area in the Bangla month of Bhadra in 1971, taking him to Premchhara Razakar Camp where he was killed after three days of torture. They were also accused of torturing and killing Dr Nowfel Uddin Biswas, Surat Ali Biswas and Moktar Biswas for assisting freedom fighters during the Liberation War.

The unholy agreement

"We are currently verifying the information," he added. Investigators said Sharqiya attempted to procure AK-47 rifles from Myanmar through the KNF. However, law enforcement apprehended Shamin before the plan could be executed.

A high level CTTC official disclosed that Sharqiya managed to acquire a number of AK-22s, shotguns, rifles, pipe guns, 1,500 rounds of ammunition, 1,300 detonators, and explosives. Investigators believe that these firearms are currently being stored in secluded hilly areas. KNF obtained the firearms from a state in India, they said.

AGREEMENT CLAUSES

The first clause of the agreement stipulated that Sharqiya and KNF would maintain close ties in hilly areas, fighting together against their common enemies, and refraining from establishing relationships with each other's adversaries under any circumstances.

The investigators also revealed that under no circumstances should the KNF disclose Sharqiya's whereabouts to their associates.

Sharqiya was permitted to establish training camps in the hilly areas and receive training, but the outfit was responsible for covering the expenses, as outlined in the third condition.

The fourth condition stated that in case of any disputes among outfit members, the top leadership would convene and address the crisis.

Investigators also discovered that while Sharqiya had no female recruits, the wives of at least 30 leaders were involved in operating a female wing. Naznin was the chief of the wing, which primarily focused on online recruitment.

The CTTC reported that Sharqiya maintained a close connection with the militant outfit Ansar Al Islam.

Shamin was the only salaried member of Ansar Al Islam, receiving a monthly payment of Tk 20,000 on a regular basis.

The CTTC is currently investigating how the outfit managed to amass substantial funds to sustain its activities and purchase firearms.

Cattle sales yet

"Initially there was no demand at the farm and we had to depend on cattle market to sell our bulls. But now the demand has increased due to the quality we provide. There will be around 15 Agro farms in the market who are selling bulls of different sizes," he said.

Mushfiqur Rahman, a resident of Sutrapur who brought 17 bulls from an agro farm of Atibazar of Keraniganj, said five persons of their apartment building are involved in this business. They bring in these bulls from an agro farm and sell them off to their relatives.

Monirul Islam, owner of Mayer Doa Agro Farm, said he has been running the farm for the last two years and sold 17 bulls last year.

However, this year he could not sell a single bull at the Kachukhet cattle market as the number of customers are low.

Address social cost

Research Unit (RMMRU) with support of Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation organised the workshop at the capital's Brac Centre Inn on "Social Cost of Migration: Left Behind Elderlies and Siblings".

RMMRU Founding Chair Prof Tasneem Siddiqui said globally there is a lack of research on this particular area of labour migration.

Prof Salma Akhter of Dhaka University's sociology department said elderly parents of migrant workers should get priority in the government's social safety net programmes.

Prof Shantanu Majumder of DU's political science department said with start of remittance inflow, a "redistribution of power" can be seen in migrant families.

It needs to be looked at what role elderly members have at such circumstance, he said.

Chairing the workshop, Hamida Akhtar Begum, chairperson of Human Development Foundation, called for policymakers' attention to address the issue.

It's plagued inability to admit enough patients.

Furthermore, the report indicates that the hospital has employed three times more staff than necessary to operate effectively, resulting in 208 employees having no work to do.

These appointments were made based on political considerations.

The TIB report also highlighted the dissatisfaction of patients with the quality of service provided.

The corruption watchdog has received information regarding various irregularities, including procurement and promotion malpractices.

TIB Executive Director Iftekharuzzaman emphasised the lack of good governance in all aspects of the hospital's operations, expressing deep concern and distress regarding the current state of the hospital. Despite repeated attempts, Maj Gen (ret'd) ATM Abdul Wahab, chairman of Bangladesh Red Crescent Society, could not be reached via phone or text messages.

To restore the hospital's reputation and improve the quality of its services, TIB put forth some recommendations.

These include establishing a structured workforce, eliminating political interference, and introducing transparency in management.
