BRTA secretary was made an ex-officio member-secretary of the trustee board.

But the government has abolished "secretary" post from all government agencies and thus, a new circular was issued on Tuesday, making the director (audit and law) of BRTA as the member-secretary of the board, he said.

"This is another reason behind the delay," he said, adding the board will start giving the compensations following the necessary procedures

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina in her closing speech, said, "My heartiest congratulation and best wishes to the recipients of the National Film Awards 2021. We arranged for this ceremony to take place in March, a month, which holds a lot of importance for us. Our Bangladeshi film industry was able to flourish under the guidance of Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. Sheikh Rahman donated a total of 105 acres of land in Gazipur, so that film fraternities would have a proper location where they could shoot their films. Continuing with his vision, now we are working to build Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Film City," she continued.

"I'm grateful to everyone who created movies in the pandemic. Our cinema halls were very old and poorly facilitated. We have arranged a Tk 1,000 crore fund for cinema hall owners so that they can reconstruct their theatres. We have also advised many cinema hall owners to demolish their halls and turn them into cineplexes where families can watch and enjoy movies together. While the grants for our films might not have a big budget right now, we plan to make this sum even larger in our next budget," War, concluded Hasina.
