"From the political point of view, the Trinamul Congress is weak in northern districts [in West Bengal] and hence, will not be ready to share any water at the cost of their political capital," Manjur said.

He also said Bangladesh should, instead, construct a reservoir or storage infrastructure on the river with financial support from India to conserve monsoon water. When Nazrul's attention was drawn to the NRCC chief's remark, he said, "It's hard for me to believe that an NRCC chairman of a sovereign country could talk like that."

"People who are in different positions within the government do not see the interest of Bangladesh, but rather the Indian government's. That's the problem. I find his statement seditious. He does not have any moral right to stay in the position," he added.

Police said the case did not advance much as three of the accused died in a "gunfight" with police, two of heart attack, while the other is bed-ridden with sickness.

At midnight on July 16, 2016, miscreants attacked a baul akhra at Ektarpur of Jibannagar upazila of the district. Baul Shahidul Islam filed a case with Jibannagar Police Station against unknown attackers.

Three Jamaat activists people -- Alauddin, 25, and Nasir Uddin alias Kalu, 27.

However, the case had to be settled due to pressure from some quarters.

Muslim Uddin Shah, general secretary of Chuadanga District Baul Kalyan Sanstha, said these attacks and intimidations have now become a common phenomenon.

"Religious fundamentalists are sometimes behind these attacks. Other times, they instigate mobs to attack us," he said.

Muslim Uddin said the perpetrators were backed by local influentials and politicians, who compel them to settle the cases.

"The vested groups behind these attacks are the evil forces who aim to remove the non-communal spirit from society," said Mohammad Ali Sain, a khadem at Kushtia's Lalon akhra.

Superintendent of Chuadanga District Police refused to comment on the matter.

"As long as I'm in Kushtia, I commit myself to protect our bauls," said Kushtia Superintendent of Police Khairul Alam.

DNCC to conduct research work

 Health Services (DGHS). We have already held two meetings in this regard," he said.

Atiqul said they need the help from a third party as it will take time to build a new lab for DNCC.

In the US, authorities catch mosquitoes and send them to the lab. Entomologists then analyse and decide which kind of pesticide will be applicable for the area, said the mayor.

Another step the US government takes is publishing cartoons as part of awareness campaigns for kindergartens and high schools.

He also said the US authorities don't usually use fogger machines to kill mosquitoes, as they mainly focus on controlling breeding. They also emphasise on keeping all waterbodies clean.

WHAT EXPERTS SAY
 After the 2019 dengue outbreak, when the country witnessed over one lakh dengue patients, experts gave the idea of an integrated vector-management policy (IVMP), but it has not seen the light of day.

According to the IVMP, a separate institute is needed to conduct research and regularly share updates with agencies engaged in eradicating Aedes mosquitoes.

Appreciating the recent development, entomologist of Jahangirnagar University Prof Kabirul Bashar said, "The authorities are finally thinking of modernising the anti-mosquito drives. We hope DNCC will implement this, and the idea will not only remain on paper."

GM Sairur Rahman, an entomologist at Bangladesh National University, echoed the same.

Sairur said first of all, mosquito-control workers of city corporations will have to identify breeding spots before applying insecticides. Authorities will also have to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of the insecticides they are applying.
