 and his relatives.

For around three decades, a few influential people had been occupying the palace, originally belonging to a zamindar, said locals.

The grabbers then renovated the palace and named it "Judge Bari", they added.

According to officials of Nawabganj Upazila Nirbahi Office, Dhaka district BNP president Khandaker Abu Ashfaq along with his brothers Abul Hossain — who is a retired district judge — and Abul Kalam Khandaker, as well as other relatives, had illegally occupied the place for a long time.

The occupants had made fake documents to grab this historic place and its adjacent land, said the officials.

"It is obviously a matter of joy. Now, the authorities should take steps to restore the palace to its original design and make it suitable for the visitors. It will be better if it is in use," said Sazzadur Rasheed, chairman of the architecture department at Primeasia University.

On January 4, The Daily Star ran a report on the Brajo Niketan titled, "Finally free from the clutches of influential". The newspaper also wrote an editorial piece, urging the authorities concerned to preserve it as a heritage site.

"The locals are delighted after learning that the Brajo Niketan was declared a heritage site," said Md A Halim, assistant commissioner (land) of Nawabganj.

 of nomination forms, fees and donations from party members, while the main sources of expenditure were salaries and bonuses for employees, arrangement of seminars, and utility bills," said Ashiqur while talking to reporters.

According to the party's 2021 financial statement, it earned Tk 21.23 crore that year and spent Tk 6.30 crore.

In 2020, AL's income was Tk 10.33 crore and expenditure Tk 9.94 crore.

Awami League office secretary Biplob Barua said all party activities were limited during the Covid-19 period, so their expenditure was less. But as the country came into normalcy, the party started holding different political programmes, which is why their expenditure also increased.

According to Representation of the People Order (RPO) 1972, all registered political parties are needed to submit their financial statements by July 31.

The commission can cancel the registration of a party if it fails to submit the report for three consecutive years.

establish and promote a research culture in the medical education sector to face the public health challenges in the country.

They also stressed on collaboration among the local universities and medical institutions, and utilisation of the existing funds.

Speakers also said an increase in fund allocation for research is needed.

Speaking as a panelist, Dr Kamrul Hasan Khan, former vice chancellor of the Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University, highlighted the absence of an appropriate policy for education and the responsibility of senior physicians who can play a role of guardian in the medical education sector.

"We, the senior professors, have lost seriousness and drive. We are busy with other tasks rather than performing academic duties... We are engaged in politics rather than fulfilling our main task," said Prof Kamrul Hasan.

While some speakers highlighted the shortage of funds, others said the allocated funds often remain unused.

Prof ABM Abdullah, personal physician of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, said the government is ready to provide more funds for quality research.

He also stressed the need for preventing unethical practices in utilising funds for research.

Interest and integrity should be the key traits of a researcher, Prof Abdullah said.

Prof Sayedur Rahman, chairman of pharmacology at BSMMU, stressed customising research standards based on the situation and needs in Bangladesh rather than copying the Western concepts.

Prof Chowdhury Meshkat, chairman of cardiology at BSMMU, said, "There is a strong interest among the clinicians for research. We just need to take necessary steps in this regard."
