BNP backpedals on Dhaka-centric programmes

Fresh demos soon, Fakhru tells rally at Suhrawardy Udyan

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

BNP at yesterday's rally did not announce any fresh programmes for Dhaka to press home its one-point demand that polls be held under a non-party caretaker government.

Apparently, the party has deviated from its original plan to hold a series of programmes in the capital for the time being, said party insiders.

They said BNP will, however, hold rallies and processions in districts and divisions till the middle of this week, and resume its Dhaka-centric programmes in the third week of August.

This backtracking came after the party's poor show in Saturday's sit-ins at the entry points to the capital, where its activists were barred by police and ruling party members.

BNP said it's next programme will be announced shortly.

Addressing yesterday's rally at Suhrawardy Udyan, BNP Secretary General Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir said, "We will announce our programmes for the one-point demand shortly, after discussions with like-minded political parties. Before that, we want to tell the government to withdraw all false cases and release our leaders and activists."

Issuing a note of warning, he said the government is losing its ground and would not be able to hold office anymore.

"The government got scared of the opposition's movement and that's why it arrested 1,200-1,300 of our activists from a rally. You [the government] have been doing the same for the last 14-15 years, but this would not work anymore. You'll have to step down."

Referring to Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina's statement to administration officials and employees to not be afraid of movements as long as the people are with her government, he said, "You [Hasina] should be scared of the misdeeds and your misrule over the last 14 years."

Urging the government to not obstruct "the people's logical movement", he said, "We believe in peaceful programmes and will move forward with peaceful actions."

Fakhru added there was no support for the Awami League government at home or abroad.

Patients have now poured out onto the balcony of the dengue ward at Mugda Medical College Hospital, as not only have all the beds been occupied, there is no space on the floor anymore either. According to the DGHS, the total number of recorded dengue patients in the country so far is 51,832. The photo was taken yesterday.

DENGUE OUTBREAK

Delay in test reports as patients swarm labs

HELEMUL ALAM and SHAHEEN MOLLAH

Asma Begum took her five-year-old son and a 12-year-old relative, both suffering from fever, to get their NSI and CBC tests, required to determine dengue, at Shaheed Suhrawardy Medical College Hospital, as per doctor's advice, on Thursday.

"But we got the results on Sunday evening, and both of them are dengue positive. It even took two hours for me to reach a doctor after getting the report due to the long line at the emergency department," said an exhausted Asma.

Had the results come earlier, both children could have been well into their treatments already, she added.

While the results of these tests are required as soon as possible to determine dengue and its severity in a patient, hospitals are struggling to do so – ultimately hampering treatment, which doctors are having to continue based on clinical judgement.

Ruhul Amin, husband of Afsana, 18, was waiting at the lab counter at Mugda Medical College Hospital for her test results.

"She gave her blood sample at noon yesterday [Sunday]. It's 3:00pm today [yesterday], and I'm yet to get the report."

The Directorate General of Health Services data shows that with four new deaths and 2,694 new cases recorded yesterday, the total number of fatalities reached 251, and cases 51,832.

Many of these patients, especially those experiencing dengue shock syndrome, need daily CBC (total blood count) tests for doctors to check for improvement or deterioration.

PMO orders campaign showcasing dev work

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY

The Prime Minister's Office has directed all ministries and divisions to take necessary steps to run campaigns on the development projects and programmes taken between 2009 and 2023.

The development activities of the government need to be publicised massively among the people, said the letter, which was sent to the cabinet secretary and other secretaries on July 25, The Daily Star has learnt from people with knowledge of the matter.

Shahida Sultana, director general of the Executive Cell of Prime Minister's Office signed the letter.

To do so, all the ministries and divisions need to publish information as pamphlets about all the completed and undergoing projects, programmes, significant innovations and digitisation, including those that were promised and directed by the prime minister, between 2009 and 2023.

The pamphlet should contain usage of the projects, their impact on public lives and photos, in befitting cases, it said, adding that those should be distributed at the field level.

The implementing agencies periodically prepare reports on their development achievements, said a top official of a government agency that received the letter on Thursday.

BB server problem halts interbank transfers

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Banks yesterday failed to settle transactions with other banks as the Bangladesh Bank's relevant server was down for much of the banking hours.

Instant transactions of funds among banks, which are done through the Real Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) system, could not be done, leaving many firms with unpaid bills and salaries.

"There is a technical problem – we are trying to resolve the issue as soon as possible," said Md Sarwar Hossain, assistant spokesperson of the BB. As a workaround, BB officials suggested making cheque payments and using the Bangladesh Electronic Fund Transfer Network (BEFTN) system, both of which are working as normal.
