No proof of allegation against Sultan's Dine Says Directorate of National Consumer Rights Protection STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Directorate of National Consumer Rights Protection (DNCRP) has found no evidence of Sultan's Dine restaurant using any meat other than mutton for its food.

The findings of its investigation were revealed yesterday in a press release, signed by DNCRP Assistant Director Md Abdul Jalil Mandal.

Following a complaint, the directorate conducted an on-spot investigation at the Gulshan-2 branch of Sultan's Dine on March 1. The branch authorities appeared during the inspection and gave oral and written statements.

Regarding the size of bones, which was part of the complaint, Sultan's Dine claimed that they use mutton weighing between 7 to 9 kilos, resulting in smaller bones that may appear unusual, reads the release.

"Since the allegations of using meat of other animals could not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt, the organisation was relieved of the accusation," DNCRP stated in the release.

Pilot programme empowering female farmers in climateaffected areas

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Lila Rani Mondal, a Satkhira farmer, was struggling to make a living due to the salinity of the soil and frequent floods in the region.

However, with the help of the "Krishi Call Center-16123," she was able to address climate vulnerabilities and shift towards cultivating bullet chili, a small, red, and extremely spicy chili pepper commonly used in Southeast Asian cuisine. It is ideal to be cultivated in coastal regions like Satkhira as it can grow well in sandy soil with moderate salinity and is tolerant to high temperatures and humidity. The pepper is also resistant to pests and diseases, making it a low-maintenance crop, said Lila at at a virtual event organised by UN Women and the International Centre for Climate Change and Development (ICCCAD).

The pilot intervention, called "Gender Responsive Climate Resilient Agriculture," was supported by the Government of Sweden and aimed to empower marginalised women labourers in climate-affected areas

The programme provided solutions such as climate information services, market information, and resilient farming options in four sub-districts -- Kurigram, Chilmari, Kaliganj, and Shyamnagar. Madhobobi Rani Mondal from Satkhira and Beauty Begum from Kurigram also shared their success stories, highlighting the importance of women leadership in agriculture. The speakers emphasised the need for gender-sensitive market strategies and connecting agriculture to ICT, especially mobile-based helplines, to provide women farmers with access to technology. According to Rokeya Akhter, national gender specialist, FAO, 60 percent of farmers in Bangladesh are women, and 85 percent of them have less than one hectare of land.

The speakers stressed the importance of recognising women farmers' role in agriculture and including them in monetary statistics.

absence of trained doctors and nurses, according to the assessment.

During the 15-day long assessment, investigators found that only 225 SAM units had stock of F-100 therapeutic food and 268 had stock of F-75 therapeutic food.

F-75 and F-100 are fed to SAM children with health complications for them to gain weight.

In many SAM units, the therapeutic foods and other logistics were kept unused in the store and the health staff was unaware about it.

The available stock of these foods, meanwhile, has severely declined. There were only 321 cartons of F-75 and 142 cartoons of F-100 in the government stock.

"If not addressed by April, there will be an acute shortage of these therapeutic foods," said Dr ATM Reaz Uddin, deputy programme manager at NNS, while presenting the findings of the assessment.
